Cuba Halts 80 ...ing To Fight Dominicans; Many Yankees Taken

Grau San Martin Linked With Plot; 11 Planes, 2 Ships, Arsenal Confiscated

Havana, Cuba, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—The Cuban army announced tonight it had smashed a million dollar amphibious expeditionary force organized in northeastern Cuba to overthrow the 17-year-old dictatorship of Gen. Rafael Trujillo Molina in the Dominican Republic.

Col. Oscar Diaz, who has spent months delving into reports that the expeditionary force was being organized on Cuban soil, said two troop-laden ships had been captured at sea as they sailed to launch the invasion.

Diaz said that 800 men aboard the El Maceo and El Fantasma, surrendered without resistance today when intercepted.

Capture of the two vessels has "ended the Dominican adventure," Diaz said.

270 Captured on Land

Maj. Gen. Genovevo Perez Dameras, chief of staff, later said 270 more of the revolutionaries had been captured over the weekend.

Seven hundred other revolutionaries are still at large, he said, "but the army has them perfectly located and it is to be hoped they will surrender their arms peacefully to avoid any painful incidents."

The main base of the expedition was said to be on Cayo Confites, an island off the port of Nuevitas.

In the Senate opposition leader, Senator Aurelio Alvarez, charged President Grau San Martin was using government funds and public functionaries to foment a revolt against Trujillo.

Alvarez charged Grau San Martin with responsibility for what he described as a "pacific state of war" between Cuba and the Dominican republic, which is a neighboring Caribbean country occupying the eastern half of the island of Hispaniola.

The Senate went into secret session in late afternoon after hearing the charges against the President.

Cuban Officials Accused

Diaz said the army had obtained documentary proof "implicating certain high government officials in the plot to overthrow Trujillo." He disclosed the army had captured 11 planes, including an American DC-3 transport.

Also captured, Diaz said, were large numbers of rifles, grenades and mortars, in addition to 13 truckloads of machine guns, and aerial bombs seized in a raid on the America Ranch near Havana on September 20.

The ranch is owned by Education Minister Jose Manuel Aleman, a confidant of President Grau. Aleman now is in Miami.

The expedition was delayed once by inability to obtain surplus United States landing craft for infantry, which were supposed to join the expedition from Baltimore last month, but were refused permission to sail by the United States.

Attack Set at Dawn

These reports said the United States had thrown its full resources into an effort to block the expedition because of the Inter-American Conference on the Maintenance of Peace and Security which was then in session in Petropolis, outside Rio de Janeiro, drawing up a hemispheric defense pact.

It was understood the expedition sailed Friday night and was scheduled to attack at dawn today.

The expedition was reported to include hundreds of former American soldiers and war-experienced adventurers of many nationalities.

Diaz said those left behind had refused to take a pledge to resist with force if Cuban armed services tried to stop the invasion.

The revolutionaries reportedly had some former fighter pilots and

Shoes, Clothing Production Shows Drop During June

Production of both shoes and clothing was 23 per cent lower in June than in the same month a year ago, the Commerce Department reported today.

Output of shoes, hosiery and gloves continued to slump, but men's and women's outwear production during June broke the downward trend.

Although women's dresses, blouses and suits were still from 18 to 30 per cent under June, 1946, production was higher than in March, April and May of this year.

The department said that by the end of June most New York factories in these lines were back in operation but with fewer workers and shorter hours.

Men's and boys' clothing was 10 per cent below June last year, the department said. Men's suits, dress shirts, underwear and pajamas were produced at a rate slightly larger than last year.

Moscow Rejects U. S. Protest On Paper's 'Insult' to Truman

The United States has protested to Moscow that a Soviet writer libeled and insulted President Truman by comparing him to Hitler, and Moscow has rejected the protest, the State Department disclosed yesterday.

The text of notes exchanged between United States Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith and Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov showed that Molotov not only rejected any responsibility for the offending article, but also lashed out bitterly against "that American press which is so widely encouraged by the most reactionary articles."

Michael McDermott, State Department press officer, told reporters that the department has not had time to determine the next step in the latest incident of deteriorating relations between Washington and Moscow.

Ambassador Smith presented a stiffly worded protest Thursday against an article by Boris Gorbatov in the Literary Gazette No. 39.

The Gazette article appeared September 20. It said President

It also accused him of being "the messenger boy, bank clerk and tool of the Pendergast machine," and declared he had begun a drive for "world mastery" on behalf of Wall Street. The President was charged with undertaking the militarization of the American governmental system.

McDermott, told reporters that Smith had given copies of his protest note to American newspapermen in Moscow Saturday.

Reds Still Aid Greek Rebels, Tsaldaris Says

Assembly Unit Told Balkan Trio More Active Than Ever

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Greek guerillas are getting more help than ever from the three Communist-dominated countries north of the Greek border, Vice Premier Constantin Tsaldaris told the Assembly's political committee today.

"At this very moment, while we are considering this question," said Tsaldaris, "Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia are sending into Greece arms and ammunition in increasing amounts and with ever-increasing boldness."

The Assembly would be getting confirmation of this help, Tsaldaris said, if a Russian veto two weeks ago had not ended the existence of the Security Council's subsidiary group which was investigating the warfare along the northern Greek border.

France Would Soften Action

In spite of Tsaldaris' charges, Yvon Delbos of France later proposed a softening of the stiff American resolution finding Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia guilty of helping the guerillas.

Whereas the American resolution would hold the three Communist countries responsible for such help, the French amendment would simply "note" the findings of the Security Council commission that the three countries were responsible.

And whereas the American resolution would call upon them to "cease and desist" from such aid, in any form, the French version would simply ask them very politely to do nothing of the sort in the future.

The proposed changes seemed slight; Delbos said he was suggesting them in an attempt to get unanimity in the political committee. But the American delegation will try to have them rejected, just as it will urge the rejection of any attempt at a face-saving compromise.

Tsaldaris Answers Soviet

The Americans are convinced they have the necessary two-thirds vote to push their resolution through the committee in all its blunt original language—a resolution condemning the Soviet satellites in the Balkans and stationing an Assembly committee in Salonika to watch the situation.

Tsaldaris sought to answer a Soviet charge of being a "warmonger" of trying to instigate a war between East and West.

"Greece would, in the horrible assumption of such a sinister contingency, be the first tragic victim," he said. "She would simply be wiped out. Can any logical

12 Others Injured Aboard Destroyer in Blast Off Trieste

Trieste, Sept. 28 (AP).—Three men perished today when the 2200-ton United States destroyer Douglas H. Fox struck a mine in the upper Adriatic Sea, 18 miles off Trieste.

Twelve other seamen were injured, four critically.

The explosion knocked out both the destroyer's propellers and both rudders.

Names of the victims were not released immediately.

The Fox had about 200 men aboard. She was en route to Trieste from Venice in waters which still contain war-laid minefields.

A sister destroyer, the James C. Owen, went to the rescue.

One man died on the Fox at once. Two others succumbed aboard the Owen.

Tugs are towing the Fox to a Venice drydock. The craft is listing. She has a large hole aft below the waterline, and her lower after decks are awash.

Fisher's Nonsupport Accounts Missing; Police Assessed $2 To Make Up Deficit

(See Related Stories on Page B1-)

New disclosures of irregularities in the account books of the Fourth Police Precinct months before Station Clerk Pvt. Oscar L. Fisher committed suicide were made yesterday.

One of the men detailed to investigate the shortages, yesterday revealed:

1. That complaints from Juvenile Court over failure to receive nonsupport payments from the precinct had been received at the station.

2. That account sheets showing the non-support payments had been made to the station clerk were missing from the books between January and September.

Police Assessed $2 Each

3. Precinct officials were aware of the shortage sometime prior to Pvt. Fisher's death and took up a collection to restore the missing funds. The Washington Post's informant said he had paid his $2 to Precinct Capt. Benjamin Keuhling on September 7—11 days before Fisher shot himself.

At the time an audit of the precinct books was made by the District Auditor's office, Captain Keuhling said there "is no shortage so far as I know," but he declined to comment when asked if there had ever been a shortage.

As station clerk, Fisher handled dues collected for three policemen's associations; collateral posted at the precinct and welfare funds deposited with the precinct by estranged husbands for support of their families.

Complete Audit Awaited

A $145 shortage in the welfare fund was that made up by the collection from other policemen at the station, some of whom made "minor objections," it was learned. Virtually all the men knew what the collection was for, but they didn't know who was responsible for the shortage.

Fisher had not turned in more than $750 in dues to the three associations at the time of his death.

A "progress report" and possibly a complete one on the audit was promised for today by District Auditor Arthur R. Pilkerton. His office is investigating only the welfare accounts. Separate probes are under way by officials of the associations.

It was learned that the investigation began when Juvenile Court officials reported complaints from recipients of non-support payments. A check with persons ordered to make the payments disclosed the money had been paid. Each produced a receipt.

Couldn't Find Tally Sheets

Fisher himself took a complaint from Juvenile Court on the lack of payments and on referral to officials, was told to find the missing sheets showing receipt stubs. Fisher, The Washington Post was told, reported he was unable to find the tally sheets.

When the $145 shortage was discovered early in September, another investigation was started into accounts prior to that month. No shortages were discovered, but "many" of the sheets were reported missing.

Boost Asked For Rates on Local Phones

Requested Scale Would Hike D. C. Bills Two Millions a Year

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Co. yesterday asked for an increase in rates that would make Washington users pay two million dollars more a year for local service.

The request for a rate increase was presented to the District Public Utilities Commission, PUC authority is required for an increase in local telephone rates. It does not have jurisdiction over long-distance calls.

For home telephones, the increase would be 55 cents a month in the basic service for which there is the largest number of subscribers. This is the flat rate for unlimited service. The rate is now $4.20 a month and the phone company proposed boosting it to $4.75 a month.

There would be general increases for commercial users. Company officials said the service most used by business firms is the

Money Running Low

President Truman yesterday asked four congressional committees to meet soon and approve winter aid to western Europe.

He left it up to the Republican-led committees—those on Appropriations and Foreign Affairs of the Senate and House—whether Congress should be called back for an emergency session. The prospect was that even if one were approved, it could not start before early December.

Anti-Communist Angle

The regular session comes January 3. Mr. Truman wants Congress to appropriate 580 million dollars to pay for American food and coal that will be needed this winter by countries of Western Europe, principally France and Italy. He told reporters that there was enough money available to keep the needy countries supplied to December 1. After that, he said, the pipe line would be empty.

Congressional leaders who met with President Truman and Cabinet officers yesterday morning said they were told that, aside from humanitarian motives, the money was needed to head off possible Communist coups in France and Italy.

They said they were told further that if France and Italy have gone Communist by March 31 for want of stop-gap help, the United States might as well abandon the Marshall Plan for European reconstruction.

Going to Europe

President Truman, in a formal statement, mentioned the long-range Marshall Plan, and observed:

"But if this recovery program is to have a chance of success, means must be found for aiding France and Italy to survive this critical winter as free and independent nations."

It looked as if the congressional committees would not be able to assemble on Capitol Hill until mid-November.

Cripps 'Czar' in British Crisis

Trade Board Head Appointed to New Ministerial Post

London, Sept. 29 (AP).—Sir Stafford Cripps was named tonight Minister of Economic Affairs—a new post created to centralize in one man broad powers for dealing with Britain's economic crisis.

He will be succeeded as president of the Board of Trade by James Harold Wilson, 31-year-old "boy wonder" of the Labor government. Wilson, as secretary for Overseas Trade, has been Cripps' principal aide.

Prime Minister Attlee will head temporarily a new ministerial committee on economic planning, "in view of the gravity" of the situation which has forced Britain to suspend convertibility of sterling and curtail purchases abroad.

Arthur Greenwood, veteran labor politician, now minister without portfolio, is leaving he government. He is the first of the "older men" who Attlee has said must make way for younger members of the party.

In explaining the designation of Cripps as virtual czar over the British economy, Attlee said the situation called for "a much closer integration of internal and external economic policy," and that the Prime Minister needed "the assistance of a senior colleague, who can give his undivided attention to our economic problems at home and abroad."

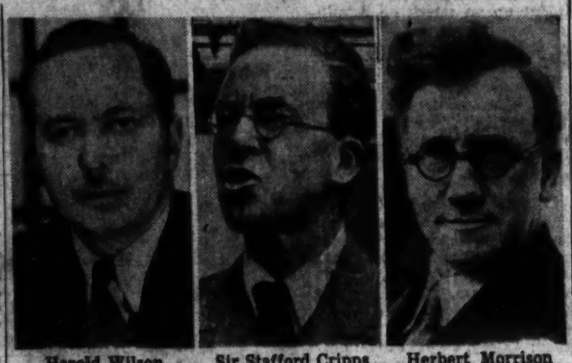

He said more changes are to come. He indicated that when completed the reshuffling would be the most extensive since Labor came to power in 1945.

Informed quarters indicated that neither Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin nor Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton, who, with Cripps and Morrison make up the "big four" of Attlee's cabinet, would be affected.

Cripps, 58, lawyer and trade expert, already was in charge of whittling down imports and booming exports in his present job—equivalent to Secretary of Commerce in the United States. He will succeed to functions of general supervision over the economic program now held by Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison.

Morrison remains as Deputy Prime Minister and leader of the House, and, in addition, will take over close supervision of Parliamentary business which Greenwood has performed.

Wilson, who failed in a hard try last summer to negotiate a commercial agreement with Russia, presumably will carry on along lines already set by Cripps to cut imports by 912 million dollars annually and raise exports to 160 per cent of prewar by the end of 1948. The goal is to cancel Britain's current annual adverse trade balance of $2,400,000,000.

U.S. May Train China Troops To Halt Reds

Nanking, China, Tuesday, Sept. 30 (U.P.).—The United States Army has submitted a plan for the training and equipping of 10 Chinese combat divisions to battle the Communists in response to an urgent request by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, a high American source said today.

A training school has been set up under Lieut. Gen. Sun Li-Jen, commander of the Nationalist First Army in Manchuria, and will start operations as soon as Washington gives the green light, the source said.

General Sun, a graduate of Virginia Military Institute, is a close friend of Secretary of State George C. Marshall.

The source said he did not believe the plan could be put into effect before Lieut. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer's investigation report is published and Congress votes sufficient funds for the project.

Besides calling for a vigorous, 90-day training period under Americans and using American equipment, the plan also urged that Chinese troops be moved to and from the lines by air.

To accomplish this, the Air Force would be composed mostly of transports and bombers rather.

The Army should be equipped with light arms instead of tanks and heavy artillery or even heavy vehicles because the terrain in the fighting zone make heavy equipment impractical.

The plan emphasizes that 10 combat divisions will not be enough to "wipe out" the Communists, but "should be enough to check the Communists and to enable the Central Government to hold all vital areas."

Food Prices Soar to Limits On Markets

Harriman Report On Possible Exports Touches Off Increase

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Food prices on the Nation's primary markets soared upward yesterday the full limit permitted in most categories, 48 hours before President Truman's Citizens Food Committee holds its first meeting at the White House.

Touching off yesterday's sensational rise was the report by the Food Resources Subcommittee of the Harriman Foreign Aid Committee that this country should export 570 million bushels of grain, including 500 million bushels of wheat, during the year ending next June 30.

The Harriman Committee, formed to advise the President as to what this country should provide for foreign relief and rehabilitation, made its report last Wednesday, a day after the Cabinet Food Committee, headed by Agriculture Secretary Anderson, had recommended cutting the year's grain exports to 470 million bushels.

Wheat Up 10 Cents

Wheat shot up the full 10 cents shortly after the market opened and held that gain at the close. December wheat ended the day at $2.85⅞.

Corn was up its full 8-cent limit. December closed at $2.32⅞.

Oats, too, was up the limit, December futures hitting $1.16¾. Soybeans were up its full 8 cents, November ending at $3.42.

Lard bounced up to $24, from $1.20 to $1.60 per 100 pounds over Saturday's close, and about $6 above its low a few weeks ago.

In the rye market at Winnipeg, futures scored maximum advances of 10 cents, October closing at

Service Employes Threaten Strike At Fairlington

Residents of the 3439 units at the Fairlington housing development were faced with the possibility of no heat, garbage disposal or other maintenance services last night as 170 service employes threatened to go on strike.

Officials of the Building Serivce Employes International Union, Local 82, AFL, informed the manager of the Defense Homes Corporation project, George DeNeale, that a strike may be called at any time without advance notice if the union employes are not recognized and contract negotiations begun.

Sam Levine, attorney for the union, said the union first requested recognition from DeNeale and A. Philip Towsner, housing management adviser of the DHC, on September 18.

Townser said he had explained that terms of the impending sale of the project provides that no contract, running more than 60 days be signed. This would preclude extending union recognition or opening wage negotiations, he said. The project is scheduled to be taken over by private interests October 10.

Princess Elizabeth Turns Up Royal Nose at Long Skirts

London, Sept. 29 (AP).—Princess Elizabeth turned up her royal nose at long skirts today. She bought a suit with a skirt just covering the knees.

"Cool And it's fine she did," exclaimed a typist who shares the royal dislike for the just-above-the-ankles trend.

The princess came back from Balmoral Castle in Scotland to get on with preparations for her wedding to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten on November 20. The former prince of Greece arrived at Buckingham Palace a few hours later from the Royal Naval Station at Corsham, where he is an instructor.

The princess went to the headquarters of the British Color Council to accept wedding gifts from British manufacturers. It was understood that one object of her trip was to have a first fitting of her wedding gown, which, it was disclosed, will have a silk train.

Eighteen pairs of nylons and pure silk stockings—enough to make a girl's eyes sparkle in this land of hosiery shortages—were presented to her by the Nottingham Chamber of Commerce.

Other industrialists gave her knitted underwear, two head scarves, table cloths and dress laces in cotton, rayon and silk.

One remembered Philip with a gift of underwear and six pairs of socks.

In avoiding long skirts she joined the British stylists' "war" on the Paris and New York trend. The British Guild of Creative Designers announced last week long skirts will be resisted firmly because they take more scarce cloth.

Taft Agrees Europe Needs Stopgap Aid

Ohioan Is Non-Commital on Amuont Prepared 'to Listen' on Marshall Plan

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

En route to Boise, Idaho, Sept. 29.—Senator Robert A. Taft today agreed in effect with President Truman on the need of some emergency assistance to Europe but was noncommittal on the amount of either stopgap or Marshall Plan aid.

On the last lap of his far western swing, the Senate Republican steersman received a long-distance report on Mr. Truman's foreign aid conference with congressional chiefs.

He told a Pullman, Wash., audience:

"The President presented a very forcible argument for some immediate aid to Europe to maintain stability in Europe."

Ready to Listen

In Spokane, and later in Pullman and Moscow, Idaho, Taft said the United States can "do something" to help Europe establish normal economic conditions "unfavorable to the growth of communism."

"We are prepared to listen to the Marshall Plan," he told a GOP breakfast meeting in Spokane.

"I don't believe we can solve the world's problems with money but perhaps we can make it easier for those people to resist communism." nism."

Four hours later he told the Pullman luncheon meeting he had "no objection to helping another year or two," adding: "It's a question of degree."

Addresses College Students

Before boarding his train at Moscow, Idaho, he addressed 3500 University of Idaho students in the college gym. One of the students asked if he favored 16 billions of aid under the Marshall Plan.

"The figure you mention seems somewhat large," Taft replied. "I haven't seen the figures and I haven't the facts."

Later he declined to commit himself to reporters on the amount of stopgap aid. He said he will consult other Senate GOP leaders on the advisability of calling a Senate GOP Steering Committee meeting before the Foreign Relations and Appropriations Committees meet November 15. He will contact them after he returns to Cincinnati Monday.

Motoring thro[u]gh Idaho and Washington's "Inland Empire", Taft encountered his only picket line at Pullman where five youths who said they were Oregon State college students quietly paraded. They bore placards reading "Taft's in town, ask him about high prices" and "Taft forgets easily."

Taft Essays Joke

Stepping out of character for the first time on his trip, Taft varied his usual dead serious defense of the Eightieth Congress with a joke, a new routine for Taft.

He even twitted Dr. Wilson Compton, president of Oregon State College about a slip. Compton introduced a Washington State politico by the wrong title. Taft said Compton's error showed he is "Keeping out of politics."

"I think it is a wise policy for all college presidents to stay out of politics," said Taft.

Reporters asked if he was thinking about General Dwight D. Eisenhower when he gave that advice. (Eisenhower, whose Presidential boom is spreading west, has agreed to become president of Columbia Universitq).

Jests Our Pickets

"I never even thought of it,"—replied the Senator. In Spokane, Taft even jested about the lack of any pickets there.

"I miss the pickets," Taft told the breakfast group. "They add enthusiasm to our meetings."

He used htis joke in Spokane to point up an attack on Administration policies:

A woman went to call on a crystal gazer. "Do you want to know the character of your future husband?" asked the seer. "No," replied the lady, "I want to know the past of my present husband for future use."

Follows Wife's Lead

At Pullman, where Dr. Compton presided at a GOP luncheon, Taft charged high taxes are slowing production. Then he told another story: A lady in Canada went to a silver fox farm. "Those are nice fores," she said. "How often do you skin them?" The fur farmer replied: "Lady, we skin them only once a year. Anything more injures the fox."

The outbreak of funny stories followed Martha Taft's success with a humorous speech in Seattle last week. For one day she stole the Taft show. Now her usually unbending husband is angling for punch lines.

On his return lap, Taft is mostly repeating the content of former speeches on the coast. His main theme today was that "labor leader propaganda" against the Taft-Hartley Act is actually converting public opinion to the law. He renewed his prophecy that the law "will not be an important issue in the '48 campaign."

Apology Promised Taft For Seattle Profanity

Senator Cain (R., Wash.) told reporters yesterday he will apologize to Senator Taft (R., Ohio) and his wife for actions of persons in Seattle in "yelling profanity" at them as they rode along the streets.

"It was the action of a few Communists hiding behind organized labor who did that," Cain said.

"Taft is by no means a favored candidate in the Northwest," Cain said. "The tendency there is toward Dewey."

Text of Truman's Statement On Europe's Economic Status

The text of President Truman's announcement yesterday of his morning confeerence with congressional leaders follows:

I HAVE conferred at length with congressional leaders with reference to the critical economic situation which exists in western Europe. I am writing to the chairmen of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, the Senate Committee on Appropriations and the House Committee on Appropriations requesting that they call their committees together to consider the urgent need for aid to western Europe.

I know that some of the members of these committees are now in Europe investigating conditions at first hand. It is my earnest hope that as soon as the members of the various committees have returned to this country they will meet.

The question of the calling of a special session of the Congress was discussed at length with the congressional leaders. Whatever decision may be reached on this subject at a later date, it was the opinion of all that the committees begin to consider the present emergency at the earliest possible date that the members are available.

Recent events have brought about increasingly critical economic conditions in some of the countries of western Europe. Unusually bad European harvests, together with rising costs and lessened supplies of American food, have upset recovery plans and endangered the progress already made. In particular, France and Italy are without adequate food and fuel supplies for the fall and winter, and do not have the resources with which to buy them.

The prospect of a general recovery program for western Europe, aided by the United States, has raised their hopes for eventual recovery and has strengthened Democratic forces. But, if this recovery program is to have a chance of success, means must be found for aiding France and Italy to survive this critical winter as free and independent nations.

A searching examination already has been conducted of all possible ways in which France and Italy might be aided without additional action by the Congress. Action by various agencies of the executive branch under existing authority may meet the most urgent needs of the next few weeks, but funds available from executive sources are inadequate to provide assistance beyond December. Assistance this winter, in sums much larger than the executive branch can provide with funds now at its disposal, is essential. That assistance can come only from the Congress.

The early convening of the congressional committees referred to is the necessary first step in meeting the problems that confront us.

Boy Housebreaker Gets Lifetime Of Probation

An 18-year-old Reading, Pa., boy, charged with stealing an $85 watch, was sentenced to a lifetime of probation yesterday in Montgomery County Circuit Court.

The boy, James J. Weiher, was one of three arrested July 28 after they broke into a Takoma Park, Md., home, stealing a watch and $145 in cash.

The arrest followed a tip to Metropolitan police by a suspicious ticket agent after the boys attempted purchase three railroad tickets to El Paso, Tex., with a $100 bill.

Chief Judge Charles W. Woodward said he would "suspend the sentence generally," admonishing the boy to behave himself in the future or a prison sentence could be imposed.

Two Boys Captured After Virginia Holdup

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—Two teen-age Chester, Pa., boys, who State Trooper Frank Slater said confessed to stealing an automobile at Salem, N. J., three days ago, were in jail here today awaiting prosecution by Virginia authorities on charges of the armed robbery of a Caroline County service station.

Slater captured the pair after police threw up a road block on route 1 north of Richmond last night, less than two hours after the robbery of a Hillcrest service station at Golansville, Slater said the pair used a gun to cover an attendant.

The boys narrowly escaped injury when they plowed into two automobiles and a score or more of tar barrels at a 90-mile speed near the barricade.

Truman Asks 4 Committees To Approve Help for Europe

Europe. They are scheduled to leave on October 8 and return November 14.

"I will certainly call a meeting of the Senate Appropriations Committee as soon as members return from Europe in mid-November," Senator Bridges said.

Chairman John Taber (R., N. Y.) and other members of the House Appropriations Committee are already in Europe, and last were reported in Greece.

A congressional leader who attended the White House meeting said that President Truman offered no objection to the Bridges group going to Europe at this time. In fact, he said, Mr. Truman remarked that he was glad to know they were going so that they could see the situation first hand.

Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N. J.), chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, announced that he would call his committee together early in November. He made it clear that he would recommend a favorable report on the Administration plan for stopgap aid.

No opposition was expected from this committee or from Senator Arthur Vandenberg's Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Key Men in Situation

The key men in the situation were those on the House and Senate Appropriations Committee. Unless they voted to approve the 580 million dollars appropriation, there would be no point in President Truman calling Congress back before the regular session begins on January 3.

President Truman called reporters into his office about three hours after his 2½-hour session with congressional leaders.

Attired in a blue suit, solemn of mein, Mr. Truman head a statement in which he announced that he was asking the chairmen to call meetings of the four committees.

"The early convening of the congressional committees," he said, "is the necessary first step in meeting the problems that confront us."

Later, in a question and answer session with the reporters, Mr. Truman said that the matter of a special session depended on the attitude of the committee members.

If they are wholeheartedly in favor of it, he said, of course there will be no difficulty. If they are not in favor of it, he said, there would be no use in his calling a special session.

Mr. Truman said in his prepared statement that a searching examination had been made of all possible ways to help France and Italy without action by Congress. But existing funds, he said, were inadequate to provide assistance beyond December. Further assistance, he went on to say, was "essential" but it could only come from Congress.

Martin Hopes Truman Gives Frank Statement

Topeka, Kans., Sept. 29 (AP).—Speaker of the House Joseph A. Martin, jr., said today he believed meetings of key congressional committees called by President Truman foreshadowed a special session of Congress late in November to consider stopgap aid to Europe.

The Massachusetts Republican, here to visit Kansas GOP leaders, told a press conference that he hoped in the meantime the President would "exert forthright leadership and present to the country a frank and complete statement on the spending needed both at home and abroad" to meet the domestic and foreign situation.

Martin declared that he thought it was proper for the President to call in the four committees to weigh the situation and that he had suggested such a procedure a month ago.

Court ... Plea To Bar ... Order

A three-judge tribunal yesterday took under consideration a plea from 180 railroads that the Interstate Commerce Commission be enjoined from enforcing a freight car rental rate rise slated to become effective tomorrow.

The ICC order, which would increase the per diem rate from $1.50 to $2, is being fought by the railroads on the ground that it would work a hardship on small aaaaaaaaaaaaYdronSaqRR,3elines which hire many freight cars and would have the effect of loading the rails with empty freight cars, because railroads would return cars empty to same the extra fee, rather than hold them for loading.

ITU Contract Stalls On Legality Point

Neither Printers Nor Union Will Say Negotiations Have Made Any Progress

Baltimore, Sept. 29 (AP).—Negotiators working on a new contract between Local 12 of the International Typographical Union and a group of Baltimore printers couldn't agree whether they had made any progress today or whether some of the union's proposals are legal under the Taft-Hartley law.

The case has attracted attention because the ITU at a recent convention voted not to sign new contracts, in order to get around the Taft-Hartley Act's ban on the closed shop. The general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board has issued a complaint against Local 12, accusing it of refusing to engage in collective bargaining.

Gerhard van Arkel, who resigned as general counsel of the NLRB when Congress passed the Taft-Hartley law over President Truman's veto, sat in on today's conference as a union representative.

Extension, He Says

He explained Local 12's action last Friday in submitting new proposals to the Graphic Arts League of Baltimore and the offering to sign a contract is an "extension" of the "flexible policy" adopted by the ITU's convention.

He said the union had proposed no condition which would be in violation of the Taft-Hartley ban on closed shops nor had it asked for a "union security" clause.

Earle K. Shawe, a former NLRB regional attorney who represented the 22 printers in the Graphic Arts League, differed and declared they would be in violation of the Taft-Hartley Act if they signed the agreement proposed by the union.

Shaw said no progress had been made when the negotiations recessed for lunch. Charles V. Brannock, president of local 12, said he thought there was "some progress."

The printers refused to withdraw their complaint with the NLRB. A hearing is scheduled on it before a regional NLRB examiner here next Monday.

Proposal Not Disclosed

Neither side would disclose what the union had proposed, if anything, to replace the closed-shop clause which has long been a fixture of most of its contracts.

A union spokesman indicated the typographers were insisting upon the right not to work with persons unsatisfactory to them, but neither side would amplify.

Shawe said the printers had offered a union shop—"the maximum amount of union security permitted under the law."

Henry Kaiser, Washington attorney for the ITU, declared this was a "hollow offer" because the union cannot sign a contract until it has been certifid the bargaining agent by the NLRB pursuant to filing of affidavits that its officers and those of the AFL, with which the ITU is affiliated, are not Communists.

Brannock said he had received authority from the International's president and executive council to sign a contract if an agreement can be reached.

Plant Closes Print Shop In Contract Deadlock

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 29 (AP).—The 45-year-old printing department of Belknap Hardware & Manufacturing Co., here has been discontinued "due principally" to refusal of Typographical Union No. 10 to enter into a bargaining agreement and because the union insisted on conditions violating the Taft-Hartley Act, company officials said today.

A company statement said "the union insisted that there be no written agreement . . . we simply couldn't meet their conditions and remain within the Taft-Hartley Act."

Smoke Enshrouds Famed Skyline in Worst N. Y. Dock Fire

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

122 Firemen Hurt in N. Y. Pier Blaze

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—The worst dock fire ever to strike this, the world's busiest port, swept through a Hudson River pier today, injuring 122 firemen, crumpling the pier, and destroying five million dollars worth of property.

Eighty fire engines fought the flames after their discovery last night at pier 57 and got them under control in the early morning. But the fire, its cause undetermined, continued to smolder.

Sections of the pier, used to berth Grace liners plying to South America, suddenly fell into the water.

None was reported seriously hurt. Two firemen were thrown into the water but were rescued. Most of the injured were overcome by clouds of acrid smoke. Lost with the 1000-foot pier, owned by the Grace Line, were 400 tons of cargo, including 700 bales of cotton.

No vessels were berthed at the pier when the fire was discovered.

A thousand dock workers will be made idle for several days.

The cause of the blaze was not immediately determined. Authorities were investigating a report that hot ashes from tugs might have ignited oil on the water under the pier.

Office Workers Union Urges Increase in Chest Goal

A request for a raise in the Community Chest Federation campaign goal was made by Local 27, United Office and Professional Workers of America, in a letter received yesterday at the Washington Chest office.

Sylvia Soliff, local president, told Lee D. Butler, Community Chest president, the $3,900,000 set as this year's campaign goal is "admittedly lower than minimum needs of the agencies." She pointed to "inadequate and inexperienced staffs," and low salaries which had failed, she said, to attract skilled workers. She asserted that if the community were given the facts, there would be a generous response. The drive opens November 12.

The UOPWA claims a national membership of 70,000 in 130 cities. Local membership figures were not available yesterday.

Butler said the latter was referred to the Community Chest Federation, since its executive committee set the goal. Edward A. Keys, Federation executive director, said a reply will be sent "within a few days." Chest officials pointed out the $3,900,000 was above the $3,719,000 collected in 1946 and it is their policy to seek more than the campaign goal.

Raft Drift Proves Migration Theory, Norwegian Holds

San Francisco, Sept. 29 (AP).—Five months after he sailed from Callao, Peru, on a home-made raft, Thor Heyerdahl, 32, Norwegian ethnologist, reached the United States today, convinced he had proved his theory of early migration from the Americas to Oceania.

Heyerdahl and his five companions—four Norwegians and a Swede—and their 18-by-45-foot raft, were brought from Tahiti to San Francisco by the Norwegian motorship Thor No. 1.

Behind them lay 101 days of life on their little raft, driven ever westward by wind and ocean currents. They figured their total drift at 4300 miles.

They were taken in by natives and two weeks later were picked up by a French government schooner which took them to Tahiti.

Heyerdahl believes the Polynesians were a mixture of American and Peruvian Indians, and that they voyaged to the South Central Pacific on rafts.

Visible Grain Supply

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—Visible supply of wheat increased 603,000 bushels to 139,076,000 bushels this week, the Chicago Board of Trade announced today. Corn increased 326,000 to 6,725,000 bushels; oats increased 1,577,000 to 23,083,000 bushels; rye increased 296,000 to 3,114,000 bushels; barley increased 1,711,000 to 20,650,000 bushels, and soybeans decreased 41,000 to 164,000 bushels.

Church Moderator La Roe Hits War Dept. 'Propaganda'

Seattle, Sept. 29 (AP).—A high official of the Presbyterian Church of America denounced the United States War Department and "other public officials" yestreday for what he termed their action in fostering a spirit of militarism in a world "where only the ignorant are without a worry about tomorow."

Wilbur La Roe, jr., of Washington, D. C., moderator of the 159th Presbyterian General Assembly, told a dedication service audience that:

"Specifically I charge the War Department with engaging in Nation-wide propaganda designed to develop a spirit of militarism in direct violation of Federal law. (Federal departments are prohibited by law from engaging in propaganda.)

"And to the extent that other public officials are encouraging a spirit of militarism, they are weakening the very foundations of the United Nations."

Hosiery Workers Raised

Martinsburg, W. Va., Sept. 29.—A 6-cents-an-hour increase is provided under a new contract negotiated between Interwoven Stocking Co. and Branch 92, American Federation of Hosiery Workers, it was announced today by Gilbert Caldwell, union branch president.

The new contract covering 1600 workers will run to January 16, 1949. Caldwell said the increases provide 6 cents an hour for time workers in employ of the company seven months or longer, and 6 cents an hour for piece workers.

Memphis Bans Show Because of Negroes in Cast

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 29 (U.P.).—The Broadway musical hit, "Annie Get Your Gun," was banned here today because of the presence of Negroes in the cast and "suggestive" lyrics in the song.

Lloyd T. Binford, 80-year-old white-haired city censor, said the show, booked for the city auditorium during latter October, will not be allowed in Memphis.

He said he disapproves of anything hinting at social equality between Negroes and whites.

"Of course, I said it can't show here," Binford said. "It's social equality in action. It has been turned down in other Southern cities—Chattanooga, Birmingham, Atlanta and New Orleans."

13 Recruits Sworn

Winchester, Va., Sept. 29.—Recruits to Winchester headquarters company, Virginia National Guard, reached 13 with the swearing in of five new members Robert Manuel, commanding officer, said.

Court Upholds Lost Foreman Protection

The Taft-Hartley Act denies foremen legal protection in their exercise of collective bargaining, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled here yesterday.

The ruling was the first to deal with a provision of the new law relating to the extra-legal status of foremen and supervisors. The decision came as no surprise, for the Taft-Hartley law and its legislative history made it perfectly clear that employers are not obliged to recognize foremen for collective bargaining purposes.

The case involved the L. A. Young Spring and Wire Corp., which had been ordered by the National Labor Relations Board to bargain with a local chapter of the Foreman's Association of America. The Board's ruling, the corporation's objection to it, the argument before the Circuit Court of Appeals all took place before passage of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The court held that under the Wagner Act and the Supreme Court decision in the Packard case the company would be obliged to bargain with its foremen. But, the court added, the intervening passage of the new law put a completely opposite face on the matter.

The appellate court quoted from the Taft-Hartley Act a section declaring that "the term employe . . . shall not include . . . any individual employed as supervisor," and set aside the original NLRB ruling.

Distribution of School Fund of 22 Million Set

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—A schedule of distribution of $22,044,466 in State funds for the 1947-48 school term to localities was announced today by the State Department of Education.

The total which the various counties and cities will receive in State money after requirements of the Appropriation Act have been met is figured at $37.4070 per pupil in average daily attendance.

The $22,044,466 includes $3,821,082 to be provided for the equalization of school transportation costs or other expenditures in lieu of transportation throughout the various school divisions.

It was pointed out by the department that the sum of $3,821,082 is distributed on the basis of "the average daily attendance according to a density formula on a strictly mathematical basis without exception or administrative limitations."

The cities and one county—Arlington—have such a density of population that they do not receive anything from this fund, the department said.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 29 (U.P.)—Federal agents today arrested Manolo Castro, Cuban national sports director, on charges of smuggling arms by airplane from Jacksonville to Cuba.

Castro denied the charges when arraigned and asked in broken English how he could get in touch with "my friend" Charley (Choo-Choo) Justice, University of North Caroline football star. Castro was held under $5000 bond.

Castro and a "Mr. Smith, an ammunition expert," chartered a plane from the willis air service at Tterboro, N. J., August 15, 1947, paying Airline Agent Leroy Peterson $1288 for the use of the aircraft, Customs agents said.

Food Prices Soar to Limits

$3.98½ bid with no sellers. At Winnipeg wheat for export to countries other than the United Kingdom sold for $3.10.

Butter Advances 2 Cents

Butter, Grade AA, was 2 cents a pound higher than Saturday on the New York Exchange, at 78½ cents.

"Large extra" eggs were up half a cent to 4 cents a dozen on the same market, selling at 58 to 60 cents.

Meat on the hoof also soared skywards. Heavy butcher hogs were up 50 cents (half a cent a pound) above Saturday at Chicago. One load of light hogs (230 pounds) hit a top price of $28.85. Lighter hogs increased about 75 cents or three-fourths of a cent a pound.

Most good to choice fed steers of 1050 pounds or more sold at $28.50 to $34.50, gaining 25 to 50 cents per 100 pounds. Lambs were lower.

Dealers Study Reports

The market paid only slight attention to an increase in margin requirements ordered by the directors of the Chicago Board of Trade, and followed by other exchanges.

The new scale automatically increases margin requirements, both on new purchases and as maintenance of earlier purchases, 5 cents for each 10 cents a bushel advance in price.

Ordinarily this news would have depressed prices. But dealers were busy studying the Harriman report and two releases from the Agriculture Department at Washington: One that Production and Marketing Administration bought nine million bushels of wheat and 14 million pounds of flour last week, and the other that a number of supplemental export allocations of grain, including corn, wheat and alfalfa meal had been made. Since July 1 the Government has bought more than 110 million bushels of wheat for export, the department said.

When the Citizens Food Committee meets tomorrow it will face two jobs:

1. To halt any further advance in domestic food prices.

2. To direct a campaign, probably built around a voluntary meat rationing program, to cut down waste and conserve much-needed food for export to nations in want overseas.

The committee faces a particularly tough situation in the present temper of the food markets. In addition to the wild upsurges of grain and other commodities yesterday, two price rises, important in everyone's living budget were announced.

They were increases in prices of soaps of 10 per cent and of vegetable shortenings of 3 per cent.

The boosts were first made public by Proctor & Gamble of Cincinnati. It was followed immediately by Lever Brothers of Cambridge, Massachusetts, whose president, Charles Luckman, is chairman of President Truman's recently-appointed food committee.

Part of the mystery surrounding the publication of the Harriman Committee's recommendations so soon after the Cabinet Food Committee's report with which it was so greatly in disagreement, was dissolved yesterday.

Agriculture Secretary Anderson, it was learned, strongly urged against release of the Harriman statement. He declared that, in the present highly-nervous state of the market, it would upset all plans to hold the price level, and would send grain, as it did, once again skyward.

Anderson Reported "Shocked"

Reports yesterday were that Anderson was "surprised and shocked" when the report appeared in Sunday's newspapers.

The Anderson report asked for grain exports this year of 470 million bushels, augmented by other foods. The Harriman report urged that exports be fixed at 570 million bushels of grain plus any other foods that could be spared.

Yesterday the Agriculture Department explained that it already had started the accumulation of "other foods" for shipment abroad. Recent purchases of surplus dried fruits, peaches, raisins, prunes, etc., it said, were not made to support prices on those items, but to save them from being abandoned and wasted.

Small prunes, it was stated, were bought at $79 to $120 a ton. Parity on prunes is $212 a ton; last year's crop sold at an average price of $215 a ton.

Dollar Shortage a Factor

Raisins, which brought an average price of $312 a ton a year ago, and on which parity now stands at $165, were bought for $111 to $122. Had not the Government so acted, the Department said, many of these raisins would have been destroyed.

Dried peaches were bought at $141 to $200 a ton. Parity is now $225, and the average price last year was $225.

A small amount of the dried fruits went into the National School Lunch program—about 6000 tons. The remaining 60,000 tons are for export to food deficit countries.

One reason for the surplus in such goods, a Department official stated was the drying up of former markets due to the dollar shortage in Europe. Many of these products are bought normally by Denmark, Holland, Great Britain, Norway and Sweden, all of whom cut down their purchases because of lack of foreign exchange.

Restaurant Group to Meet

Preliminary to the Citizens Food Committee meeting tomorrow, the National Restaurant Industry Advisory Committee will meet at the Mayflower today. The meeting was called by George R. LeSauvage, representative of the restaurant industry on the presidential committee.

Meantime out of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics comes the report that the index of prices by farmers rose 4 per cent last month to a new all-time high of 286 per cent of the 1901-14 average.

Prices of farm products, sparked by recent advances in meat animals, dairy and poultry products and grains, on September 15 was 18 per cent above last year and 22 per cent higher than the post-World War I high (the previous all-time high until this year) in May, 1920.

Prices for things farmers buy, including interest and taxes, went up 1 per cent during the month, reaching a new all-time high of 237 per cent of the 1909-14 average. They also are 18 per cent above a year ago, but only 17 per cent above the previous all-time high of 1920.

When the Owen arrived in Trieste, the dead were lying in their traditional place on the ship's fantail. U. S. Army ambulances rushed the wounded to a hospital.

[In Washington a Navy officer explained that mine sweeping in the Mediterranean has been handled by the British Admiralty. Although a channel was cleared long ago between Venice and Trieste, this does not eliminate the possibility of an old mine drifting into the course of a ship, he said.

Phone Firm Asks Rate Hike Costing 2 Million More a Year one now costing $5.50 a month for 110 messages, plus 5 cents for each of the next 40 calls, 4 cents for each of the next 50 calls, and 3 cents for other calls.

The comparative rates for this service under the company proposal would be $6 for the basic unit of 100 calls, 5 cents each for the next 100 calls, 4 cents each for the next 100, and 3¼ cents for all other calls.

Of the two-million-dollar annual increase in the cost of local telephone service to Washington consumers, the telephone company would get an estimated $1,113,000 as an addition to its net annual income. The rest would go in taxes.

Requested In Virginia

Meanwhile, the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. of Virginia asked the State Corporation Commission to approve an increase in charges throughout the C. & P. system which would mean 25 cents more per month for every residential subscriber.

A hearing probably will be held in mid-October as the company proposed in its petition to make the new charges effective November 1 The company's petition, if granted, would produce an additional $1,440,000 in annual revenue, according to General Manager A. L. Lambdin.

The C. & P. Co. was awarder an incerase in its rate structure last January. There have been two phone rate increases in Maryland this year.

PUC Chairman James Flanagan said a hearing date on the rate proposal will probably be announced today. He said he could not predict how soon the PUC might reach a decision.

There was a possibility, officials said that a decision could be reached before the end of this year.

Cites Increased Costs

In its petition for higher rates, the telephone company cited increased costs as a basic reason for asking relief. These are highlights of the petition.

Since 1939, the number of telephones has increased 142,000. There are now 395,552 phones in the system.

Since 1939 annual operating revenue has increased about $17,-900,000.

A company spokesman said the operating revenue for the month of August, 1947, was $2,411,541, but that annual comparative figures for 1939 and now were not immediately available. The petition said that operating revenues for the 12-month period ended August 31, 1947, were 147 per cent over those of 1939, while operating expenses, exclusive of taxes, rose from $8,650,000 to $25,000,000 or an increase of 190 per cent.

About Same in Dollars

Since 1939 the company's annual net earnings have remained about the same in dollars—the net operating income, before interest, was $3,551,896, and after interest had been paid on debts, the net income was $3,381,723.

The petition said that in the 12-month period ending August 31, 1947, the company earned on its local phone service less than 3½ per cent on its average net investment, contrasted with about 6½ per cent in 1939.

The proposed increase, which would be the first since 1920, was called "absolutely necessary" to meet rising costs in a statement by J. B. Morrison, vice president and general manager of the telephone company.

He said the largest item of operating expenses is wages and that wage increases in the past two years have added $3,700,000 annually to the company payroll.

"We cannot make both ends meet by trying to pay 1947 costs out of revenue derived from present-day rates which, in general, were established 27 years ago," he said.

The petition said that the company has spent 14 million dollars in the past year for additional buildings and equipment—part of a 5-year, 70-million-dollar expansion program.

One feature of the proposed new rate system would be curtailment of the number of listings subscribers can have in the telephone directory without extra charge. The company proposed that only one listing be allowed for each individual, party line, and private branch exchange, business and residential, plus one listing in the classified section where permitted, and that customers pay 25 cents a month for each listing over the limit.

British MP Suggests New Constitution for World Rule

Henry C Usborne, member of Parliament, yesterday called for a people's constitutional convention in Geneva in 1950 to draft a constitution for a world federal government.

Usborne

Usborne launched a Nation-wide speaking tour at a luncheon meeting of the American Public Relations Association at the Lafayette Hotel here yesterday.

Suspicion and tension are so great at present, he said, that no statesman can propose a plan for world government which would not be regarded as a step in power politices.

"We need an expression in advance of the public sentiment on world government," he pointed out. As a means of finding out how the people stand on the issue, he proposed an election of representatives to the constituent assembly early in 1950. One representative would be elected to every million in the population under his plan.

In Britain, Usborne said, interest in the project is already high, and public figures, including Sid William Beveridge and Sir John Boyd Orr, have declared themselves candidates.

Such an election, ht stated, would cost Britain one million pounds, and require 500,000 volunteer workers. Usborne added emphatically, "There is no other way to get world government."

Usborne told his audience that attempts to amend the United Nations Charter toward world government were only leading away from it. Essential to the power ofany world governmtnt he said, were: a central monopoly over armed forces, which means total disarmament down to the internal level; a world atomic development athority; a world bank witn linked currency; and a world food board.

Usborne will discuss world governmtnt over stations WINX and WINX-FM tinight at 8:15 o'clock.

Reds Reject U. S. Protest

ten through," McDermott said. This suggested that Moscow had censored stories American correspondents wrote.

The text of the letters exchanged between Ambassador Smith and Molotov follows:

Ambassador Smith's letter of September 25.

"During the year and a half that I have resided in the Soviet Union I have been obliged with the deepest regret to witness in Soviet press an increasing flood of half truths, distortions of truth and utter falsehoods about my country and my Government. I have tried to overlook this incendiary press campaign, feeling that to take issue with a myriad false or incorrect statements would simply be adding fuel to the flame of hatred toward my country which Soviet press has apparently undertaken to kindle in hearts of Soviet people.

Wantonly Libelous

"However, an occasion has now arisen when I must break this self-imposed rule. An article by one Boris Gorbatov just published in Literary Gazette No. 39 is so wantonly libelous in its personal attack on the President of the United States that I cannot permit it to pass without the strongest protest. It has thoroughly shocked me.

"As I have told you personally on several occasions, I believe that I have a duty to Soviet government as well as to my own, and that this duty is to inform the Soviet government as honestly and frankly as possible of the beliefs and opinions of the people of my country. This being the case, I must assure you in the most solemn terms that every fair-minded American citizen, regardless of his political opinions, will be deeply affronted by this article and will feel that he in some way shares personal insult thus gratuitously offered to President Truman.

"I cannot recall that Dr. Goebbels, of unsavory memory, at the height of our common struggle against Nazi Germany, ever stooped to greater ridicule and vituperation against the head of an enemy country than has Mr. Gorbatov against the Chief Executive of a friendly and allied state. In this connection, I would never have believed that a Soviet writer would permit himself, or be permitted, to draw an analogy between the President of the United States and our recent common enemy, Hitler.

"Mr. Gorbatov goes so far as to imply criticism of President Truman for associating with the President of Brazil, our faithful and devoted ally in the recent war, to whom is unwarrantably imputed some prior association with the Axis powers. Any unprejudiced observer, familiar with the course of history since 1939, would agree that such criticism comes with extraordinarily bad grace from a Soviet writer.

"I cannot believe that Mr. Gorbatov's article represents the opinion of the Soviet government, and I, therefore, request that it be officially disavowed and if, contrary to my belief, it has the approval of the Soviet government, I would appreciate a statement to that effect."

Molotov's reply, also dated September 25:

"Acknowledging the receipt of your letter of September 25, I must state that I do not consider it possible to enter into a discussion with you of the article of the writer B. Gorbatov in the Literary Gazette, as the Soviet government cannot bear the responsibility for this or that article and, so much the more, cannot accept the protest you have made in that connection.

"However, inasmuch as in your letter you decided to undertake a general evaluation of the Soviet press and from it is obtained a completely perverted picture of the situation, I must state my disagreement with your point of view on the Soviet press.

"Despite your allegations, the Soviet press, more than the press of any other country whatsoever, especially aims to elucidate broadly as possible the actual situation and true facts of the life of other countries, attaching special significance to the strengthening of friendly relations between peoples. This applies in full measure also to the United States of America, so that any move or approach of the Government and statesmen of the United States of America directed toward the strengthening of normal relations between countries and toward the support of universal peace invariably encounters warm support in the Soviet press, and this is so generally known that it needs no reaffirmation whatsoever.

"It is by no means possible to say regarding that American press which is so widely encouraged by the most reactionary circles in the USA, and which not only from day to day inserts lying and slanderous articles regarding the USSR and its statesmen, but also inflames hostility between peoples, and which does not meet with any serious support whatsoever in the USA, which is, of course, Mr. Ambassador, well known to you, regarding which there are not two different opinions in international democratic circles."

being, therefore, truly support and still less believe that Greece is preparing war?

"No amount of polemics can hide the further fact that these are acts of aggression against the law of nations and of the express and solemn convenants of our Charter."

He asked the Assembly to be firm in its decision, saying that a Communist government for northern Greece would have been proclaimed weeks ago if it had not been for the firmness shown by the majority of the Security Council in recent debates.

Tsaldaris' speech brought spirited support from Herschel V. Johnson of the United States and Hector McNeil of Great Britain. Johnson again protested against the "persistent and gross calumnies which are launched at my own government" and at American motives in Greece. He also reminded the Assembly committee that the 9 out of the 11 members of the Security Council, who found the Soviet satellites guilty were responsible men who could not have reached the same conclusion "on completely unfounded bases."

Byrnes Declines Yugoslavs' Bid for Visit

James F. Byrnes, former Secretary of State, declined yesterday an invitation of Yugoslav Ambassador Sava N. Kosanovic to investigate conditions in Yugoslavia.

Byrnes

In a telegram ot Kosanovic, Byrnes said he could not accept because it "might prejudice" action on a proposal pending in the U. N. General Assembly for an investigation of charges filed by Greece against Yugoslavia and other nations. Byrnes said:

"Whether the conduct of Yugoslavia toward Greece constitutes a threat to peace is a matter for determination by the United Nations of which both Yugoslavia and Greece are members and is not for unilateral action by the United States or for investigation by a group of private citizens of the United States.

"My agreement to participate in such an investigation as a member of a group of private citizens might prejudice action by the United Nations. For that reason I cannot accept the invitation.

Encouraged by Willingness

"I am encouraged by Marshal Tito's willingness to have an investigation by a group of citizens of the United States. The deterioration of the relations between your government and my government is a source of great regret to me.

"Your statement that Marshal Tito is anxious to correct the situation that exists gives hope for the future. The overwhelming majority of the people of the United States want peace, not war, and the Government of the United States is responsive to the wishes of the people."

In New York, former Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, who also had been invited, said he wanted to review the report of the United Nations Commission "which went over to investigate the Greek border dispute" before making a reply. He said he would have a further statement "in a week or less."

Stassen repeated a previous statement that he was "going to talk to Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Secretary of State Marshall before I reply."

Others who received the surprise invitation were former Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, pastor emeritus of Riverside Church, New York; John Gunther, war correspondent and author, and Hanson W. Baldwin, military expert of the New York Times.

Dr. Fosdick declined almost immediately, saying that he had previous engagements which would require his presence in the United States for some time.

All-Purpose Powder Protects Snap Beans

Department of Agriculture officials are studying the effectiveness of an all-purpose insecticide developed near Norfolk, Va., for the protection of fall-crop snap beans.

The department, in cooperation with the Virginia Truck Crop Station, discovered that a dust mixture of DDT, rotenone and sulphur controlled Mexican bean beetles and corn earworms after two applications.

Reports indicate the corn earworm is causing serious damage generally to beans in Virginia, and the Mexican bean beetle infestations in eastern Virginia continue unusually heavy.

Ford Asserts Production Is World Need

Cleveland, Sept. 29 (AP).—Henry Ford 2d asserted here tonight "the world is down in an immense hole, and the only way we can all get out is through production."

"It seems clear that our job is not only to continue to increase the productive capacity of America, but to do everything we can to rebuild and expand the ability of the rest of the world to produce. Unless the whole world achieves greater wealth and security, America cannot hope to maintain high living standards. We are all in one boat together and if it sinks at one end, it sinks all over."

Hoover Group Starts Survey of Government

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

Headed by Former President Hoover, a 12-man commission yesterday began a nonpolitical survey of the Government.

Hoover

By January, 1949, the commissioners hope to work out plans that will make the business of the executive branch simple, efficient and cheap.

President Truman opened the commission's first meeting, in the Cabinet room at the White House. Mr. Truman welcomed the commissioners as men who had come to do a real job for the people of the country. Recalling that this survey is the ,rst in which the President and Congress have joined, Mr. Truman said he was eager for useful concrete results.

Brown Proposes Hoover

Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) who, with Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), sponsored the commission, then said he would like to urge for chairmanship our only living former President. Mr. Truman smiled and said he was sure Mr. Hoover was the unanimous choice of the commission.

Named vice chairman was Dean Acheson, former Undersecretary of State. The secretary will be Frank Brassor of the Civil Service Commission.

After a meeting of more than an hour, the commission adjourned, to meet again on October 20 in its offices at 1626 K st. nw., which will be open in a few days.

Mr. Hoover, looking quite hale for years, paused to chat and to give out a statement, in which he said the commission is the most formidable attempt yet made for independent review and advice on administrative reform. He observed that not only was the commission set up with the cooperation of the President and both Houses of Congress, but that both political parties joined in the effort.

Political Issues Avoided

"In order that there should be no political questions involved," Mr. Hoover said, "the Congress has arranged that no report will be required until after the next election."

Mr. Hoover said that efforts to streamline the Federal Government had been under way since President Taft's time and that such progress was made, but that reform never caught up with the growth of the Government. Thus, in about 30 years the number of Federal civilian employes has grown from 4300 per million population to 21,300.

Every President for 40 years, Mr. Hoover said, has been overburdened by the task of administering the 40 independent offices as well as the 10 executive departments.

Other Commission Members

The commission has $750,000 to hire a staff, meet expenses and pay private citizen members $50 a working day.

Besides Mr. Hoover, Acheson and Brown, the commissioners are Secretary of Defense Forrestal, Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming, George H. Meade, James Rowe, Representative Carter Manasco (D., Ala.), Senator Aiken (R., Vt.) and McClellan (D., Ark.), Dr. James K. Pollock and Joseph P. Kennedy.

Russia Threatens Clergy, Catholic Priest Contends

Seoul, Korea, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Authorities in Soviet-occupied northern Korea are planning to "liquidate" Catholic and Protestant clergymen who refuse to use their positions to disseminate anti-United States propaganda, a Catholic priest asserted today.

Father Barnabus Kim, who escaped from the Soviet zone three weeks ago, said a prosecutor threatened him with execution unless he preached that "United States elections are capitalistic and for a special class, whereas Soviet elections represent real, genuine democracy."

He said north Korean school teachers are telling students that Catholics and Protestants are "anti-Communist and pro-United States"—the worst epithets which can be applied.

Democratic Chairman

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island will be a logical successor to Robert E. Hannegan as chairman of the Democratic National Committee. In the Senate he has a voting record that is closely in line with President Truman's attitude toward legislative problems during the last year. He has shown considerable vote-getting power on his own account, having been elected Governor of Rhode Island three times and winning the senatorship last year in the face of a Republican tide sweeping through most of New England and various other parts of the country. While he is identified with the liberal wing of the Democratic Party, he apparently has the confidence of most of the conservative elements as well.

Some grumbling is heard about the announcement of what is a virtual appointment for Mr. McGrath a month in advance of the meeting of the Democratic National Committee at which the new chairman is supposed to be chosen. As a practical matter, however, a presidential candidate usually handpicks his campaign manager. We think Mr. Truman and the Democratic Party are fortunate to have obtained the services of a man who will bring to the President's 1948 campaign the advantages of youth, vigor, prestige, political know-how and seasoned judgment. Senator McGrath may not be a second Jim Farley, but we should expect him to avoid a good many of the mistakes of his immediate predecessor, Mr. Hannegan.

Indeed, the only substantial argument against Mr. McGrath's assumption of the Democratic Committee chairmanship, in our opinion, is the fact that he is a United States Senator. Being a Senator is in itself a full-time job. There are a number of precedents for selecting members of Congress to head one of the major national party committees, including Speaker Martin's recent double duty as both Representative and chairman of the Republican National Committee. But it involves diversion of an influential legislator from his responsibilities in Congress, which is scarcely less unfortunate than diversion of a Cabinet member to tasks of party management.

Tom Sawyer Tito

Marshal Tito has made a clever appeal to the American sense of fair play by inviting six prominent Americans to visit Yugoslavia "to see for themselves what the true situation is." "A great misunderstanding has arisen among the American people," says Ambassador Kasanovitch's letter to former Secretary Byrnes, ". . . that Yugoslavia is supporting the civil war in Greece . . ." What could be more logical than for Mr. Byrnes, former Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, former Governor Stassen and three other designated Americans to get the facts from a visit to the Yugoslav-Greek frontier and thus correct the ill feeling that has grown up between the two countries? Whatever appeal the invitation might have in other circumstances, however, is dissipated by recollection of the background facts which the Yugoslav government chooses to ignore.

Chief among these facts is its refusal to cooperate with the United Nations Balkan Inquiry Commission which made a special investigation of the situation on the Yugoslav-Greek frontier. That body was as impartial as any group of investigators that might have been assembled. It brought back a severe indictment of Yugoslavia's undercover aggression against Greece. Obviously no unofficial group of Americans could disprove or discredit these findings by making an inspection trip under Tito's auspices. Such a venture would be under a cloud from the start—not because of any question as to the integrity of the unofficial visitors, but simply because the Yugoslav dictator could control what they would see and what they would not see.

Undoubtedly Tito is grasping at this straw for use against the Marshall policy because a previous visit by an unofficial group of Americans proved to be a substantial asset to him. What his government showed these visitors, a group of American Protestant ministers, brought a statement to the effect that there is complete freedom of worship in Yugoslavia about the time a Communist mob was beheading a Catholic priest. We do not believe that any American of standing would wish to be similarly used to cover up Tito's aggression. There are, of course, a number of ways in which the Yugoslavs can get the facts of the situation before the American people and the rest of the world. They can give the press free access to the disturbed areas so that news of day-to-day activities may be published. Or they can withdraw their objections to the creation of the proposed special committee by the U. N. General Assembly. Rejection of these fair methods of getting at the truth makes it all too evident that Tito is trying to use the six Americans for the same purpose for which Tom Sawyer used his gullible friends—to whitewash his front fence.

Leaderless

No clear-cut policy to meet the present emergency came out of yesterday's conference between the President and the leaders of Congress. An extra session was not ruled out, but a dim view must now be taken of the prospect. The President announced that the committees on foreign affairs and appropriations would be called together "at the earliest possible moment" to study a stopgap program of aid and to decide whether a special session is advisable. Many of the members are traveling abroad, so that the date on which they can be brought together is as uncertain as the length of time it will take the committees to report, consult and jointly recommend. If the Senate Appropriations Committee keeps to its original plan, which is to sail for Europe on October 8, it will not be able to meet before mid-November, which is the scheduled date of return.

The most charitable explanation of this delay is our slow-action system of government and its dependence upon prior agreement by congressional committees covering the same ground. But some there are who will explain the delay in terms of buck-passing between the Republican leadership and the President. Perhaps, indeed, this is the price of divided government. But the "after you, Alphonse," attitude on the part of Mr. Truman is in strange contrast to the assertion of leadership which the President manifested in his sweeping veto of the Taft-Hartley bill.

In the meantime the President cannot get a standstill agreement out of events. Our farmers will continue to fill the bellies of our pigs and our cattle with wheat which may be at a premium this winter for human consumption. The inseparable twins of hunger and unrest will grow in western Europe. At home the inflation will gather momentum. The President, unlike Speaker Martin, is under no illusions about the gravity of the situation abroad. The newspapermen, evidently, did not question him about the equal seriousness of the situation at home, where, as his Controller of the Currency, Mr. Preston Delano, warned the Nation last weekend, inflation is "in full swing." In these circumstances the murmurs are likely to arise from the country at large as to why their representatives are not attending to the Nation's business in Washington.

Little Black Sambo

Few of our readers need to be reminded that we have taken some part in the battle against race discrimination in Washington; but there is such a thing as damaging a good cause by pressing it to the point of absurdity. And this, it seems to us, is precisely what Mr. Stephen Spottswood, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and some other spokesmen for the Negro community, are doing in their present outcry against the reading of the nursery story called Little Black Sambo. We cannot believe that the humorless touchiness reflected in these protests represents the attitude of Negroes in general.

We also wonder whether those who are making the protests have even bothered to read the story. In the first place it is by no means clear that the characters in it are Negroes. The locale of the story seems to be an Indian jungle, and in calling them black the author may or may not have had in mind one of the Andamanesian tribes of upper India. However, the names of the characters are plainly of African derivation and their costumes, as represented in the illustrations, are an ingenious and rather charming blend of African and Oriental dress. So it is probable that in making up the story Mrs. Bannerman had no race in particular in mind, but simply wished to give it an exotic touch for greater interest. In the second place, Little Black Sambo, whatever his race, is an entirely sympathetic character with whom the young listener promptly identifies himself. He has a rather exciting adventure with several predatory tigers, gets the better of them, and distinguishes himself by the prodigious feat of eating 167 pancakes shortened with tiger-butter.

As a story, it is perhaps pretty slight and trivial stuff; but it has been an immense favorite for two generations and has attained to the status of a nursery classic. Moreover, as good a case as any that our Negro friends can make against Little Black Sambo, or a better one, could be made against almost every other celebrated children's book. A Voyage to Lilliput, for example, makes sport of the sacramental beliefs of both Catholics and Anglicans; Robinson Crusoe seems to disparage the social status of Carib Indians; Hiawatha suggests that the North American Indians suffer from a mental disorder called echolalia; The Wind in the Willows fosters prejudice against the British middle classes by representing them in the guise of rats and toads; Mother Goose contains a scandalous libel against the Welsh; A Child's Garden of Verses encourages an attitude of smug superiority toward Sioux and Crow Indians, Esquimaux, Turks and Japanese.

Such analogies could be strung out indefinitely; and if applied to literature in general would result in a total censorship. If A Merchant of Venice were to be banished from the libraries because it is unfair to Jews, or Romeo and Juliet because it represents the Italians as silly and quarrelsome and given to traffic in poisons, or Macbeth because it shows the Scots as superstitious and turbulent, or the Iliad because it represents the Greeks as a somewhat barbarous people, there would presently be no literature left.

That there are some zealots who are willing to carry matters to such an extreme was indicated not long ago when the New York Herald-Tribune published a cartoon by the celebrated J. N. Darling, in which price inflation was represented by the figure of Topsy, from Uncle Tom's Cabin. The idea was that "Topsy didn't just grow," but was the child of low production on the one side and excessive demand on the other. The cartoon was promptly denounced as an insult to the Negro race; some said that its purpose was to insinuate that Negroes were somehow responsible for the high prices. Mr. Benjamin Davis, a Negro Communist councilman, called it "the most vicious, most obscene" piece of race propaganda ever seen outside of Julius Streicher's paper Der Sturmer.

This of course is complete nonsense. The cartoonist used the figure of Topsy to illustrate his point, not because she was a Negro, but merely because she was a literary character and familiar to everybody. She had been used a hundred times before by other cartoonists as a symbol of some sudden and irrational growth. However, the protestants were not appeased when the Herald-Tribune reminded them that their cartoonists had also used the distorted figures of white persons as symbols of various evils, including inflation. To insist that Negroes be given equal rights with other citizens is one thing; to insist that their peculiar sensibilities entitle them to exercise a kind of censorship is quite another. It smacks of the fanaticism which Mr. Santayana has defined as, "redoubling your efforts after you have forgotten your aims."

Palestine

It is no wonder that the British have put the world on notice of their intention to give up their mandate in Palestine and withdraw their troops. The wonder lies in the tardiness of the decision. The cost of the army in Palestine has become unbearable to a country that must now husband all its resources in trying to make both ends meet. Strategical concepts, moreover, have changed, and much of the importance of Palestine in this respect has been lost. Formerly Britain's "life-line" was the Mediterranean, but, as a result of the pending withdrawal from Egypt and of experience during the war with a closed Mediterranean, the British are making a new "Mediterranean" by air and road across the waist of Africa. This reduces the strategic significance of Palestine, though a British withdrawal would leave British troops and influence in Transjordania cut off from the sea, and jeopardize Britain's oil properties in the Middle East. Finally, British troops in Palestine, trying to keep order in an atmosphere of hate, are in danger of becoming demoralized.

The objection to the Creech-Jones announcement is not in the withdrawal as such, but in the intimation that the British will not share in the responsibility of enforcing a United Nations solution, if that solution does not meet with the approval of both Jew and Arab. This will simply encourage the intransigence of the Arabs, whose leaders are speaking as one in threatening to fight partition, no matter on what basis, to the death. In our view partition, as recommended in the majority report of U. N.'s Palestine Commission, is the least offensive solution, and this was recommended as long ago as 1937 by Britain's Peel Commission. However, there is room for bargaining over the particular partition plan before the United Nations; for instance, the Arabs ought to have Jaffa; and it may be that, around the conference, the Arabs may agree on a compromise.

The British spokesman who made the announcement to the General Assembly is Britain's Colonial Secretary. Mr. Creech-Jones is the leader in the group within the British government which long ago sought to have partition accepted as a definite objective. Mr. Bevin would not agree. In the present statement there are signs of a split cabinet covering up disagreement in a compromise with the stress on withdrawal. On the American side there has been the same reluctance to face the issue squarely. Commission after commission has reported on the Palestine problem, but report after report has been shelved. But decision can be avoided no longer, now that a commission of the United Nations has come out for partition. All members of the United Nations are pledged to support the world organization, and, whatever it decides, all nations must share the responsibility of enforcing a decision. Alas, as a result of Russia's blocking tactics, no international police force is available, but an ad hoc force may have to be created, if the Arabs refuse to abide by the U. N. decision. No nation should shoulder the task by itself, just as no nation should shrink from it.

UNQUENCHED

When crimson runs from bough to bough,
Remembering this, remember how
Love, in a season hushed and warm,
Took all the startled woods by storm.

The leaves are ash that once were flame;
The branches burn each year the same,
And quench themselves in the frosty air,
But the heart still burns when the branch is bare.

"Steel Bottlenecks"

It is only a half truth when you write in your editorial of September 26, "Steel Bottlenecks," that steel executives are "governed by considerations of cost and profitability." Steel men are not so exclusively guided. They know, even if your editorial writer does not, that they are vested with an immense public responsibility. The steel industry is concerned with the state of public opinion, the effects of their activities on the economic conditions of the country, and with the disposition of the Administration toward them.

If the steel industry were convinced that the public and the Administration sought an increase in steel capacity, it would have no alternative but to increase capacity. Steel men realize that they must have the confidence of the American people if they are to maintain their own privileges and positions. Hence, because the steel industry is guided by public opinion, it is necessary that newspapers like The Washington Post, which assumes the responsibility of informing the public, make a determination of whether or not the present capacity for steel is large enough to provide full employment. Upon your findings should your editorial on the expansion or nonexpansion of steel capacity be based. If The Washington Post is to fulfill its trust, it should not defend special privilege by resort to ignorance of what constitutes our capitalist system. M. B.

Russia and Korea

Russia's proposal to the Russo-American Joint Conference in Seoul, through her delegate, Col. General Shtikov, for a simultaneous withdrawal of Russian and American troops, from Korea in the early part of 1948, evokes comment.

We believe it is a move for three objectives of Russia. The first is to counteract General Marshall's leadership of Korean independence problem to the United Nations General Assembly; the second is to create pro-Russian feeling among the Koreans; the third is to have the Russian - organized Korean Communist army in North Korea to take up the task of communizing the whole of Korea by force when the Russian troops step aside.

These must never happen in Korea, for, if they happen, there will be worse civil war in Korea than in China; and if Korea falls within the orbit of communism, that will be the starting point of another world war.

The first requisite to a solution is to allow the 90 per cent non-Communist Korean population and the 10 per cent Communist minority to form a government of their own by an immediate general election and let them build Korea into a truly democratic country, not a police state.

When Korea's problem is so settled, then, Russia and the United States can withdraw their troops simultaneously from Korea, leaving Korea to work out her destiny as a sovereign state.

Kind Word

A short time ago my wife and I took a trip to Texas. One morning she decided to take a regular city bus and go downtown and shop. Returning to our hotel she was all smiles and very happy. I asked her why she was so cheerful. She answered that the people were so considerate, polite and so anxious to assist and be helpful.

The moral of this story is: If only a kind word will make someone happy, let's do it. J. WILL.

Withdrawing Aid

Is it not time for America's statesmen to seriously consider the advisability of withdrawing most United States aid from Europe? True, the probable result would be that much of Europe would be taken over by the Communists. However, it appears that the infiltration tactics of the Reds are likely to be successful anyway in Italy, France and probably Greece, in spite of American efforts to check communism. Hence, why should America continue to pour food, materials and money into these countries for the ultimate benefit of Russia?

The resultant savings of resources and human effort would strengthen the United States economy to make North and South America a stanch bulwark of free men and free private enterprise.

Such action would probably stimulate the leaders and citizens of rightist nations to make a supreme attempt to resist communism which might be successful. Also it would compel all countries now expecting to subsist on American aid to buckle down to hard work to increase their production of food and other goods.

If Russia should have to use her not-too-abundant resources to try to provide the rest of Europe with food and other supplies, her plans to convert other nations to "Communist culture" might backfire by weakening her own economy.

Voluntary Rationing

If every healthy adult in our country gave up one or two slices of bread each day, think of the enormous amount of wheat and fat, which is not essential to our well-being, that could be accumulated to save starving people around the world. That goes for a meatless day each week also, or nonessential clothing purchases. It could help the health and conscience of many of us. It would be a fine though small personal contribution to a big cause.

At this time I believe that if a concerted adult educational program was put forth by all organizations and individuals connected with food, clothing, health and humanitarian efforts, we would have less difficulty acquiring food and clothing for those in great need.

Let food stores display weekly ads which include various abundantly supplied foods and not advertise items of which there is a shortage, or foreign export need. Let magazines, newspapers and radio writers show people how to be healthier, better looking and more economical by "making the pattern fit the cloth," and not the reverse.

Let us have more clothing and style manufacturers accent accessories to refurbish our old clothes. This would give "the new look" at low cost. Let newspapers publish in a front page box a United Nations menu, i. e., a different country each day and what they must eat to try to survive.

Let us start with a six-week crusade for everyone to give up something now until Thanksgiving. We would then have a sincere and realistic day of thanks, a job well done for ourselves and for those less fortunate than we are.

Americans can put the brakes on inflation by cutting down our supply and demand, while we send aid to our world neighbors. If we can force prices down we help ourselves and enable our neighbors to buy more from us.

Deriding Russia

It is time to add ridicule to refutation of Russia's false pretenses, her baseless charges and her assumption of omniscience. The Kremlin is untouched by criticism, ignores disclaimers and pursues its charted course with all the conceit and arrogance of any ancient tyranny.

Serious discussion feeds the egotism of despots, but well-deserved satire exposes bluff with insidious effect. Caustic attacks are forgotten, but the lampoon, the farcical anecdote, the cutting quip, passes from mouth to mouth, evades, censors, crosses boundaries, penetrates Iron Curtains. Russia talks of freeing the world and enslaves millions on mere suspicion of independent opinion. Her continued efforts to force adoption of Russian creeds, against the judgment of the world, have really become ludicrous. They should be subjected to the cutting jest that so often travels faster and farther than sober fact. Discredit Russian duplicity by refusing to take seriously irrational, even offensive, tirades from Moscow.

The best answer to Russia's exaggerated and false statements is to challenge every one with persistent ridicule. PAUL HUDSON.

Prize Cartoon

I nominate Herblock's cartoon of September 26 for the Pulitzer Prize.

No lecture that I have heard tells so simply the game of power politics that is being played by the United States and the U. S. S. R. and the virtual nonexistence of the U. N. The cartoon should be included in any course that carries out Secretary of State Marshall's suggestion that the American people ought to know more about U. N.

Herblock's genius resides in his ability to make his basic thesis understandable to millions while adding a dash of subtlety for the intelligentsia. I suspect that his naive little lady who wants a flag that says U. N. represents the women's clubs that are still looking to U. N. as the great hope of mankind while we men are rushing to see what the game is really like. But with a nod to the intelligent women Herblock has included three of them in the mob rushing to see the game. And there is even one boy, representing youth organizations I suppose, who wants to get a preview of the game that he may have to "play" when he grows up.

Japanese Immigration

It seems that H. J. McClatchy, executive secretary, California Joint Immigration Committee, whose letter appeared in The Washington Post of September 16, is interested in promoting one of the causes of our late war for survival, the Japanese Exclusion Act, by appealing to the emotions. I refer to his "entering wedge by hordes of Japanese immigrants." He also uses horrors of war as a criterion for his views on exclusion.

Odd as it seems, prior to DeWitt's mass evacuation policy, the more reliable texts represented the Japanese as "deeply respectful to parents; the diet is meager but the people perform prodigies of work on it; the country as a whole is orderly and law abiding; personal honesty seems to be the rule; articles left in public places are almost invariably returned. Crimes of violence, excepting political violence, are rare and sex crimes almost unknown." Comparing this with the United States crime statistics, perhaps a little of this "horde" could be assimilated without too much harm.

The writer of this letter served in the P. T. O. and saw some of the sadistic treatment given Japanese prisoners by creatures motivated by racial complexes.

Calling Washington

By Marquis Childs

Displaced Greeks

SALONIKA, GREECE — From strife-torn Macedonia and Thrace refugees have come pouring into this crowded seaport city. Some have been here for more than a year, with no work and only a pittance provided by the government to live on.

As the rains begin with winter just ahead, this becomes an increasingly serious problem—more serious, perhaps, than the government in Athens realizes. After another winter of idleness and hunger these people may come to feel that if this is all their government can offer, then communism is the only choice.

In one apartment house the municipal authorities have housed about a hundred refugee families. I saw a family of mother, father and nine children living in one small room. In the corridor the mother was cooking over an open fire laid on an overturned radiator.

A half dozen other families had their fires in the same corridor. The head of the household told a familiar story—a raid by the guerillas on their village in Thrace, their house burned to the ground, everything of value seized and then flight to safety. He was fortunate, he said, because sometimes he was able to get one day of work in a week.

The 2500 families housed in the town are the favored ones, even though they live in privation and desperate overcrowding. Most of the 200,000 to 250,000 refugees —any figure is a guess—are finding whatever shelter they can for themselves. The government gives them 750 drachmas per person, equivalent to about 15 cents, and a small ration of flour.

NOT ALL the refugees are in the Salonika area. They tend to push into the larger towns for safety. Municipal authorities have in many instances got the help of the gendarmerie to keep the number down to manageable proportions.

While the winter will make the plight of the refugees more precarious, it will at the same time damp down the fighting in the mountains. When snow lies on the mountains and trails become impassable, guerilla operations of necessity are almost at a standstill.

According to reports that may have considerable basis in truth, the guerillas are tired and disheartened. They have not received the volume of aid from across the border that they had anticipated. All such reports, of course, must be taken with a generous handful of salt, since through the summer and into the fall the rebel bands have been able to keep on the offensive.

The fact that the offer of general amnesty comes at this time is highly significant. It comes as the stragglers and the half-hearted are longing to leave the mountains. It comes with the pledged word of Prime Minister Sophoulis, who has the respect of most Greeks of whatever political party. And, even more important, it is underwritten by the Americans who helped to bring it about.

THE NUMBER to surrender in the month of amnesty may be much smaller than the 50 per cent estimate of Sophoulis. But even if the final total should be negligible, the amnesty is a gain of the first importance. Communist propaganda out of Moscow and on the rebel radio screams that the Sophoulis government is nothing but a "show window for American imperialism." This in itself is a confession that the new government and the amnesty are a victory.

Some observers, however, are afraid that the government is not working hard enough to propagandize the amnesty and its terms. Unfortunately, the American mission is not equipped to give any assistance in this direction.

One of the most powerful appeals would be the offer of a job. Many who surrender will be unable to go back to their own villages, where the bitterness against the guerillas is intense. If they believed they could get work on an American road-building project, it would be a definite inducement to give up.

But the long series of delays in getting the American program started makes this impossible. The United States Army Engineers, working as civilians, are just now laying out the project. Contracts are being let and supervisors are arriving daily.

While "too late" is too pessimistic a tag to pin on the American program, certainly it is late. All possible speed will be necessary to get work started before winter sets in and hope for millions in this tragic country is suspended once again.

"Political Wives"

Anent your very interesting editorial of September 26 concerning Mrs. Robert A. Taft, with which I heartily agree, why not nominate Mrs. Taft for President.

Although a life-long Democrat and a confirmed New Dealer, I would be tempted to vote for her—if I had a vote.

It would be refreshing to have a President who has a sense of humor which is not slap-stick. Besides, Mrs. Taft is a very able daughter of an able father.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Cold War XIII

IN THIS article we may consider the question of how we are to relate our role in the United Nations to our policy in the conflict with Russia.

Lippmann

Mr. X does not deal with this question. But the State Department, in its attempt to operate under the Truman Doctrine, has shown where that doctrine would take us. It would take us to the destruction of the U. N.

THE CHARTER and the organization of the United Nations are designed to maintain peace after settlement of the Second World War has been arrived at. Until there is a settlement of that war, the United Nations does not come of age: it is growing up, it is at school, it is learning and practicing, it is testing its procedure, gaining experience. During this period, which will not come to an end until the great powers have agreed on peace treaties, the United Nations cannot deal with disputes that involve the balance of power in the world. The balance of power has to be redressed and settled in the peace treaties by the great powers themselves, principally, as I have tried to show, by the withdrawal of their armies from the continent of Europe.

Until such a settlement is reached, the United Nations has to be protected by its supporters from the strains, the burdens, the discredit, of having to deal with issues that it is not designed to deal with.

The true friends of the United Nations will, therefore, be opposed to entangling the world organization in the Soviet-American conflict. No good and nothing but harm can come of using the Security Council and the Assembly as an arena of the great dispute, or of acting as if we did not realize the inherent limitations of the Charter and thought that somehow we could by main force and awkwardness use the United Nations organization to overawe and compel the Russians. All that can come of that is to discredit the United Nations on issues that it cannot settle and thus to foreclose the future of the U. N., which can begin only if and when these issues have been settled.

JUDGING BY the speeches in the Greek affair, of the British and the American delegates, Sir Alexander Cadogan and Mr. Herschel Johnson appear to be acting on instructions which treat the U. N. as expendible in our conflict with Russia. It is a great pity. Nothing is being accomplished to win the conflict, to assuage it, or to settle it. But the U. N., which should be preserved as the last best hope of mankind that the conflict can be settled and a peace achieved, is being chewed up. The seed corn is being devoured.

Why? Because the policy of containment, as Mr. X has exposed it to the world, does not have as its objective a settlement of the conflict with Russia. It is therefore implicit in the policy that the U. N. has not future as a universal society, and that either the U. N. will be cast aside like the League of Nations, or it will be transformed into an anti-Soviet coalition. In either event the U. N. will have been destroyed.

American Initiative

By Sumner Welles

General Assembly's Role

WHEN DR. EVATT, the Australian Minister for External Affairs, comes to town it is like a welcome breath of fresh air. For Dr. Evatt sees straight and he talks straight.

When he reached New York he analyzed the problems which the United Nations today confronts. Speaking of the worldwide sense of frustration caused by the way in which the Soviet veto has crippled the Security Council, and by the consequent inability of the Council to take any effective action in many vital matters, Dr. Evatt declared that the Assembly's outstanding obligation was to prove that it was more responsive to world opinion than the Security Council.

As I see it, that is the first of the two great tests the Assembly now confronts. The Security Council is primarily the agency of the major governments.

The second test is whether the Assembly can prove itself a more effective force in maintaining world peace than what was originally envisaged as the cooperative action of the major powers operating through the Security Council. Such cooperative action has not been forthcoming, and as a result the Council cannot yet serve the purpose for which it was created.

THE AMERICAN initiative represented by Secretary Marshall's opening address to the Assembly must be analyzed in that light. Will the proposals offered by the American Government strengthen the United Nations, make for international cooperation, facilitate the solution of the critical problems which so far remain unsolved, be calculated to safeguard humanity from a new war, and advance economic security and the cause of human liberty?

There can be little question that Secretary Marshall's recommendations that the Assembly take prompt action in bringing about a just solution of the Palestine question and in finding the means by which the Koreans can attain their promised independence; reassume jurisdiction of the problem of the control of atomic energy, and undertake at some more auspicious time the regulation of conventional armaments—all involve matters legitimately within the authority of the Assembly.

It is the first three of Secretary Marshall's seven proposals that demand more scrutiny.

THE SOVIET-sponsored attempts of Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria to undermine the independence of Greece unquestionably endanger international peace. The exercise of the Soviet veto has prevented the Security Council from continuing its efforts to terminate this danger. Under Article 11 of the Charter the General Assembly is empowered to recommend such action as it may deem necessary either to the Security Council or directly to the states involved. It possesses no enforcement agencies, however, by which its recommendations can be carried out.

While the establishment by the Assembly of a Balkan commission would keep public opinion fully advised of the nature and extent of any further encroachments upon Greek sovereignty, remedial action involving force should, under the Charter, be taken by the Security Council itself, unless the need for self-defense arises, as foreseen by Article 51 of the Charter.

Secretary Marshall's proposal for the establishment by the Assembly of a standing committee on peace and security would prove to be a mighty bulwark for peace at this most critical moment.

It is a proposal first advanced by the American Association for the United Nations last June. If adopted by the Assembly, it would provide for a better working relationship between the Security Council and the Assembly. It would also make certain that peoples in every part of the world could be kept more closely informed of every threat to world order.

SECRETARY MARSHALL'S proposal that the delegates to the Assembly act now to restrict the excercise of the veto in the Security Council raises what is inherently a question of timing and of political expediency. Under present conditions the Soviet Union will not agree to a fundamental change in rules which would limit the exercise of this great-power right—a right that was undoubtedly a determining factor in bringing about the entrance of Russia into the United Nations.

The words of Secretary General Trygve Lie—in an address to the Assembly which merited far greater consideration than it received—are wholly true: "The veto issue is more of a symptom than a cause."

The restriction of the veto will not cure the basic difficulty. That can only be cured if a final and successful effort can be made by American diplomacy to remove the chief causes for the increasing tension between Russia and the United States.

SHOULD THE Assembly now take the step proposed by the United States such action might well prove to be the issue which would bring about the withdrawal of the Soviet Union from the United Nations, and transform a universal organization into an anti-Russian alliance. That would vastly increase the likelihood of a world conflict.

The future of the United Nations, and in a very real sense the fate of the world, will depend upon the courage and the wisdom with which the delegates to the present session of the General Assembly meet the challenge offered them. They also will depend upon the capacity of the United States to transform a diplomacy which is today largely negative into a diplomacy which seeks the constructive solution rather than the show-down.

Gasperi at Bay

By Barnet Nover

Will Our Aid Come Soon Enough?

IT BEGINS to look as if the beleaguered government of Alcide de Gasperi in Italy will emerge triumphant from its present crucial bout with Palmiro Togliatti's Communists and their left-wing Socialist allies.

NOVER

The real test will come in about a week's time when the Constituent Assembly votes on the heatedly debated Communist motion to unseat the de Gasperi regime.

If, at that time, the Assembly rejects the motion and sustains the government, as now appears likely, the victor will not only be de Gasperi but also and even more the United States, the loser not only Togliatti but also the Kremlin.

LET US MAKE no mistake about it. The current political struggle in the peninsula has from its inception been much more than a struggle between two Italian factions. It has been a major incident in that world-wide political struggle whose chief protagonists are Russia and the United States.

That struggle is certain to go on whatever happens in Italy. But if de Gasperi wins and if this country then proceeds to rush to Italy the aid she so desperately needs to tide her over the coming winter, Togliatti's defeat may be turned into a rout. In that event a real threat to the success of the Marshall plan will have been overcome.

IT IS OF MORE than passing interest that during the Assembly's debate on the nonconfidence motion, Togliatti's heaviest guns were directed not at de Gasperi but at the United States. And his particular target was the Marshall Plan.

In participating in the recent Paris conference of 16 nations, the de Gasperi regime was accused by the Communists of selling out to Wall Street. This is the official line of Communist parties everywhere; it is the view expounded by Moscow. We can assume from it that if Togliatti had his way and the Communists and left-wing Socialists again became part of the government coalition Italy's withdrawal from the Marshall Plan would inevitably follow.

IT IS NO secret that Russia is out to make the Marshall Plan inoperative.

The men in the Kremlin are placing great reliance on the incapacity of democracies, particularly of the American democracy, to move with the vigor and speed which western Europe's desperate situation demands. The hesitation of the Truman Administration in summoning Congress into special session has given them much aid and comfort.

They are not depending alone on such negative possibilities as dilatory and inadequate action by the American Congress to win the battle against the Marshall Plan. They are attacking it all along the line.

They realize that if the Marshall Plan does go into effect and Europe recovers they will have to postpone indefinitely and perhaps abandon altogether their hope of dragooning the western countries of the continent into their camp.

Since, of all the countries of western Europe, Italy seemed least capable of standing the high-pressure tactics in which the Communists are schooled, the Reds have concentrated their efforts on that country.

THE PARLIAMENTARY moves employed by Togliatti to unseat de Gasperi were only part and the minor part of his campaign.

Through their control of many of the trade unions the Communists recently started a series of strikes whose chief purpose was political rather than economic. They have egged on the peasants to seize the large estates. They have held anti-government demonstrations throughout the peninsula.

They have not yet exhausted their bag of tricks. But it begins to look as if their campaign has failed to achieve its major objective which was to weaken the government, demonstrate its incapacity to maintain order and thus force its overthrow.

Inside the Assembly a powerful blow was dealt Togliatti and his allies by Giuseppe Saragat, who leads the Socialist faction that does not believe in union with the Communists. In addition to denouncing Togliatti, Saragat indicated his readiness to "collaborate with any truly democratic government."

This split in Italian left-wing ranks can save de Gasperi. If it leads to a broadening of the base of his government to include anti-Communist elements of the Left it can greatly increase the far from adequate parliamentary support de Gasperi has thus far had.

For real salvation during these next critical months, de Gasperi would still have to look to the outside — particularly to the United States. Because of lack of food and fuel Italy faces her most desperate winter since the end of the war.

Hunger and cold are the best allies of the Communists. Delay by this country in providing interim aid to Italy and to France —where the situation is almost as serious—would play right into Stalin's hands.

Echols Warns of Peril to U. S. In Dissipated Air Supremacy

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Spokesman for the aircraft industry warned yesterday that Russia is greatly expanding its air power while American plane production has fallen to "extremely dangerous" prewar lows.

Seven top plane builders appeared before President Truman's Air Policy Commission during the day to stress one major fact:

The United States has dissipated its war-built air supremecy and could not expand production fast enough to meet a war emergency.

Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, retired, wartime AAF procurement chief now heading the Aircraft Inductries Association, declared that a third World War would open with an attack on American industrial areas.

Must Equal Defense Need

"We must realize and must bring the American people to the realization that when that attack comes," he added, "our defeat is inevitable if our immediate ability to produce is not equal to our minimum requirements for successful defense.

"The sole factor of an airforce 'in being' equipped with large number of operating planes, could be our Maginot Line, lulling our people into a false sense of security and condemning us to defeat by our own complacency."

At present, General Echols said, U. S. air forces "are living off their fat." Since only from 1000 to 1500 new planes are being delivered each year, he added, within five years only 5000 of the 14,000 active planes of the Air Force and Navy will be modern craft.

He advocated long-range planning for air power—a minimum five-year procurement plan of a size to keep the aircraft industry capable of expansion rapidly after we receive a warning that war is near.

Based on One-Year Warning

The Armed Services plans for such an expansion are based on our receiving a one-year warning of conflict, Echols said.

Have we such a warning now, he was asked?

"I think you're beginning to get one," Echols replied.

After hearing Echols' statement that American plane output now is below 1939 levels, members of the commission inquired about what Russia is doing.

"I think Russia is doing everything it possibly can to develop air power," he replied. "And I think they can. They have the German know-how along with the start they already had."

Igor I. Sikorsky, engineering manager of the Sikorsky aircraft division of United Aircraft Corp. and a leading air expert, backed up General Echols' statement.

Confirmed by Foreign Airmen

The veteran plane designer, who has just returned from an inspection of British and French aircraft factories, said that foreign airmen all confirmed that the Soviets are going full speed ahead in aircraft development and construction.

Federal Budget Put in Black For First Time in Fiscal Year

The Government's budget moved into the black yesterday for the first time this fiscal year.

Treasury records disclosed a surplus of $14,042,407.85 due to a strong flow of quarterly corporation and individual nicome tax payments since mid-September.

These payments more than wiped out a deficit of over $1,500,000,000 that existed early this month.

The newly-established surplus made the budget position for the present fiscal year starting last July better by $202,874,153.11 than at this pofnt in the last fiscal year.

In Line With Prediction

Government officials told a reporter that the position is in line with President Truman's August prediction of a $4,667,000,000 surplus at the end of this fiscal year next June 30 compared with the $753,787,000 surplus registered last fiscal year.

Apparent slowness in overcoming the deficit this fiscal year was attributed mainly to the rapidity with which Britian has drawn upon the $1,700,000,000 in loan funds she is budgeted to spend in the current year.

Tax receipts this year, at $9,281,075,000, are $151,081,000 above those of this time last year.

Expenditures Decrease

Budget expenditures, at $9,267,032,797, were running $51,793,120 below the comparative period of last year.

Meanwhile, the public debt is down to $259,047,648,979.48, or $6,568,532,257 below this time last year.

The decrease in debt is partly due to the cashing of $854,939,400 in GI terminal leave bonds since they became eligible for cashing September 2.

These bonds, totalling $1,838,000,000 when cashing began, count as Government debt. But money laid out to cash them is not charged against this year's budget since the bonds were written off as an expenditure in last year's budget even though no cash was paid out then.

Cult Hides Girl, Bitten by Snake, From Doctors

Stone Creek, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—The welfare of 12-year-old Faye Noland was a matter of concern to authorities of southwest Virginia and eastern Kentucky, but elders of a mountain cult expressed the belief her faith would heal her from the effects of a snake bite.

The Cawood, Ky., child was bitten by a rattlesnake during religious ceremonies last week and her mother, Mrs. Flora Noland—who recently served a sentence of 30 days for snake handling at a religious ceremony—said Faye had been taken to a hideout where "doctors can't bother her with their medicine. She will recover without their help."

Health authorities on the Kentucky side of the line said that when they last saw the child shortly after she was bitten her hand was badly swollen and appeared gangrenous.

Apartment Fire Leaves 4 Families Without Homes

Fire caused by an overheated oil stove yesterday destroyed a 13-room apartment house at Vista, Md., leaving four families homeless. The one-floor frame structure and practically all of the belongings of the four families were a total loss.

Four volunteer fire departments, West Lanham, Cottage City, Bladensburg and Glenndale, fought the fire for more than an hour before it was brought under control. The fireman were hampered by lack of adequate water facilities.

W. A. Davis, owner of the building, who lives nearby, estimated that it will cost him $3000 or more to rebuild and that the property of the tenants amounted to another $2000.

Those made homeless were: Mr. and Mrs. Lacy Wilkins and their nine children, oldest of whom is 10; Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Spriggs and their one child; James Jones and his two children; and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jackson and two roomers. Neighbors housed the families last night.

Mexico to Pay Last of Oil Debt

The Mexican Embassy said yesterday that it will deliver to the State Department today a check for $4,500,000 as Mexico's final payment for United States oil properties expropriated in 1938.

The payment, the embassy spokesman said, will wipe out the debt of $23,995,991 and interest on the oil properties taken over by the Mexican government March 18, 1938.

The embassy spokesman said the embassy has received the check from the Mexican government's financial office in New York. It will be presented to a top-rank State Department official in a ceremony at the department today, he said.

Vaughan Asks Guard Merger With Reserve

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Merger of the National Guard and the Organized Reserve into a single Federal force was advocated yesterday by Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughn, aide to President Truman.

Gen. Vaughan

"Control over the National Guard, now divided between the States and the Federal Government," Vaughn wrote in The Reserve Officer, organ of the Reserve Officer's Association, "should be unified. Thus a large financial burden would be lifted from the States. States such as New York and California have, under the present plan for the National Guard, an authorized army nearly as large as the Regular Army was in 1939.

"A State can have no need for so great an army. In peacetime and in time of war, control would pass to the Federal Government. It would be well for the civilian forces to train in peacetime for the united function they would have to perform as a part of the Nation's unified military forces in time of war."

First Step Taken

Unification of the Regular services, Vaughan said, was the first step in "applying business organization" to the Nation's armed forces. The second step, he declared, should be a similar unification of the Army's civilian components.

Such a merger would not be in violation of the militia clause of the Constitution, the White House aide declared, since the States could continue to maintain militia forces. However, he wrote, "the Constitution imposes no obligation on the Federal Government to support or to federalize the State militia."

"The Constitution," Vaughan pointed out, "gives Congress the sole power to raise and support armies and a navy. It denies to the States, without the consent of Congress, the right to keep troops or ships of war in time of peace, or to engage in war unless invaded.

"Improvements in weapons and means of transportation have removed the possibility of any need for State troops to repel an invasion upon any one State."

At present, he said, the functions of the Guard and the Reserve are "overlapping" and "identical." Combining these forces into a single unit subject only to Federal control would, he declared, result in heightened efficiency.

Vaughan said his plan did not refer to the Naval and Marine Corps reserves. What he did suggest, he said, was "a merger of the National Guard Ground Forces with the Ground Forces Reserve and a merger of the National Guard Air Force with the Reserve Air Force."

Since World War II the National Guard Association has bitterly fought efforts of the Air Forces to assume control of the air units of the National Guard. Control of these units, they contend, is vested in the National Guard Bureau of the War Department by law.

Maintained State Guards

What Vaughan seemed to propose, observers here agreed, was in effect the organization of an active Reserve into which existing units of the National Guard would be integrated. They pointed out that during the war, when the National Guard was in Federal service, the States maintained State Guards, which they conceded appeared to meet the militia clause of the Constitution.

Efforts of the War Department to build a large Reserve alongside the greatly expanded postwar National Guard has resulted in competition between the two for manpower. Neither the Guard nor the Organized Reserve so far has been able to recruit at a rate considered satisfactory in view of United States world commitments.

Father of Girl Thrown Out After Lift Sues for $125,000

The father of a 14-year-old Greenbelt girl yesterday asked $125,000 damages for injuries suffered by the girl when, it was charged, she was hurled from a truck after resisting the advances of the driver.

In the suit, filed in District Court, the father, Warren W. Jones, 7C Ridge rd., Greenbelt, asks $100,000 in behalf of his daughter, Dorothy Mae, and $25,000 for himself.

Named defendants were: The National Truck Rental Co., Inc., 125 Q st. ne., Bernard Crozier Baker, 2405 22nd st. ne., alleged driver of the truck; Julius Silverman, Max Levine, Isadore Moorman, and Sam Gaetanon, then trading as Main Cleaners, 2149 Queen's Chapel rd. ne. The cleaning business has since been sold.

According to the suit, the girl accepted a lift from Baker on October 8. While driving toward Greenbelt, the suit charged, Baker "made indecent and immoral advances."

The suit asserted the girl suffered a fractured skull, laceration and "permanent" mental injuries.

Judge Dismisses Antitrust Suit On Traction Lines

Los Angeles, Sept. 29 (AP).—Federal Judge Leon R. Yankwich dismissed today a civil antitrust suit against the National City Lines, Inc., and other defendants in an alleged traction trust on the ground it was brought in the southern California district, but home offices of the parent concerns are in Illinois.

The opinion said there was nothing to prevent the Government from refiling the action in the Illinois Federal courts.

Judge Yankwich last month transferred a criminal conspiracy indictment against the alleged traction trust to the Illinois courts.

James M. McGrath, assistant prosecutor in the Department of Justice antitrust division, said he would recommend to Atty.-Gen. Tom Clark that Judge Yankwich's ruling be appealed to the United States Supreme Court.

What is 'Box Office?'

'Variety' Writes Off a Fine Drama

By Richard L. Coe

DOES A PLAY centering around a wartime Air Force general's tough problems, with an all-male cast, have a chance?

Such a play, "Command Decision," opens in News York tomorrow night. We saw it in Baltimore over the weekend, a finely written drama, excellently acted and produced as well as any playwright could wish. William Wister Haines adapted it from his novel, which stemmed from his wartime observations with the Eighth Air Force in England.

Baltimore received it well and even the dominantly femine audience which we saw it with was obviously engrossed. But Variety, that weekly which prides itself on being able to gauge public taste, finds it "wordy . . . limited . . . a total lack of romantic ingredients . . . and an extremely doubtful entry."

If the New York critics, whose Thursday reviews will either make or break this play, take the Variety approach, which goes on to remark on its lack of box office potentialities, we'll be mighty sorry. For timeliness, sex appeal and whether it will "clean up at the box office" are quite apart from the play's integrity.

The point is that Haines has written a taut and finely moving drama. His characters are well-drawn and just when you feel that one of them is a villian in the accepted sense, you learn the reasons for his actions and understand him as a human being.

The title is unusually apt. Brigadier General Dennis commands a heavy bombardment group in the days before the invasion, when the Continent was being softened up. He has discovered, officially, that the Germans are manufacturing jet planes beyond his bombers' fighter cover. It is clear to him that unless these factories are put out of commission, thousands of lives will be lost. He has so informed headquarters and the Allied chiefs in Washington, but with the channels of Army routine and the planning staff's need to "look at the global picture," his suggestions are ignored.

"Something for Nothing"

However, as a field commander, in certain circumstances he is able to use his own discretion. Knowing that it will mean the lives of most of his best men, he sees nothing to do but destroy the factories.

His choice is hardly so clear cut. The two-star general above him wants milkruns over the Channel and few losses to impress Allied chieftains. A war correspondent sees a story in General Dennis' apparent ruthlessness. A visiting Congressman spouts of "our boys" and how risks should not be taken. Another one-star general, an old classmate, itches to take over Dennis' command.

As these characters complicate the hero's decision, you begin to glimpse the terrifying aspects of what war today means, its enormous complexity, its effect on so many more people than the battles which glow so rosily through history. The theme of the play, expressed perhaps so early in the action that an audience might miss it, is that you can't get something for nothing.

True, such a play is "wordy," but Haines has a way with his words. Even in a general's headquarters, his lines are remarkably true to life. And embodying the sin of half-truths, as do most of the characters, necessarily requires attention of an audience. But because he's used the phrases and situations which so many of us knew too well, we've an idea that New York's opening nighters will be impressed.

Paul Kelly's Fine Acting

The single setting is a larger-than-life Nissen hut, skillfully designed by Jo Mielziner. The subordinate characters are perhaps too familiar, but they're none the less real: the sycophantic two-star general's aide, the outspoken sergeant, the ambitious-for-glory pilot, and the uncomfortable correspondent, who knows that though he's privileged he's not in the Army.

As for romance, we certainly didn't miss it nor did Ford's matinee audience. The bonds of friendship between the general and some of his men become, in Haines' knowing hands, far more tender than southern California leering.

Of the excellent company, film actor Paul Kelly stands out. We've respected his workmanlike screen performances, but—as the troubled general Kelly gives a superbly incisive portrait—creating a commander you can sympathize with. Jay Fassett and Paul McGrath have two other important roles, but Producer Kermit Bloomgarden has cast it too well to single out individuals.

Yes, like Haines, Bloomgarden and Kelly, we'll be waiting around for the death watchword on "Command Decision." It would be more than a shame for such a play to fail because it doesn't have "what the public wants."

TOMORROW: Richard L. Coe writes of Estelle Winwood and some other people about the town.

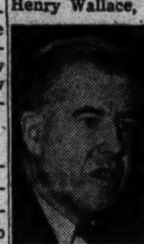

ONE'S A NEW FACE: Barbara Bel Geddes, with Henry Fonda, making her screen debut in "The Long Night," opening Wednesday at Keith's

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Morgenthau Attack Strikes Wallace Dumb

By Drew Pearson

Hawk-eyed Henry Morgenthau casually meandered into the office of his former Cabinet colleague, Henry Wallace, the other day for an informal chat which may have been their last for a long time.

Wallace

As the chat ended, Wallace stood up from behind his small, dust-cluttered editor's desk and said:

"Henry, why don't you and Mrs. Morgenthau come over to our farm tonight and have some supper with us?"

Morgenthau said that he couldn't accept the invitation because Mrs. Morgenthau wasn't well.

"I'm sorrier than I can tell you that we can't accept," Morgenthau added, with a nervous twang in his voice like the ticking of a bomb about to explode.

"You see, in a few days I don't think you're going to be talking to me any more, Henry."

Wallace was shocked, asked why. Morgenthau then told how he had turned his famous 900-volume diary over to Collier's to be published in a series of articles. He added that the first article would be on the newsstands in a short time.

"I'm afraid you won't like it very much, Henry," explained the doleful former Secretary of the Treasury, who with good reason FDR nick-named "Henry the Morgue." "It seems that in my early days in the Administration I thought you were quite a spender and said so. Collier's picked that out. They're using it in my first story."

When Wallace heard this, he didn't quite realize just how devastating the Collier's attack under Morgenthau's name would be, and merely laughed at Morgenthau's comment. Now that he has seen the articles, the close-lipped former Vice President hasn't even permitted his best friends to learn his real reaction.

Note—When Morgenthau signed up with Collier's, the magazine agreed to permit him to cut out any objectionable portions of the diary. Morgenthau sent the section on Mrs. Roosevelt to the former First Lady for her approval. He did the same with the part on Harry Hopkins, referring it to Hopkins' Boswell, famed playwright Robert E. Sherwood. Somehow, Morgenthau forgot to clear with Wallace.

Predictions Which Failed

Here are more statements which certain statement-makers would like to forget—this time from some of the barons of business who descended upon Washington to demand that price controls be lifted: Arthus Bruce, president, National Lumber Manufacturers Association:

"I am personally of the opinion that we would be better off if the Office of Price Administration were to die a natural death June 30th." (One year later, lumber had swept upward 73.4 per cent over the 1945 Price Control average.)

Wesley Hardenberg, president, the American Meat Institute:

"What is needed is for Congress to do away entirely with all OPA meat and livestock price regulations of every description so that consumers again may get the kind of meat they want, when they want it, at a fair competitive market."

John E. Jaeger, president, National Association of Retail Grocers, told the American Wholesale Grocers Association:

"We (retail grocers) feel that the time has arrived when . . . actions must be taken . . . to prevent renewal of the Price Control Act. Competition will benefit the consumer by making available ample food at reasonable prices."

Robert R. Watson, president, National Association of Manufacturers:

"If OPA is finally dead, women . . . will now use the canned meats and other goods they have on their shelves to see them through any temporary period of price rises. If OPA is eliminated entirely, prices of automobiles may be expected to reach normal within six months, while rents might take at least a year."

Al Guckenberger, executive secretary, New York State Food Merchants Association:

"Prices . . . will level off shortly as they had begun to do last August before controls were reimposed."

Herbert U. Nelson, executive vice president, National Association of Real Estate Boards:

"We've got a gang in power who thinks solely of the consumer, and usualy in terms of 'protecting' him."

It's Branca vs. Shea in Opener Today; McCarthy Quits Retirement to Pilot Bosox

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Baseball gets another nickel World Series tomorrow, and I guess you could say it's worth every penny of it, too. Certainly this is the worst Yankee team that ever won any of the 16 pennants, and Brooklyn got into the series with the club that was the best in the National League, but hardly a great one.

I'd say you'd have to call this one the Cinderella World Series. There are a lot of guys in tomorrow's starting lineups, including Managers Bucky Harris and Burt Shotton, who had no reasonable expectancy of getting into the big doings that commence tomorrow.

POVICH

Who goes to the pitching mound tomorrow? Ralph Branca, a 21-year-old kid from Brooklyn, who never pitched a World Series game in his life, much less start in a series opener. And for the Yankees it's 24-year-old Frank Shea, who wasn't even in the big leagues a year ago. It's the first time in World Series history that the American League ever started a rookie pitcher in the opening game.

Why, six months ago, the big leagues scarcely heard of Shea. All the talk in the Yankee camp was about Don Johnson, who Bucky Harris said was a sure-shot to be a big pitching star. Johnson probably won't work in the series. Shea was his roommate in spring training. The Yanks picked the right room on which to base their pitching hopes, but the wrong guy.

A YEAR AGO, George McQuinn was at the end of the trail, if was presumed. The Athletics gave the 36-year-old McQuinn his outright release after he failed to hit .250 and had slowed to a walk. He was supposed to be a superannuated guy without a baseball job. He'll be at first base tomorrow when they yell "play ball!"

And in left field for the Yankees it won't be Charley Keller. He's recovering from a spinal operation that removed him from the lineup in June. It's Johnny Lindell, perennial substitute, who will be in Keller's spot.

The Yankees' catcher will be Yogi Berra. He's a likely lad up from Newark, but six months ago in the Yankees' training camp everybody presumed that if he made good it would be as an outfielder. Bucky Harris said today that Berra would be the only catcher he'll use, barring injury.

Allie Reynolds and Buck Newsom scarcely foresaw a year ago that they'd be pitching for the Yanks in this World Series. Reynolds was a somewhat discredited righthander with Cleveland until the Joe Gordon trade that brought him to New York. And Newsom as late as two months ago, was pouting about his fate with the seventh-place Washingtons.

SIX MONTHS AGO there was only a vague idea that the Yankees would get into this World Series, anyway. They were about the same club that had been unable to get within 12 games of the pennant-winning Red Sox in 1946. Nobody could dare to predict that the Yankees would win the pennant this season by 12 games, without the services of Keller.

When Brooklyn blew the pennant last year in the play-off with the Cardinals, it couldn't obscure the tremendous job that Manager Leo Durocher did with the Dodgers to get 'em that close. It was widely acknowledged that the Dodgers weren't much of a ball team, and had been taken close to the pennant only by the genius of Durocher and his everlasting aggressiveness.

Brooklyn made it this season, but Durocher wasn't around. When Baseball Commissioner Chandler ruled him out for the season, Branch Rickey reached down into Florida to bring Burt Shotton out of retirement and install him as manager. Shotton was never a towering figure in the game, but he took a club that was no better than Durocher's and won the pennant with some ease, by methods as opposed to the lively Leo's as one could describe.

If it's some kind of a dream for Shotton to be managing a club in this World Series, how about Bucky Harris? Little more than a year ago, he was bounced out on his ear by the Buffalo International League Club where he was business manager. He didn't even want to manage a baseball club again, he said. But it worked out that he became manager of the Yankees, and how it worked out!

The nice thing is that there doesn't have to be two good teams in the series to make it exciting. Everything is relative. The spectacle of a World Series magnifies the importance of even a routine play. Baseball still is the only game in the world in which the lack of skill, if it lets in the winning run, can be every bit as exciting as the display of skill.

Yanks Rule 9-5 Choice Over Bums

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

New York, Sept. 29.—New York's Daylight Saving time ended this week but tomorrow, Ah, the clock whirrs back to 1941 for the city's baseball fans—it's the Yankees and Dodgers in another World Series.

Before the largest World Series crowd in histor, in Yankee stadium where 73,00 will be massed to greet the start of play, New York will renew its baseball Civil War, and the Yankees are favorites at 9 to 5.

Big New York, which traditionally absorbs in stride the impact of most World Series, is slightly askew over this one after both the Yankees and Dodgers knocked over pre-season dope to win pennant command of all seats still available, and the downtown hotel lobbies are jammed with futile room-seekers.

Right off the bat, the series will hit a novel note, with 21-year-old Ralph Branca, youngest National League pitcher ever to start a World Series game, the pitching choice of Brooklyn Manager Burt Shotton, and his opposite number on the mound for the Yankees will be rookie Frank Shea, up from the Coast League and making history by virtue of being the first rookie pitcher ever to start for the American League in a series opener.

Berra to Catch

Manager Bucky Harris, himself a first-year manager with the Yankees who lost a pennant 23 years ago, resolutely annaunced yesterday Shea was his choice, and it will be an all-rookie battery for the Yanks with Yogi Berra the catcher.

Shea, the imperturbable 24-gards his new-found stardom in the majors as a heritage from a ball-playing father, is a right-hander like Branca, but without Branca's speed. Control has been his forte all season, and he takes a record of 14 wins and 5 defeats into the series after one siege with a sore arm.

At the Yankees' last batting workout today, Harris renewed his confidence in Shea, declaring, "I asked him privately what he thought of the idea of starting the series, and he told me 'I licked Hal Newhouser three times in our league'."

The Dodgers are the stories club in this World Series, however, winning the pennant in a year when Leo Durocher wasn't at the helm. Burt Shotton, called out of retirement to take over when Durocher was suspended for a year, kept his collection of athletes in the league lead since June.

Yanks Are Power Unit

As usual, it's the Yankees who supposedly hold the edge in power over their World Series rivals. With a team batting average of .272 they show only one point more than the Dodgers, but they have slugged out 29 more homers and 22 more triples than their rivals across the river.

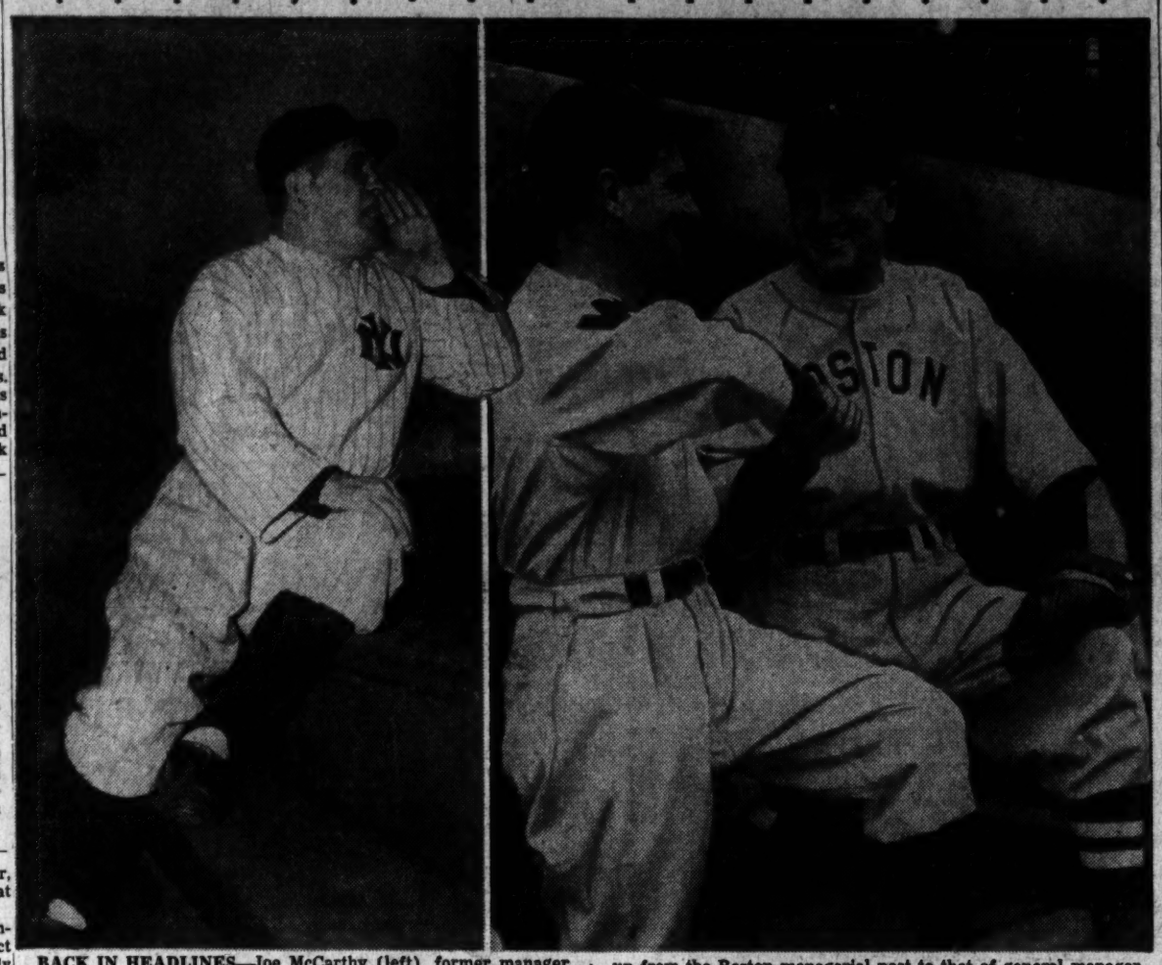

It's no Yankee, however, who has caught the conscience of the World Series fan this year. It's Jackie Robinson of the Dodgers, first Negro player ever to figure in a World Series, and recently voted the most valuable performer on the Brooklyn Club. Robinson vowed Brooklyn fans with his .297 batting average, his 28 stolen bases

Joe Cronin Steps Into Front Office

New York, Sept. 29.—"Marse Joe" McCarthy, who led the Yankees to eight pennants and seven world championships before he retired last year because of ill health, came back to the big show today as the new manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Joe Cronin, whom he succeeds as pilot of the Sox, announced that McCarthy, after an all-night discussion, had signed a two-year contract at an undisclosed salary and would take charge of the team "at once."

Cronin, who has managed the Boston club since 1934, advances to the post of general manager in succession to Eddie Collins, who has been handicapped by illness. Collins will remain in an advisory capacity as vice president.

McCarthy In Fine Spirits

The move had not been unexpected. For many months it has been rumored that the wealthy Hub team was trying to land McCarthy as its field leader, and that Joe was beginning to feel restless in his self-imposed exile on his farm near Buffalo.

Talking with the press after today's announcement, McCarthy said his health had improved greatly through his long rest and admitted he had "felt the urge" to get back in a uniform. He said he could have joined several other teams, but had chosen the Red Sox.

Cronin emphasized that his successor would have complete charge of the Sox, who fell to third place in the American League this season after having won the flag last year and lost to St. Louis in the world series. McCarthy, he added, would have the final say on all player deals.

The latter clause in Joe's contract is most unusual. Ordinarily it is the general manager or the club president who reserves the right to veto player deals. The fact that the Sox gave McCarthy such wide powers was a possible indication of how badly they wanted the wizard of the dugout.

Great Record as Pilot

McCarthy's record as a manager is one of unparalleled success. Since he started his piloting career at Wilkes-Barree in 1913 his teams have finished out of the first division only once. Before taking over the Yankees in 1931 he had won a National League flag with his Chicago Cubs in '29 and had given Louiseville two American Association titles. He is the only manager to have won pennants in both big leagues.

Although it was widely predicted that McCarthy, known for his conservative baseball tastes, would clash with the ebullient Larry MacPhail when the latter took over as president of the Yankees, there never was an open break between the two. McCarthy managed for MacPhail throughout the '43 campaign, and did not resign until May of '46, when he complained of "poor health." The Yanks were in second place at the time.

Joe was known to have received at least one bona fide managerial offer since then. Last spring, when Leo Durocher was suspended as boss of the Dodgers, that club's president, Branch Rickey, tried to pull McCarthy out of retirement on a one-year basis, but McCarthy declined.

Kulkovich Returns To Local Wrestling

Henry Kulkovich, of New Jersey, returns here tomorrow night to meet Ed Parquette, of Birmingham, Ala., in a 30-minute match on the card featuring Tuffy Trusdell in a bout against a 12-foot alligator, at Turner's Arena.

Girl grapplers—June Byers, of Dallas, Texas, and Mae Weston, of St. Louis—meet in the secondary feature. Babe Sharkey, the former titleholder, and Big Ben Morgan, six-foot six-inch giant, clash and opening the show will be George Macricostas and Red Ryan.

Cards Sign Eddie Dyer For 3d Year

St. Louis, Sept. 29 (AP).—Eddie Dyer, whose St. Louis Cardinals made a spirited but unsuccessful bid to repeat as National League champions after a miserable start this season, signed a one-year contract today to continue as managter of the club.

Signing of the 46-year-old Texan was announced after a brief conference between Dyer and Owner Sam Breadon. They said the new agreement was "mutually satisfactory," but adhered to custom in refusing to reveal terms.

No Mention of Salary

Breadon smiled, but was noncommittal when asked whether he had given Dyer a boost in wages. He added he had known Dyer for a long time and felt sure he could get along with him for a third season.

Several of the older Cardinal players, including team captain Terry Moore, were in an ante room and nodded approval when Breadon came out of his office with the announcement.

Both Breadon and Dyer said they were expecting the club to do well next year. "We have a good ball club," Breadon said, "and although some have us dead and buried, we expect them to be looking up to us next season."

"We have lots of young players coming up from the minors," Dyer said. "We'll be right in there."

Profitable Year at Gate

The past season was the most profitable in Cardinal history. At Sportsman's Park 1,247,931 paid to see Redbird games, while the club played to 1,513,893 fans on the road. Both of these attendance marks were new records for the club.

In Dyer's first year at the helm, the Redbird's won the pennant in a playoff with Brooklyn and went on to ambush the favored Boston Red Sox in the 1946 World Series, four games to three.

Dyer is a graduate of Texas' Rice Institute, where he earned ten letters and captained both football and baseball teams. He won several championships as manager of various Cardinal farm clubs, including three straight with Houston of the Texas League from 1939-41. He was a pitcher for the Cards back in the early 20s. for the Cards back in the early 20's.

Orange Bowl Offers Hopes To Casualties

Miami, Fla., Sept. 29 (AP).—Private to Navy, Alabama, Holy Cross, Rice, Georgia, Tennessee and Villanova football teams:

The Orange Bowl isn't off you because of what happened Saturday.

"We aren't eliminating teams like these early because of a loss or a tie," the Orange Bowl schedule committee said after scanning the list of fallen gridiron goliaths. "This season there'll be few, if any, unbeaten bowl eligibles by early November."

"An undefeated record isn't an Orange Bowl requirement," said Van C. Kussrow, chairman of the committee which will book the game for Miami's enlarged 60,000 seat stadium this New Year's day.

"A ball club could lose a game early in the fall and still come on to be the best in its section. The Orange Bowl wants teams which the best at the end of the season."

Pittsburgh, Sept. 28 (U.P.).—Co-owner Tom Johnson of the Pittsburgh Pirates baseball club tonight denied a report that Leo Durocher has been asked to manage the team in 1948.

In a Hollywood radio interview earlier, crooner Bing Crosby, who also owns a share of the Pirates, told Louella Parsons that "The Lip" had been approached by club officials. Johnson called Crosby's statement "inaccurate."

Chicago, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—The Illinois Boxing Commission today barred from Illinois prize rings any professional fighter who holds a dishonorable discharged from the United States armed services.

The ruling obviously was aimed at Rocky Graziano, the National Boxing Association's middleweight champion who won the title in a fight in the Chicago Stadium last July.

The War Department Saturday revealed that Graziano was given a dishonorable discharge from the Army after his conviction on charges of being absent without leave.

Harris Has Hunch Yanks Will Beat Brooks in Six

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Bucky Harris believes that the Yankees will whip the Brooklyn Dodgers in six games although you can't get the astute New York manager to say so flatly.

Although Buck refused to make any official prediction, it was evident from the way he spoke that he expected Frank (Spec) Shea, his opening day nominee, and Floyd (Bill) Bevens another righthander, to stop the Brooks cold.

Harris was not so certain of Bobo Newsom and Allie Reynolds, his two other probable starters, but indicated a world of confidence in Lefty Joe Page, his ace relief artist, to stem any rally the Dodgers might come up with.

"You can say that we're not worrying about the Dodgers," Bucky said while watching his hirelings undergoing a two-hour batting practice drill at the Yankee stadium in preparation for the World Series opener in the Bronx tomorrow. "Let them worry about us," he added.

Harris was not at all concerned about the Dodger's vaunted bunting and running style of attack which has proved so successful against their National League rivals.

"Nobody has ever won by bunting, especially against a team that can hit away like we do," he said.

While Bucky didn't say, it came to light through Catcher Larry Berra that the Yankees have devised a plan with which they hope to cope with Jackie Robinson, the Dodgers' freshman first baseman, who alone stole more bases this season than the entire Yankee team combined.

"I know all about Robinson from playing against him in 1946 when I was with Newark," the short squat receiver volunteered. "Robinson never stole a base against me. He tried twice but each time I nabbed him."

"We know all about him," he continued. "When he's going to run and when he's going to bunt."

Harris stated that Shea was completely recovered from the arm ailment he was plagued with during the months of July and August and would be at his best tomorrow. Asked whether he had any qualms about selecting the Naugatuck, Conn., freshman ace over veterans Newsom and Reynolds for the opening day assignment, thus creating an American League precedent, Harris replied:

"If I didn't think Shea would win, I wouldn't have picked him."

Six Umpires To Call 'Em In World Series

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—For the first time there will be six umpires on the field in the World Series instead of the traditional four.

The "active alternates," as they are called, will sit in the park at first and third base to determine if balls are foul or fair, to decide if outfielders trap or actually catch fly balls on shoestring catches, and rule whether or not fans interfere with balls close to the railing.

The decision to have the alternate umpires work was reached at a conference presided over by Commissioner A. B. Chandler, Manager Bucky Harris of the Yankees revealed today. In the past the two extra umpires detailed for the World Series have sat in the stands, and were used only if one of the regular umpires became ill or was hurt.

De Fruiter, Gaffney, Avery Go; Lack of Hustle Indicated

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

The Washington Redskins, with a side remark that may have had some bearing on the case, yesterday ask ed waivers on three of the veterans who participated in Sunday's 45-42 loss to the Philadelphia Eagles.

"We've got to have hustale and aggressiveness on this team," said a spokesman as halfbacks Bob DeFruiter and Jim Gaffney and Tackle Lon Avery went on the waiver block.

DeFruiter was immediately snapped up by the Detroit Lions; Avery will be sent to the Skins' Wilmington, Del. farm team if unclaimed and Gaffney will return to his Cumberland, Md., home.

A weak Redskin pass defense in the National Football League's highest scoring spree of all time was thought to be the reason for waivers on all three vets, although the Redskin office merely said:

"These players do not fit into our 1947 plans."

Only two players will be brought in to round out the local pro squad immediately, it was indicated, leaving it a player short of the 35-man limit. No new stars will be bought because, "none has been offered us."

Replacements will come from the Wilmington farm and likely will be chosen as a result of performance in the Wilmington team's American Association game Wednesday night.

Meanwhile Coach Turk Edwards considered a bumper crop of minor injruies from Sunday's score-for-all as he put the Redskins through a light workout yesterday. None was serious, however, and there was a hopefull note in the fact that Tom Farmer, halfback held out of the Eagle game, was able to take his first exercise in some time . . . Dick Todd, the Skins' Mr. Zigzag who almost missed Sunday's fray, was expected to rejoin the team today . . . After one of the finest performances of his career, Sammy Baugh turned up undamaged except for a slightly sore mouth . . . The Slinger's five touchdown passes contributed to a record tied by the Skins huge rookie end, Hugh Taylor . . . Taylor's three expeditions into the Eagle's end zone with Baugh passes tied five former Redskins for most touchdowns in one game . . . If aggressiveness is the Redskin motif, Ki Aldrich will play with the team forever . . . On one series of plays he made the tackle four times in a row . . . The Eagles' first and last touchdown Sunday were scored over two of the players released yesterday. Gaffney was the first victim, letting Rookie Pete Pihos get behind him for a 19-yard touchdown pass.

Va. Unhurt Against G. W.

Charlottesville, Va., Sept. 29 (AP). Virginia's Cavaliers came through their 33-13 victory over George Washington with hardly a scratch, Coach Art Guepe said today, and immediately went to work on special preparations for this Saturday's state battle with Virginia Tech at Roanoke's Victory Stadium.

Only Alan Milne, reserve end, showed up with a limp, all other players being in top condition. The squad today participated in a few offensive revisions which Guepe plans for this week's contest with the Gobblers.

W&L Battered

Lexington, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—After surveying his bruised battered football squad, Washington and Lee Coach Art (Pappy) Lewis today ordered the Generals to dispense with heavy equipment.

The Big Blue squad took a light workout today preparatory to entering intense preparation for Saturday's game at Charleston, W. Va., with West Virginia.

The Generals emerged from their 16-3 victory over the University of Virginia Saturday night with multiple damages, the most prominent of which was Mike Boyda's injured ligaments which will probably keep him away from practice all week.

VMI Stars Hurt

Lexington, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—Virginia Military Institute took count of its injured grid players today and found five—including Bobby Thomason, star quarterback and passer from Leeds, Ala.—on the hospital list after the Keydets' 13-6 win over Catawba Saturday.

Thomason, Coach Arthur Morton said, is definitely out of the coming game with George Washington Saturday at Lynchburg and "is probably out for at least two weeks."

Sharing the hospital room with the injured passer is Dick Jarvis, who suffered a broken blood vessel in his leg.

Ordered to take a rest because of leg injuries were Jack Hutchinson, Joe Gantt and Thatcher Watson.

Finn Sets World Mark

Helinski, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—Mikko Hietanen, Finnish marathon runrunner, established a new world's record for the 30-kilometer's run Sunday. The time was one hour 40 minutes 49.8 seconds.

Greenberg Will Leave Pirates—Report

Pittsburgh, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph today quoted Hank Greenberg as saying he "will not be with" the Pittsburgh Pirates next year—despite support from "at least one of the Pirate co-owners" for his installation as club manager.

"Hank would not give his reason for not returning," said Charles J. (Chilly) Doyle, the newspaper's veteran baseball writer. "It was learned, however, that Greenberg would stay in the sport indefinitely. He wants to be a manager or a club owner and he probably will play another season if his contemplated arm operation is successful."

Doyle said one of the Pirate co-owners, John Galbreath of Columbus, Ohio, "wants to place Greenberg's name high among the list of those to be considered to succeed the resigned Billy Herman as manager."

Rumors that Greenberg would not return next year have been frequent for several weeks. The big slugger thus far has refused to commit himself on his plans. Club President Frank McKinney, Indianapolis banker, said recently that Greenberg's contract here obligated him for one year only.

Greenberg left the city after the final 1947 game yesterday, presumably to return to New York. All top Pirate officials also have gone to New York to attend the World Series.

Bums No Power Club

Ostensibly the Dodgers have no array to match the Yankees run-production power of Joe DiMaggio, Tommy Henrich and Bill Johnson, each of whom drove in more than 90 runs, but the Dodgers didn't win the pennant with power.

"We don't overpower anybody," said Manager Shotton today. "We won most of our games by getting a run or two in the right inning, and that's how we'll try to beat the Yankees."

On the bases, the Dodgers are the more respected club with the Yanks unable to match the speed and boldness of the Brooklyn trio of First Baseman Robinson, Center Fielder Pete Reiser and Shortstop PeeWee Reese.

Manager Bucky Harris of the Yankees made one significant declaration today as his team trailed off field after its final workout. Pointing to the tall figure of Joe DiMaggio, he said, "if that big guy goes well in the series, we ought to win it."

Trinidad Boys Club Has Varied Schedule

The Trinidad Boys Club's fall schedule offers 20 varied activities to the 275 club members.

Newest activity is the formation of a club band, which meets once a week under leader Joe Durso.

The club is presently engaged in an adult membership drive with a goal of $10,000 needed to run the club this year and next. One third of the total objective has already been raised.

Three Tech Scores Made On Ground

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

McKinley Tech's Trainers humbled Roosevelt's Rough Riders, 25-0, in their Interhigh football opener yesterday before 4000 fans at the Central stadium, and thereby avenged a 12-7 upset suffered at the hands of the Riders late last season.

Since that defeat, the first administered to Tech by a Roosevelt football team in 40 years, the Trainers had waited impatiently for yesterday's game.

Three of the four Tech scoring plays were by land, but the passing of Cecil Gray, Milt Weinstein and Billy Werber, jr., figured prominently in each of the touchdown drives.

Riders Never Threaten

The Riders were kept on their heels through the game, and penetrated Tech territory only once, that being to the 45 for one play.

Gray started the Trainers on their way in the first quarter, climaxing a 52-yard march with a 1-yard smash over center.

A 17-yard pass from Gray to Glenn Smith, and a 17-yard end run by Jack Talbert were important in the drive.

Interception of a Carl Ruble pass and a 39-yard runback to the Roosevelt nine by Tech's Jack Talbert set up the second Trainer touchdown in the second quarter. Three plays later, Gray pounded over from the one.

Weinstein's 1-yard touchdown smash later in the second period came on the end of a 56-yard march.

Tech had given up its drive on the Roosevelt 46 when a penalty for roughing the kicker returned the ball to the Trainers on the 31.

Pass Interference Called

Then a Gray to Bud Howard pass was ruled complete on the one when Vince Pugliese and Aris Bacas of Roosevelt were penalized for interference.

The final Tech score came late in the fourth quarter on a 44-yard drive, a pass from Weinstein to Smith from 36 yards out, netting the touchdown.

Young Werber, son of the former major league baseball player, came into the game in the second quarter, and thrilled the crowd with his left-handed passes, completing three out of seven. He also made gains of 18 and 12 yards on two of his running assignments.

Rampart Wins Warwick

Garden State Park, Camden, N. J., Sept. 29 (AP).—Catching the front-running Bellwether at the eighth pole and staving off a powerful late challenge by Incline, Helene K. Haggerty's Rampart today accounted for the featured Warwick Purse here today by a length and one half.

Incline was second two lengths before the tiring Bellwether. Highfortidies was fourth in the six-horse field.

The score gave Mrs. Haggerty a consecutive double, her Demi-Z., having won the previous race. Rampart is one of the leading eligibles for Saturday's renewal of the $25,000 added Vineland Handicap, a gallop at one mile and one sixteenth for fillies and mares.

Rampart's share was a popular one with the crowd of 11,812 and paid $4.20 after whirling over the nine furlongs in 1.51.

Pimlico May Get $1,000,000 Trotting Plant

Baltimore, Sept. 29 (AP).—Baltimore Trotting Races, Inc., whose application for a permit to conduce harness racing with pari-mutuel betting is before the racing commission, plans a one-million-dollar plant at Pimlico Airport, it was disclosed today.

The racing commission will meet tomorrow to consider the application of the Baltimore group, along with requests from an Anne Arundel County organization to operate the Severn Downs Raceway about a mile north of Laurel, and Howard Raceway, Inc., which would have a track near U. S. Route 1 in Howard County.

Frank and Howard Knipp, owners of the Pimlico land, previously confirmed that an option had been taken.

In the application for a Pimlico harness track, the Baltimore group, headed by Eugene H. Beer, jr., announced plans for a grandstand seating 11,000 persons and barns for 200 horses.

They would make use of two large hangars on the field as part of the plant. All racing would be done under lights at night.

The Baltimore group has asked for a schedule of eight trotting and pacing races on 20 consecutive nights, excluding Sunday. The Legislature last winter approved a total of 100 days harness racing with pari-mutuel betting.

The deadline for applications for harness racing was last Friday. no date has been set for a hearing on a request by Edward S. Diggs, representing the Charles County raceway, which proposed a track at Waldorf.

Area Grid Roundup

Hoyas, Terps Open Home Slate Friday; G. W. on Road

Georgetown's Hoyas and the Maryland Terrapins open their home seasons this weekend, while George Washington hits the road again in quest of its first victory.

The Hoyas meet Fordham at Griffith Stadium Friday night and the Terps entertain Delaware at College Park the same evening. The Colonials face VMI at Lynchburg, Va., Saturday afternoon.

Coach Jack Hagerty of Georgetown knows little about the Fordham team other than the fact that it, like Georgetown, is primarily a sophomore outfit.

In last year's tilt between the teams, the Hoyas eked out an 8-7 victory and Hagerty expects another close game Friday. The Hoya coach was very pleased with the determination and fight of his boys against Wake Forest, but found two phases of Georgtown's play disappointing.

"Our blocking must be improved a great deal and the timing of our pass plays was very poor," Hagerty said yesterday.

"Our best passer, Babe Baronowski, reported to the squad only a week ago, and with another week's work he should be much improved. The play of our guards, Elmer Oberto and Bus Werder, was outstanding and I believe they did more than hold their own against Wake Forest's Leonetti and Royston, two of the top guards in the South."

"Elmer Raba will start at quarter for us this week, and Lou Roubustelli will get the call at right tackle over Andy Ronon. Otherwise out lineup will be the same."

Jim Tatum's Maryland squad, fresh from its 19-13 victory over South Carolina, meets another toughie in the University of Delaware.

Coach Bill Murray's Blue Hens boast the longest winning streak in the country, having tasted only victory for 32 straight games. Delaware continued where it left off last season by winning its opener against Penn Military College, 25-13.

Tatum announced yesterday that Ed Schwartz, Junior guard from Erie, Pa., has been named team captain for Friday night's contest. Schwartz handles the Terps' extra point kicking duties as well as being a defensive stalwart.

Coach Arthur (Slick) Morton, of VMI, started singing the blues about Saturday's game with George Washington before Colonial Coach Skip Stahley could get in a single sad word about G. W.'s 33-13 defeat in its opener with Virginia.

"Those G. W. linemen are so big," "Slick lamented," that I hope they come to Lynchburg intending to play our boys and not eat them."

Charles KO's Marshall In Second Round

Cincinnati, Sept. 29 (AP).—Ezzard Charles, Cincinnati's light-heavyweight and destroyer, knocked out Lloyd Marshall of Sacramento, Calif., and Cleveland, in the second round of a scheduled 10-rounder tonight at Crosley Field.

Charles weighed 173, five pounds more than Marshall, who recently ko's Freddie Mills, European light-heavy champ.

The aggressor all the way, Charles floored Marshall three times in the second heat, the end coming at 2:25.

Terp Lacrosse Team Has 1st Fall Practice

Emulating Burton Shipley's fall baseball practice, Maryland's lacrosse mentor, Jack Faber, yesterday called the first fall practice in the school's history.

Forty candidates, including 14 lettermen and 12 promising freshmen reported for the opening drill. Shipity had preveously held the first fall baseball practice in his 24 years at the Old Line schoool.

Bucs Drop Woodling

Pittsburgh, Sept. 29 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates tonight released Outfielder Gene Woodling to San Francisco of the Pacific Coast League. Woodling played under option the greater part of this season with Newark of the International League.

Arabs to Strike If U. N. Ruling Is Unfavorable

Jerusalem, Palestine, Sept. 29 (U.P.).—The Arab higher committee tonight ordered Palestine's 1,200,000 Arabs to demonstrate in a general strike Friday against any United Nations decision which would deprive Arabs of full control over the Holy Land.

The committee urged that all shops, factories, schools, transport facilities and entertainment spots be shut down.

Palestine officials planned detailed countrywide preparations to prevent demonstrations from developing into riots.

Prepared to Use Force

Lake Success, L. I., Sept. 29 (HTNS).—The Arab higher committee of Palestine told the United Nations today the Arabs of the Holy Land will oppose with force any Palestine solution that does not declare the country independent under its present Arab majority.

As to the possibility of a Jewish state in Palestine, Jamal Husseini, vice-chairman of the Arab high Assembly:commiAie- ET ET ETE committee, told the 55-country Palestine committee of the U. N. General Assembly:

"If such a political monstrosity is carried out, no sane person could expect to see peace prevail in that part of the world. Its existence, no matter how and by whom it is being supported and protected, is bound to become a running sore—a new Balkans in that part of the world."

The Arabs, he said, "desire to live in undisturbed possession of their country in which they have continually existed."

Cites Glaring Fact

"We have one glaring, all-embracing fact: That we are there and have always been there in actual possession of our country, and we have one binding and lawful and sacred duty-to defend it against all aggression.

"The Zionists are conducting an aggressive campaign, in fact, an invasion . . .

"We are alive to the fact that if they so desire, big powers could crush by brute force, such (the Arab) opposition. But this realization will not deter us from drenching the soil of our beloved country with the last drop of our blood in the lawful defense of all and every inch of it."

On Wednesday, when the committe meets next, a statement will be made by Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of Cleveland, head of the American section of the executive of the Jewish agency for Palestine.

After that the committewillgo into general debate on the problem leading up to consideration of the report of the Palestine investigating committee, of wheih a majority of 8 of 11 members has recommended dividing the Holy Land into two states—one Jewish and one Arab.

Revenge Bomb Kills 10, Hurts 77 in Palestine

Jerusalem, Sept. 28 (AP).—A barrel of explosives ingeniously rolled over a large wire barrier hit a district police headquarters in Haifa today, killing 10 persons and injuring 77. The Jewish underground said it launched the attack to avenge deportation of the Exodus 1947 Jews to Hamburg, Germany.

The dead were Britons and Arabs, including a 16-year-old Arab girl. Fourteen of the injured were Jewish civilians.

British troops immediately rushed into Haifa with Bren gun carriers, armored cars and tanks.

Police arrested four suspects in the Harbor Hacarmel Jewish quarter, halfway up historic Mount Carmel, which overlooks the port. In an abandoned truck, police found a Y-shaped steel device which might have been used to launch the barrel.

Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground organization announced:

"We have paid back for the shame of Hamburg and the shame of expulsion from the fatherland and for the bloodshed of our brothers."

The barrel of explosives, Irgun said, equaled the deadly force of a 2000-pound bomb.

The blast occurred at 6 a. m. Windows a quarter of a mile away were shattered.

Parts of bodies were blown 50 yards. A water main was broken. Power and telephone lines were snarled.

An Arab policeman outside the headquarters was decapitated and his head left hanging in a barbed-wire barrier 15 yards from his body.

Four British and four Arab policemen were killed. Forty-three British policemen were injured, 13 seriously. Twenty Arab and 14 Jewish civilians also were hurt.

The truck carrying the explosive backed against the wire barrier which is 13 feet wide in some places. An improvised ramp was dropped over the barrier and the barrel rolled down and into the guards' room on the ground floor, where it exploded. Meanwhile, the truck pulled away and was abandoned.

The attack came as Haifa Jews began celebration of the eight-day feast of the Tabernacles (Succoth), commemorating the ancinet trek of the Jews from Egypt and recalling their eating of manna from heaven.

Passengers and Shippers on Rock Island Lines enjoy ultra modern service

The Route of the Rockets celebrates ten years of planned progress

While American business was still staggering under the impact of the Great Depression, when other roads were cautiously ordering one or two of the new streamliners, the Rock Island ordered six, which went in service just ten years ago.

These six Rockets were followed by more Rockets until the Rock Island offers passengers twenty-two modern streamlined trains in 1947. There are also the famous Rocket Freights which are setting records for fast, safe delivery of the products of industry, agriculture and commerce.

On drastic improvements in right-of-way many millions of dollars were spent. Improvements include elimination of curves—reduction of grades—great new bridges—centralized traffic control—short wave radio linking dispatchers, engineers and conductors—new testing laboratories—new car shops—automatic car washing—improved roadbed.

In short, the Rock Island in 1947, with twenty-two streamliners and 137 Diesel engines, is essentially a new railroad notwithstanding its ninety-five years of historic service.

Rock Island

For travel information, reservations and tickets, ask:
H. J. KOUKAL, District Passenger Agent, 801 Southern Bldg., 15th and H Sts. N.W., Washington 5, D. C. Phone National 2680

For freight rates, routing, packaging assistance, write or phone:
J. C. JOHNSON, General Agent, Freight Dept., 801 Southern Bldg., 15th & H Sts., N.W., Washington 5, D. C. Phone National 2680

Rocket Freights deliver the goods at express train speed, and 23,000 "Package Cars" originate at important points on Rock Island lines or break bulk at Rock Island stations.

Curves have been straightened, grades reduced, resulting in greater speed with economy and safety. Between Chicago and Kansas City 15 million dollars was spent during the past 5 years.

More than 90 years ago, Rock Island built the first bridge across the Mississippi. During the past ten years, Rock Island built or rebuilt 1,333 bridges.

Centralized Traffic Control, a railroading miracle, has been installed over 583 miles of Rock Island right of way. Traffic is speeded—with greater safety.

Short wave radio permits dispatchers, engineers and freight conductors to talk with each other while trains are in motion. This means fast, flexible freight movement.

Ruml Urges Selling Bonds For World Aid

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 29 (AP). Economist Beardsley Ruml, who devised an income tax relief plan during the war, suggested today U. S. loans for world reconstruction should be financed by the sale of government savings bonds to the public, and not by taxes.

Ruml

Such a program, Ruml told the national bank division of the American Bankers Association meeting here, "has the great advantage over taxation in that it is selective and x x x does not impose on those who cannot afford it, as taxation might, the direct costs of reconstruction of productive plants."

Ruml, chairman of the board of R. H. Macy & Co., New York, department stroe, said the sale of savings bonds also would make "people aware of theif personal association with the over-all program of world reconstruction."

Truman Asks U.S. Agencies To Submit Suggestions

Material for Use In State of Union Message to Congress Sought by President

By Jerry Kluttz

The President yesterday asked the heads of all Federal agencies to make recommendations to him on these subjects:

Kluttz

Material for use in the state of the Union and the annual economic report to be submitted to the Congress in January all proposed legislation to be supported by the Administration, and material for special messages to Congress.

The President made his request in a personal letter to each Cabinet member and agency head. He emphasized that the material was to be used for the regular congressional session.

This is the first time the President has asked for all this information in one package. In the past it has been gathered in piece-meal fashion.

Several agencies can be expected to recommend pay raises, unemployment compensation, and higher travel allowances for Federal workers.

DEMAND: Chairman Rees of the House Civil Service Committee yesterday came out with a new demand that Federal agencies promptly hire laid-off career employes.

Despite the new Civil Service program to find jobs for them, Rees said, "the number of displaced career employes is increasing inexcusably." He then added:

"If the Federal Government is to have a real career Civil Service the executive departments and agencies should recognize the necessity for retaining in the Federal service its loyal and efficient career employes."

The House leader said there were 849,000 war service and temporary employes on the Federal payroll on September 1. He insists that some of these people be fired to make jobs for the displaced career people.

Rees said there was a reduction of 44,342 Federal workers in the month of August. He described this reduction as "little progress" toward cutting the Federal payroll.

STATE is one agency that is cooperating 100 per cent with the new Civil Service program. It has already hired its quota of accountants and auditors and within the next couple of days it will have taken on its quota of economists and statistics. Navy and Federal Power also are cooperating.

The showdown on the program will come in about a week when Civil Service orders agencies that haven't hired their quotas to fire those war service people for each unplaced career worker on their quotas.

FMCS: The new Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service has made these appointments: William N. Margolis, assistant director; Peter Seitz, general counsel, and James W. Greenwood, director of administrative management.

BUDGET: Elmer D. Staats has been appointed assistant director of the Budget Bureau in charge of the legislative reference service. He succeeds Fred Bailey, one of our very best public servants, who will round out his long Government career as an assistant to Budget Director James Webb. Bailey will retire next June 30 after 40 years in the Federal service.

PEOPLE: William H. England, another outstanding career man, will retire as chief economist of the Federal Trade Commission . . . C. E. Barthel has resigned as acting director of teh acoustics division at the Naval Ordnance Laboratory to join the Armour Research Foundation in Chicago . . . Interior Secretary J. A. Krug has bought an interest in the Los Angeles football Rams . . . Don Kingsley is slated to be appointed assistant administrator of the Federal Security Agency.

BOLLING FIELD; Layoff notices have been given to 68 civilians at its air installation center. The eight career employes on the list will be reassigned to other War Department jobs.

Bolling officials say the air center was financed from Engineer Corps funds which were cut back sharply. They explained military men have replaced civilians laid off from its fire department.

There were reports yesterday that Bolling, Andrews, and the Naval Air Field may be merged.

CIVIL SERVICE has revealed these new competitive exams will be announced early in October:

Junior professional assistant, junior agricultural assistant, and library assistant.

The JPA test will have 17 options, among them being: engineer, legal assistant, librarian, patent examiner, administrative technician, archeologist, astronomer, bacteriologist, psychologist, and social science analyst. The JAA test will have these options among others: forester, range conservationist, textile technologist, agricultural engineer, and soil engineer. The starting salary for these jobs is $2644. The library jobs will start from $2168 to $2294.

Puppet Shows in School Teach Children Proper Care of Teeth

The Washington Post

HOW TO CARE FOR TEETH—Laura Ann Johnson, 6, second grade pupil, and Raymond Joseph Wasman, 8, third grade, are getting some tips on how to care for their teeth from the Health Department educational puppet show put on at Holy Name School, 1215 West Virginia ave. ne.

Children at the Holy Name School had a painless lesson yesterday in how to care for their teeth.

It was brought to them by the Bureau of Dental Services of the District Health Department and the Good Teeth Council for Children in the form of a puppet show.

The usually quarrelsome Punch and Judy in this show are happy children named Jack and Judy whose good health and spirits are the result of observing four rules for good teeth.

Into their lives comes a bully named Joe who admits that he feels terrible because his teeth hurt him all the time.

Jack and Judy encourage him to go to the dentist where he, too, learns that eating the right food, seeing a dentist three times a year, brushing his teeth twice a day and giving his teeth chewing exercises will make him feel fine.

The story resolves in a happy ending with Jack, Judy and Joe, good friends now, skating away at an ice festival to the tune of the "Skaters' Waltz."

In a curtain speech at yesterday's show Joe exacted a promise from the enthusiastic children to write him a letter or draw him a picture of what they learned.

The show at Holy Name was the third presented by Puppeteers Barbara Amundson and Genter Dahl. Earlier in the day they visited St. Joseph's and Holy Comforter Schools. During the next few months they will take Joe to every parochial and elementary school in the city.

Management Inquiry Set By Council At Greenbelt

Gobbel to Stay Until Completion Of Probe of His Handling of Funds

The Greenbelt, Md., Town Council last night authorized a "full investigation" of general town management, including charger that Town Manager James T. Gobbel has mismanaged the town's funds.

After adopting a resolution which called for the investigation, the council also voted to hold Gobbel's resignation in abeyance after the town manager told the body he would be "perfectly willing" to remain on the job until the investigation is completed.

"I am more anxious than anyone to have this matter cleared up," said Gobbel, "and I shall be glad to stay on and help the council until such time as these charges have been disposed of."

In Absence of Mayor

The action was taken in the absence of former Mayor George Bauer, who had pressed the original charges against Gobbel. He accused Gobbel of authorizing payment of salaries in excess of amounts approved by the town council for local officials.

Bauer, who had planned to attend last night's meeting, was called to St. Louis on Sunday because of his father's death.

In approving an investigation of the charge, the council authorized appointment of a nine-man investigating committee to include all members of the council plus four others, "preferably members of the clergy." Other members of the committee will be named sometime this week.

The council investigation, under terms of the resolution, will not be restricted to the charges against Gobbel whose resignation was to be effective today. It stated that any person who wishes to prefer charges aganist any town official or any charges concerning the town's administration is requested to present such charges to the council.

October 10 Is Deadline

The resolution set October 10 as the deadline for submitting charges and specified that the accusations must be sworn before a notary public.

The discussion of the charges against Gobbel came after the council elected Thomas J. Canning as mayor for the two-year term which began with last night's meeting. An attorney with the War Department, Canning was the first member of the lve-man council to be elected because in the regular election on September 16 he was the only one of 19 candidates to poll the required plurality vote.

The other four councilmen were elected in a special runoff ballot last Tuesday.

Frank J. Lastner, a dental equipment engineer, was chosen a mayor pro tem, which is the equivalent of vice mayor. Other members of the council who began their terms last night were Mrs. Elizabeth Smith Harrington, David Granahan and Allen D. Morrison, who is starting his sixth term on the council.

Transit Union Says Wages on Laborer Level

'Real' Pay Declared Down 18 Per Cent Since July 1, 1946

The "real wages" of Washington bus and streetcar operators have dropped 18 per cent since July 1, 1946, union spokesmen said yesterday.

Simultaneously, a three-man panel of arbitrators was informed "real wages" elsewhere are now 17 per cent above the 1940 level while comparable wages for local operators is 2.8 per cent below the 1940 curve.

The statements were made at a wage arbitration hearing at the Hotel Raleigh between the Capital Transit Co. and the company's AFL employes.

Eli Oliver, counsel for the employes, testified that wage rates in manufacturing industries went up some 85 per cent in the past seven years while those of transit operators were boosted about 52 per cent over the same period.

Washington streetcar and bus operators now receive the same hourly rate—$1.20—as common laborers in the building trades, he said. Other building trades wages were cited, as follows: bricklayers, $2.37; carpenters, $2.05; electricians, $2.25; painters, $1.95; plasterers, $2.25, and plumbers, $2.12.

Hawley Simpson, counsel for the company, criticized the statistics, claiming certain "hidden" features were involved.

The union, covering some 4000 for 35 per cent wage boosts. The workers, yesterday closed its case company is expected to begin its main presentation when the hearing resumes today at 9:30 a. m. in Hotel Raleigh.

Bones Found Of Ape-Man In South Africa

London, Sept. 29 (AP). — Dr. Robert Broom, paleontologist and anthropologist, reported today he had unearthed the remains of several ape-men in the Sterkfontein caves of South Africa, and stated the "conclusion to which some of us have come that man has evolved from an australopithecine (South African fossil apeman) seems likely to be proved correct."

Broom said the skeletal bones of several individuals have been newly discovered.

"On August 1 we discovered a perfect pelvis, much of the femur tibia, some ribs and vertebrae and parts of a skull, very badly crushed and broken. The skeleton seems to be that of a female about 4 feet tall or a little less," he said.

"The pelvis is shaped almost exactly as in the bushman and very unlike that of any anthropoids or monkeys."

Dealer Sued By Would-Be Auto Buyer

Charles E. Mattingly, 1001 17th st. ne., yesterday came to the conclusion that patience—18 months worth—is not a virtue, even if the reason for it is a new car.

In a suit filed yesterday in Circuit Court, Leonardtown, Md., he seeks to force the Bell Motor Co. of Leonardtown to deliver to him the first new car, other than a seven-passenger madel, the company gets. He has been on the waiting list since March 1, 1946, the suit contends.

Behind the suit, says Louis Lebowitz, Mattingly's attorney, is a year and a half of patience, pleading and disappointment for the plaintiff. Lebowitz avers his client has been bypassed several times in favor of customers "not in the chronological order" of the firm's order list.

The bill of complaint contends the company has sold more new cars than it had orders for during the time elapsed since Mattingly's 1946 order.

In a second suit filed at the same time, Attorney Lebowitz asks $5000 damages for Mattingly stemming out of alleged altercation between Mattingly and J. Ernest Bell on June 27 in the auto firm's showroom.

The plaintiff's legal residence is Leonardtown.

Iran Indicates Rejection of Soviet Oil Bid

Tehran, Sept. 29 (AP).—A spokesman for Premier Ahmed Qavam, in a statement apparently foreshadowing government rejection of Russian oil proposals, has told the Iranian people "we must use our natural wealth for our own good."

Ibrahim Khajeh Noori, the spokesman, said Iran was faced by "panic and fear" over the question of granting Russia the right to explore for oil in northern Iran, because "Iran does not wish to cause the smallest offense to America," and "it is very difficult for us to cooperate with a very powerful nation." Most listeners accepted this as a reference to the Soviet Union.

Noori said "America without doubt is the strongest, wealthiest and most democratic country in the world and the mother of one daughter, sought by two suitors, would favor the husband most free, quiet and wealthy."

"Political affairs of the world," Noori said, "have focused an atomic bomb threat to the Middle East and especially to the 'victory bridge'"—the term used for Iran when it was a route for lend-lease to Russia.

"This bomb, if used, will finish the aggressor, but fortunately there is now no Hitler to risk such aggression. The general commanding 200,000,000 people is clever enough not to destroy the whole world for a few barrels of Iranian oil. He, also, will not destroy his own works and accomplishments of mankind. For these reasons, Iranians should not worry."

Garbage Shows D. C. Residents Waste Little

Xanten Points Out Considerable Drop Shown in Collections

District residents apparently haven't waited for the "wasteless" campaign being launched by President Truman, Supervisor of City Refuge William A. Zanten indicated yesterday.

Zanten's figures show a considerable drop in garbage collected here this year, and his official scavengers report that edible scraps are less and less in evidence as they collect what Washingtonians threw away.

"Why," remarked Zanten, "the general complaint now from the men at the plant is that they can't slide on the floor any more—there isn't enough meat fat. People are eating it or turning it in."

The refuse supervisor said in 1941 an estimated 764,000 persons in the District threw away some 64,188 tons of garbage from homes and apartments, or a little more than 168 pounds per person. By 1945, his figures show, the war had cut this amount to about 129 pounds per capita.

With the end of the war, Xanten had expected an increase in the District's food waste products, and prepared his department to cart away 65,000 tons during the 1947 fiscal year. Instead, only 59,137 tons of garbage was collected from an estimated population of 916,000, which, per capita, comes close to the 1945 figure, being only 1 pound per person more.

Police Chief Says Chiefly Nothing to Press After Absence

By John London
Post Reporter

After a 10-day absence(Police Chief Robert J. Barrett returned to his desk at the new Municipal Center yesterday in a glacial and uncommunicative mood.

Maj. Barrett

Reporters comfort and less information in a five-minute conference with the chief on his return from the con convention of police chiefs in Duluth, Minn.

During the interview, Barrett busied himself reading, thumbing and signing a sheaf of documents. Occasionally he elevated his red face to transfix a reporter with a barbed stare.

Asked if he would order a full report on shortages in Fourth Precinct funds—widely publicized following the suicide of a Fourth Precinct policeman—he replied:

"Nothing has come over my desk about the Fourth Precinct. I have no comment until such time as it does."

"Does that mean, Major, you are utterly unaware an audit is being made of Fourth Precinct funds?" queried a reporter.

"I said I have no comment," retorted the major and superintendent.

An effort to inject a friendly element into the arctic atmosphere fizzled when a reported asked the major if he had enjoyed his jaunt to Duluth. The major requested reporters to confine questions to "business."

Barrett noted he was "very much disturbed" that an afternoon newspaper had called him frequently during his stay in Duluth.

When asked what cities' crime-reporting systems he had observed during his trip, Barrett snapped back:

"I don't have to answer to you for everything I do, do I?"

Barrett then expressed irritation that this reporter was taking full notes.

He also had no comment on:

The case of John Forrest Bunch, whose death was attributed by his family to police mishandling.

The "paddy-wagon grands"—64-year-old woman ushered into a police wagon and taken to the Ninth Precinct although she was not charged with any breach of the law.

Progress of the new crime reporting system, plans for which followed an expose in The Washington Post and an FBI investigation of police withholding of crime reports.

Judge Scott Bears Down On 19 Drunks

Nineteen "repeater" drunks were sobered suddenly in Municipal Court yesterday as Judge Armond Scott put into effect his promise of last week to impose maximum sentences.

Sentences ranging from $100 or $60 days to $500 or 180 days were handed the 19 offenders.

"I'm trying these stiffer sentences as a last resort," Judge Scott told reporters.

Maximums under the law provide for $100 or 30 days for first offense! $500 or 180 days for third and subsequent offenses.

Four men got $500 or 180 day limit. They were: Charles G. Johnson, 61, Alexandria, Va.; John Hadder, 63, 215 D St. Nw.; Clyde E. Riggs, 47, 476 Massachusetts ave. nw.; Wayne Owens, 68, 947 9th st. nw.

Others drawing maximum or near-maximums were: Marquis Morse, 52, 45 K st. ne., $100 or 60 days; Leon Kirkland, 45, 1940 Portner st., nw., $300 or 90 days; Leonard B. Johnson, 48, 325 K st. se., $300 or 90 days; Francis Matthew, 35, no fixed address, $300 or 90 days; Elizabeth M. Jackson, 29, 641½ 3d st. ne., $200 or 90 days; Jack H. Expeditious Thieves Get Safe, Other Loot, From Gas Station

The Washington Post

JUST A HOLE IN THE WALL—R. L. Dunn, one of the partners who own the Sligo Service Station, New Hampshire ave. extended, near the District Line in Prince Georges County, looks over the spot where once was a built-in wall safe. The yeggs got about $850

Fast-working burglars yesterday took a 350-pound safe containing $784 from the Sligo Service Station, 7216 New Hampshire ave., Takoma Park, Md.

Police had checked the station at 6 a. m., and employes arrived at 7. In the interim, the burglars removed the safe from a concrete wal land got away with the safe, an automobile radio, two heaters, a wrist watch and a spotlight.

The burglars also opened the cash register, but it was empty.

The safe was imbedded in a concrete wall which was broken to free the 3-foot-by-18-inch strong box. Money in the safe was weekend receipts. The loss is covered partially by insurance, R. W. Connor, operator of the station said.

The intruders entered by breaking a panel from a rear door. This is the third tmie the station has been looted.

3 to Draft Law to Hospitalize, Not Jail Injured Witnesses

Municipal Court Judge George D. Neilson yesterday appointed a three-man committee to intiate drafting of a law empowering fiudges to commit injured witnesses or defendants to Gallinger Hospital for treatment.

The jurist's action stemmed from the commitment of a Government witness, Mrs. Mary Murrill, 32, of 412 8th st. nw., to District Jail earlier this month. Mrs. Murrill had appeared before Judge Neilson as a witness against her husband, Guy, who on September 18 was given a six-month sentence on charges that he struck his wife in the face with a whisky bottle.

Judge Neilson recommended hospitalization for the witness, who appeared in court September 12 in a dazed and weakened condition. Instead she was kept in the District Jail.

Those appointed to the committee were Donald Clemmer, superintendent of the District Department of Correction; Joseph Sanford, probation officer; and Walter Bramhall, chief clerk of the Municipal Court. The committee will make its recommendations to the District Commissioners.

Bramhall was also asked to study the possibilities of establishing quarters in which to hold government witnesses.

The appointments were made known following a meetin g between Judge Neilson, Clemmer, Bramhall, Sanford, Thomas A. Sard, administrative secretary of the jail, Curtis Reid, jail superintendent, and Dr. Martin Cannon, jail physician.

Under the present setup, although a judge may recommend hospitalization, the person involved must first be sent to the jail where authorities decide whether treatment is required elsewhere than in the jail infirmary.

Public Indifference Blamed For Crime Rate by FBI Head

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover yesterday blamed "public indifference" for the high crime rate—with special reference to vice, gambling and sex offenses, as well as juvenile delinquency.

Hoover made the assertion before more than 500 local law-enforcement officers, graduates of the FBI's National Academy, as they began five days of retraining here to keep abreast of recent advances in their profession.

Officers Rendered Powerless

The crime expert, who spoke at the Justice Department's Auditorium, where the State, county and municipal police officials are attending classes, declared:

"There are few communities in the land where la wenforcement could not make a clean sweep of vic, gambling, roving sex offenders and other violaters within a matter of hours if th eforces of law were supported and upheld by the citizens.

"Technicalities and restraint render law enforcement powerless to do the job they want to do."

Prosecution in sex cases, even if successful, is "invariably" only a "stopgap," according to Hover, because "some judge may grant probation or some soft-headed parole board may grant a release, or a kind-hearted but expedient Governor may grant a pardon."

Siegel Case ICted

The public attitude, he asserted, was shown by the "lionizing" of such underworld characters as the late "Bugsy" Siegel "and his criminal scum" by "so-called respectable social circles."

The glamour that surrounded Siegel's life, Hoover said, "in all its vile implications was shockingly disgusting."

The law enforcement officers, who were also welcomed by Assistant Director Hugh H. Clegg of the FBI and the president of the FBI Academy Association, Walter F. Anderson, have as instructors this week members of the regular FBI training staff.

Some of the subjects to be taken up are juvenile delinquency, new investigation techniques, science in law enforcement, traffic control, police records and fingerprint work.

The group will attend a banquet at 6:15 p. m. tomorrow at the Mayflower Hotel. On Friday morning, the presentation of certificates to the retraining graduates will be combined with graduation exercises for the 100 men in the thirty-sixth session of the FBI National Academy.

Leadership Change Needed, Says Church Federation Official

A thinly-veiled call for emoval of Police Chief Robert J. Barett and Commissioner John Russell Young was made yesterday by an official of the Washington Federation of Churches.

Dr. Reissig

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Federation, told the Washington Ministerial Uion that a "change of leadership is needed."

He expresseed the hope that "a movement will be started to provide adequate leadership for our city government and for the police department." He named Barrett and Young specifically.

Commissioner Young was mentioned in that "his is part of the responsibility for the police department," Dr. Reissig declared.

Opposed His Selection

He said the federation had written to the Commissioners and to the President prior to Barrett's appointment, asking that he not be named. "We were assured," he said after his address, "that Chief Barrett would not be named," but he declined to identify source of the assurance.

The remarks, made in an address on "The Churches Look at Greater Washington," were given, Dr. Reissig said later, "as one minister speaking to fellow members of the group.

"While I was not actually speaking for the federation, I am its executive secretary, and I felt free to speak because of the federation's intense interest and activity in th situation."

Has Conducted Study

He also revealed his organization has been conducting a three-month study of Washington's crime picture, its sociological and religious phases. He urged an investigation of "all the letters and telegrams sent the Commissioners for and against Barrett's appointment."

Prepared material on the study will be supplied all ministers when it is completed, he said.

Advised of Dr. Reissig's statements, Chief Barrett told a reporter of The Washington Post: "You know what my comment is—no comment!

"Who is that guy?" he asked.

Commissioner Young had left his office and was not available for commen.

Dr. Reissig entered his discussion on he Washington police situation by referring to, and commending, an editorial which appeared in The Washington Post September 24—"First in Crime." He read it, he told the ministers, to show "The Washington Post is alert to the situation."

Penal Budget Asks $251,000 More, 12 Jobs

A $2,751,000 budget to run Washington's penal institutions for the year starting next July 1 was proposed yesterday by Donald Clemmer, District Corrections Director.

This year's budget for the Corrections Department is $2,500,000. Funds for supplies and equipment, within-grade salary boosts, and for 12 new jobs in the department accounted for most of the proposed increase.

Among the new jobs would be that of assistant superintendent at the District workhouse, with a $4526 salary, and a prison chaplain to serve all the penal institutions at a salary of $4150.

More for Electrocutions

On the somber side was a request for $300 more than this year for fees for electrocutions. Two are budgeted this year, with $150 as the fee for each. There were four in 1947, and with nine convicted murderers under sentence of death at the jail now, the department expects to ask for extra money in the current fiscal year. The proposed budget for the next fiscal year would take care of four.

The burget also asked for authority in the next appropriation bill for special studies into the causes of crime and methods for reducing the criminal tendency of prisoners. This would be done with present personnel and without extra money.

Jail Population Jump Seen

With an eye on local crime increases, the proposed budget was based on an expected increase in the population at the Occoquan Workhouse and Lorton Reformatory. The department's figures on population for the two institutions in past years, and the estimates for coming years were: 1942, 2900; in 1943, 2508; in 1944, 1882; in 1945, 1578; in 1946, 1570; in 1947, 1674; estimated 1948, 1900, and estimated 1949, 2050. The years are fiscal years.

Similar figures for District jails: in 1942, 583; in 1943, 656; in 1944, 554; in 1945, 476; in 1946, 529; in 1947, 670; in 1948, 600; in 1949, 700.

The department also asked $35,000 to mechanize its farm and to start replacing trucks.

Baltimore Man, 80, Makes 2d Trip To Natural Bridge

Natural Bridge, Va., Sept. 29 (AP). The first time Joseph B. Cahn of Baltimore came to Natural Bridge he brought his bicycle. This time he brought his wife—to celebrate their 54th wedding anniversary.

Cahn, now 80, recalled today that it was 63 years ago when he and a companion rode their bikes from Baltimore down the valley of Virginia. It took them two weeks to make it to Roanoke, where they took a train to the coast and went back North by boat.

Bicycling was slightly more rugged in those days, Cahn recalled, "We kept revolvers strapped to our bike handles in case of trouble," said the elderly vacationer. Mr. and Mrs. Cahn live in Baltimore.

Earlier in the day, spokesmen of opposing sides were in disagreement as to whether some of the union's proposals were legal under the Taft-Hartley Law.

The union's scale committee will meet with management representa tives tomorrow to discuss "economic aspects" of the contract offer, Jacob J. Edelman, union counsel, said. The present contract expires tomorrow.

Trash Tariff Increased in Montgomery

Increase of 25 cents in the monthly charge for refuse collection in Montgomery County suburban areas was announced yesterday by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission.

The new rate will be $1.50 a month, effective tomorrow. Apartment units will pay $1.25 per month.

The increase is made necessary by increased costs of collection, the commission explained, stating that pay collectors and truck drivers have increased 35.7 per cent since the service was started November 1, 1943.

Commisison officials said 1946 collection returns showed a 20 per cent deficit.

The commission collects refuse from individual homes and small apartment groups. There were 13,150 units from which collections were made in 1946, now increased to more than 15,000. It is estimated the number will be approximately 16,000 by the end of 1948.

The annual cost per unit of $18 in 1946 is expected to be reduced slightly this year because of the larger number of units.

Miami, Fla., Sept. 28 (AP).—The Coast Guard here reported today that winds of gale force and heavy seas along the southern Atlantic coast brought messages of distress from three vessels, while a fourth reported a man lost overboard during the night off the eastern tip of Cuba.

The 280-foot American freighter Julius H. Barnes radioed early today it was having engine trouble and in need of assistance in rough seas.

Grandmother Claims Mother Admitted Lack of Love for Son

Mrs.Edith Bessie Dye, 24-year-old ex-Wac, once admitted she did not have a mother's love toward her young son, the boy's grandmother testified yesterday.

The mother of the six-year-old by and her mother, Mrs. Clyde King, 308 Seaton pl. ne., are involved in a custody battle over the child. The boy has been living with his grandparents since he was a year old after separation of Mrs. Dye and her husband.

Mrs. King declared her daughter once told her that she regarded her son "as a brother" and was unable to show the affection toward him that a mother should have.

Mrs. Dye is seeking to regain custody of the lad, Edward LeRoy.

Mrs. King tstified that her daughter refused to stand the expense of an operation to cure the child of cross-eyes and that the grandparents had the surgery performed at their own expense. She asserted that Mrs. Dye failed to inquire about the child's health following the operations.

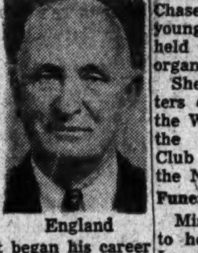

Earlier, Mrs. Elizabeth Green, 224 S st. ne., who once rented rooms to the Kings and Mrs. Dye, testified that the child's mother "seemed to care for her son when she was thre—but she was seldom there."

Mrs. Ruth Smithies of Baltimore, a close friend of Mrs. Dye's told how she saw Clyde King, Edward's grandfather, strike the child when he crept into King's lap as the latter was reading a newspaper.

After 40 Years

Col. England Quits as FTC Economist

Col. William H. England, chief economist of the Federal Trade Commission, retired yesterday after nearly 40 years in Federal service.

England

Among those lauding the retiring veteran at a special FTC luncheon were Commissioners Garland S. Ferguson, Lowell B. Maston and Robert E. Freer.

A native of Edinburg, Ind., the genial, white haired economist began his career in 1908 as a special agent for the Bureau of Corporations. He was transferred to the FTC in 1915 when that office was organized.

Colonel England became chief economist in 1941, after serving as assistant chief economist for 20 years. He holds a Ph. D. in economics from the University of Nebraska.

Colonel England played a leading role in the Commission's investigation of utility corporations from 1928 to 1935, and in the farm machinery investigation of 1938. A saving of 40 million dollars to American farmers resulted from the latter inquiry, his records show.

His military title stems from his commission as a colonel in the Infantry Reserve during World War I service. He was wounded in combat in the Philippines Insurrection in 1898-99.

Colonel England, who will be 71 in December, terms the Federal Trade Commission "the finest graduate school for economists in the world." He adds that he has "enjoyed the work tremendously."

He has made no plans for future activity beyond "doing some writing on economics at his home at 1344 Iris st. nw. He is married and the father of two sons, both World War II veterans.

Friends Wonder

How Much Will Jimmy Tell In New Book?

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

REST AND GETTING the State Department out of his hair has perked up Jimmy Byrnes no end. At the Belmont races over the weekend, he was pink-cheeked, stepping briskly, looked 15 years younger. His book is due for publication October 16.

Jimmy was born with buttoned lips so everyone's wondering whether he'll tell all. Astute Elder Statesman Bernard Baruch, thumbing through an advance copy, intrigued interested listeners by murmuring over and over, "My, my, there's something Jimmy left out—here—and here."

"Liz" Altemus Whitney was up from Upperville for the Belmont racing with her new beau. He's a doctor and quite a contrast to her other prize catches which included Jock Whitney and movie star Bruce Cabot. Liz astonished the chilly spectators by going barelegged, ballet slippered, her short-short skirt topped by a gray fur coat. The doctor added a nice bit of mystery by wearing dark glasses as concealing as Victor Kravchenko's.

"Cesca's" Off to Europe

FRANCESCA LODGE, wife of Connecticut Representative John Davis Lodge, has been glorified in Look magazine as "The Most Talked About Woman in Washington." Francesca was pictured in leopard skin tights, gymnasium shorts, plus a rear view, showing how she bundles up her waist-length, yellow hair on a ribbon.

Now Cesca's off to Europe for Look magazine to write articles in Rome, Paris, London. Her friends are really frightened about what the liveliest member of the Braggiotti clan will dig up.

Natalie Paine to Be Decorated

NATALIE WALES LATHAM PAINE will stop off in Washington October 31 to pick up a British decoration, the Order of the British Empire. Natalie's the gal who thought up Bundles for Britain, built it into a widespread, efficient institution. Since then Natalie's held down a job on the New York Times, but switched last year to her newest crusade, Common Cause.

It's an antitotalitarian movement which has attracted some of our most prominent thinkers and has spread quietly to 42 States. Part of Common Cause is sending to Europe Bundles for Freedom, on the sound theory that well fed, well dressed people won't succumb to communism.

Besides Common Cause, Natalie's behind the Ballet Theater move to become a nationally subsidized institution. Last summer Natalie, who "bundled for Britain" as Mrs. Latham, married an old time friend, Edward Briggs Paine.

British Visitors in Annapolis

THERE ARE BIG doings down in Annapolis this week. H. M. S. Sheffield is paying an official visit and her commander, Admiral Sir William Tennant, will be guest of honor at a reception given by Rear Admiral James L. Holloway, jr., at the Superintendent's Quarters tomorrow. Thursday Admiral Tennant is coming to Washington, hoisting his flag on the H. M. S. Snipe (which conveniently is sitting in the Potomac), will make official visits and, presumably, be called on in return. Then he's to whisk back to Annapolis for luncheon with the Midshipmen in Bancroft Hall.

On Sunday the admiral, who commands the Atlantic and West Indies Fleet, will host a big reception on the Sheffield. Scads of Washingtonians have been invited. As entertainment the admiral's staging whale boat races between his "ratings" and American Blue Jackets.

To make it fair and square, they'll race first in United States boats, then in the Sheffield's boats. Later there's to be a gigantic tug-of-war between British and American gobs.

The honor conferred upon him by the War Department was in recognition of his work in the underground during the war.

Stay on the 10-Day Slimming Schedule

'Little Woman' Must Say 'No' To Sweets for a Lovely Figure

By Ida Jean Kain

A DOZEN excess pounds bunch up more on the stocky figure than they do on the figure of average height, or taller.

The little woman of 5 feet 2 inches is slim at 115 pounds, and pleasingly plump at 120, but with another 10 pounds piled on she has definitely gone to waist . . . and on her the new styles do not look good!

The average woman, 5 feet 4 inches, has no kick coming. She is streamlined at 125 pounds, and nicely curved with an extra 10 pounds. Even 140 pounds will not cramp her style if she will s-t-r-e-t-c-h to keep slim in the middle.

And the tall, slender girl 5 feet 6½ inches, is standing in clover. She is slender at 135 pounds, still willowy with 10 extra pounds, and termed a fine-figure-of-a-woman at 150 pounds.

If your weight is normal for your structure, you do not need a diet in order to fit into the new styles beautifully . . . all that's needed is a spot of exercise for the midriff.

BUT IF YOU are just a whiff over 5 feet and definitely bordering on buxom, your best bet is to follow a pattern of eating that allows for ample food within fairly low calorie limits. You can never go overboard on calories and keep your weight within reason mainly because your requirements are too low to allow a margin for extras.

It will make it easier to adopt a new psychology about fattening foods. Refuse to like them. Why should you be fond of fats for example, when they bunch up on your figure? Calories lurk in the trimmings . . . trim them off! Mayonnaise, gravy and the fat part of the meat boost the calories. They are just not worth what they do to your figure. Fats of all kinds contribute 2¼ times as many calories as proteins or carbohydrates.

And keep the starches strictly in their place. Limit bread to three slices a day, or two slices and a roll. And make it a point not to have more than one starchy vegetable with a meal.

Make protein the backbone of each meal. Protein keeps muscular tissue in good repair, and supplies energy, and any excess tends to burn itself off rather than to be stored.

The new WAIST-WHITTLING DIET is made to order for the stocky girl.

But This Mother Does It Well

Raising Brood Single-Handed Is No Cinch

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

WHENEVER a mother, safe and cozy in her own home and with a husband who loves her and shares the responsibilities of their children, begins to feel that her burdens are too heavy or her life too dull, let her read the following letter and count her blessings.

Mrs. C. H. writes: "I haven't found occasion to write to you for advice, but I do feel as if you were a personal friend and I want to tell you about my family. You have been such a help in rearing them from the baby stage.

Marriage Doomed

"I HAVE THREE boys, 4½, 3½ and 2½ years.

I am 23 years old. My husband and I have been divorced for thirteen months. He went to service the day my second baby was born. From the time my third was on the way my marriage was doomed. He couldn't take the responsibility of three children after the freedom he had had in the Army.

"I should have recognized this weakness in him, but he was much older than I and seemed to want children. He never comes near us, doesn't seem to be the least interested.

"I am so proud of my children. There is so much love and harmony between the four of us. There isn't a sissy in the crowd, no wet pants or beds, no spoiled brats, no bad manners. They are almost too good to be true.

"My friends bring me their problems and I have cared for as many as four extra children, to supplement my small income. Then I have a job working nights from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. My lady roomer is here nights so that the children are not alone: I give her free room rent for this service.

Well Trained Brood

"I TAKE all my brood downtown occasionally for a show or for shopping. I dress them alike and they hold hands like stairsteps. They really stop traffic: In a store they stand in a circle holding hands until I say, 'Let's go, boys.'

"There are no bribes, no threats, no fear in our family. I expect them to be good and they love me enough to want to be good.

"When they were small I said 'no' and slapped my hands lightly. Then I merely said 'no,' and now I just shake my head. Praise and compliments are abundant. Even the littlest says, 'Pretty dinner, Mummy,' or 'Micky was a good boy,' to his older brother.

"They clean their own room, make their own bed. Lights are out at 7 p. m. and no playing or talking. They all take a nap in the afternoon. Things do work out with faith and humor. Best wishes to you, we need you."

Now, don't you feel humble? I do.

Visitor Describes Factory

Sewing Machines Keep Time To Music in Johannesburg

Here from South Africa to learn something of methods used in the United States garment industry, vivacious, auburn-haired Mrs. Natalie Lester is responsible for many improved working conditions for women in her own country.

Personnel manager of a manufacturing company in Johannesburg which produces women's underwear, she relates a story of workers who would rather come to the factory than stay home—even though their minimum wage for a 42½-week is equivalent to $20.

The Reasons

Here are some of the reasons: A large glassed-in sewing room where the sun streams through gay floral curtains . . . recorded music (waltzes and marches) played over a loudspeaker system at various intervals during the day . . . machines colored to lessen eye-strain—a soft "eye-rest" green for the main section, other pastels for different parts . . . a canteen where a well-balanced meal providing a full day's caloric value may be had for about 20 cents . . . two half-hour gym periods a week—on company time . . . weekly movies shown during the lunch hour . . . a shop commissary on a nonprofit basis selling certain types of food and clothing. Most popular films are American ones of the comic cartoon and educational variety, many of which are obtained from the U. S. Information Library in Johannesburg.

Mrs. Lester admits she is speaking only about conditions in her own factory, which was one of the first in South Africa to introduce employe benefits. She also reports living and clothing costs are not as high as they are here.

"We believe happy work is work well done," she replied when asked if diversions didn't slow production. "We find the color and music reduce fatigue." Recently, the women were granted a bouns on weekly individual production. The 150 workers come from rural Afrikaann-speaking (Dutch) ancestry.

Wife of Doctor

Mrs. Lester, who was born in the Transvaal, is a graduate of the University of Cape Town and in private life is the wife of Dr. L. Dens-Lester, a Johannesburg physician. Sent by her firm, the Mayfair Manufacturing Co., she has been studying personnel management at the London School of Economics since last February, supplementing her classes with plant visits to various parts of England, Scotland, and the Scandinavian countries.

Before taking up personnel work, she taught in high schools and founded the Inter-High School Council for Community Service, first of its kind in South Africa.

Awed by New York and its skyscrapers, she is entranced with Washington, "It's fully as beautiful as Paris," she declared.

Mrs. Lester plans to leave tomorrow to visit factories in Los Angeles, San Francisco, and St. Louis. She will confer with labor, management and government officials, and is especially interested in increasing worker efficiency and productivity through motion and time study. Her three-month program in this country is being arranged through the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor.

Avoiding Fears

Wise persons avoid controlling a child's behavior through fear and threats. It is their job to eliminate fear from a child's make-up, not suggest it by idle threats. It only makes a nervous child, who grows away from his parents rather than closer to them.

Smeary Mahogany

We have all been confronted with that blue, smeary look on mahogany furniture and had trouble polishing it satisfactorily. Sponge it first with a cloth dipped in a solution of hot water and vinegar and then with a cloth dipped in a pint of warm water to which one teaspoon each linseed oil and turpentine have been added. Polish with a dry soft cloth and your smeary appearance will have turned to a nice gloss.

Bits of Housekeeping Lore

Sprinkle borated talcum powder into the new shoes for comfort.

Gloves will retain their shape better if washed and rinsed on the hands.

Small washable rugs add to the winter comfort of the kitchen and take away the cold look of the linoleum.

Cretonnes washed and then rinsed in water in which rice has been boiled will regain their original stiffness.

If the young man of the family is hard on trouser cuffs, try sewing a small strip of leather on the inside of the cuff.

If your raincoat flaps open at the bottom in a windy rainstorm, sew one or two snaps below the lowest button and use them in emergencies to protect the skirt beneath.

For Breaking the Party Ice

You don't need a horse or the old church tower to play "Paul Revere's Ride" and it's a wonderful icebreaker to start a party rolling. Ask any of your fun-loving guests to be Paul Revere. Then show him the obstacle-strewn path he must cover to spread his news. On the floor—a glass of water, a tomato, a hat, a roller skate. Permit him one practice run through them.

Then blindfold him and while he is being twirled around, quietly remove the obstacles. Now sit back and watch the cautious progress of the blindfolded "Paul" warily stepping across the empty floor, shouting "The British are coming!" as he goes.

For testing ingenuity, divide your guests into two teams and pin two pieces of paper to the wall. The first player in each line rushes forth, writes a word and gives the pencil to the next one. The object: which team can write the most intelligible sentence in the shortest time.

There are other word games, fortune telling stunts, and parlor magic tricks for every occasion in our Reader Service booklet No. 60, along with hints on invitations, prizes and forfeits which help make a party successful.

Send 25c (coin) for "Game For Good Parties" to The Washington Post, Reader Service, 243 West 17th Street, New York 11, N. Y. Print name, address with zone, booklet title and No. 60.

Mrs. Rosalie Edge Fights to Protect Birds and Trees

Probably the outstanding feminine fighter for conservation in the United States today is Mrs. Rosalie Edge of New York City, president of the Emergency Conservation Council. Her co-workers say Mrs. Edge "has a continent for a garden." She helped to obtain a treaty with Mexico to protect wild birds. She helped save the Douglas fir, the Sitka spruce, the red cedar and the hemlock in the Northwest. She established the famous Hawk Mountain Sanctuary near Dresherville, Pa., a spot where thousands of beneficial birds of prey once were killed annually during migration periods.

Woma Disputes With Her Cousin Who Wants To Mrry Man 25 Years Her Junior; Critic Thins the Idea Is Silly; Asks Comment

DEA MARY HAWORTH: My cousin nd I are having an argument, he wants to marry a man 25 yes younger than herself. I think hat's silly. She will be an old man when he is in his prime.

Gand on for seven years she has en seeing him and she says she kes him better than anyone else he knows and that they both lov each other. What do you thi of it? I shall watch your colmn for an answer. K. P.

Ctic Sticks Hr Neck Out

DEAR K. P.: Towards the end of His teaching, Jesus rebuked Peter for probing the question of John's future course. "What is that to thee?" Jesus retorted, thus implying volumes concerning the profit and propriety of attending to one's own salvation. Minding one's own business, in other words.

Thus if your cousin wants to marry a man 25 years her junior, what is that to thee? In my opinion, that's her business; and I think it's shy the way some women are always time-clocking other women's age and rendering unasked judments as to whether or not they're "acting" it.

However, to define my slant on the argument posed: If your cousin's "intended" is of adult age and she is 25 years his senior, she is old enough surely to know what she wants; and old enough also to spend her life as she pases—within the law, of course.

The eal Rx For appiness

FURTHERMORE, if her devotion to the man incorporates both love and comfortable liking after seven years' friendship and he feels the same about her, I should say that a natural affinity of the sort exists, which only the ignorant or envious would attempt to gainsay.

As for your lugubrious prediction that she will be an old woman when he reaches his prime—how do you know? She might die comparatively early; or she might be left a widow before her bloom fades.

On the other hand, supposing they're still together 25 years hence, maybe she has intrinsic vitality and a youthful daring vitality that will register to the end, equating charm—something like the dauntless Mrs. Parkington in Louis Bromfield's novel of that name.

In any event, abundant living consists in accepting, enjoying and giving thanks for present blessings, chief of which are love and companionship. This is the Rx for happiness, now and forever. Haven't you ever noticed that happy-hearted people seem to touch off a chain reaction of happy experiences for themselves, lasting through life? M. H.

Girl in Love Gives Lavishly

DEAR MARY HAYWORTH: My parents and some of our friends insist that it isn't proper for a young girl to give her boy friend gifts on special occasions. The young man and I are now engaged.

At first I gave him small gifts, such as cuff links, etc., costing between $10 and $15; and he always brings me expensive gifts on special occasions as well as lovely small trinkets, perfume or chocolates at other times.

Lately I have been giving him more expensive gifts such as a watch and traveling bag. Yesterday I gave him a camera for his birthday, which rekindled the criticism. I consider these practical gifts, some of which we will enjoy together after marriage; and our appreciation of each other's gifts makes us both very happy. Whose viewpoint is right—my parents or mine? G. N.

A Premature Expenditure

DEAR G. N.: After marriage is soon enough to lavish gifts on the man in your life. There's many a slip twixt the cup and the lip; and the best-laid plans of mice and men gang aft agley. Supposing this man ups and marries somebody else, how would you feel about all the cash you've invested in him? Pretty sore, I dare say; and also horribly humiliated.

According to genteel social mores, it is bad taste for a woman to give expensive gifts to a man, whether friend or fiance, and puts her in the light of bartering for his favor or showing premature undue proprietary feeling.

Moreover, genteel usage aside, regional custom is the final arbiter of good form in communities detached from urban centers of culture. And the fact that your family and friends deplore your practice of spending heavily on this man suggests that you are offending local standards of nicety in addition to violating old school etiquette. In the eyes of your world, you are open to criticism; and talking defensively about your philosophy won't change that. M. H.

Would you give a youngster who has been ill a daily dose of whisky? A young mother, whose husband insists the toddy is good medicine, asks Mary Haworth's advice in her column tomorrow.

Mary Haworth counsels through her column, not by mail or personal interview. Write her in care of The Washington Post.

Cauliflower acquires a new and tantalizing flavor when combined with green peas and served with lemon-butter sauce. Make the sauce by melting ½ cup of butter and adding the juice of ½ lemon, 3 tablespoons of chopped parsley. Serve it in a side dish

Your Questions On Homemaking

I have a black rayon dress which I ironed on the right side, causing it to become shiny. I have washed it and ironed it on the wrong side and even had it dry cleaned, but the shine remains. Is there any way it can be removed? E.B.

Sponging the shiny places with a solution of vinegar and water may be helpful.

This may sound like shutting the barn door after the horse has gone, but there have been a number of requests lately about removing shine from rayon. The best remedy is to iron rayon carefully in the first place. The directions are:

1. Have your iron set on "rayon" so that it will not get too hot. If your iron does not have heat control experiment on an inner seam and if the material sticks even a little bit the iron is too hot.
2. Iron rayon on the wrong side.
3. If the pockets, collars or other outside pieces need touching up be sure and use a press cloth over them.
4. Use a board that is well padded.
5. Be sure that in washable rayon, you rinse out all the soap. Soap left in the fabric causes grease spots and a shiny look.

1. I have a pair of lace gloves which have lost their stiffness. What would you advise to restiffen them?

2. My flat silver and trays get black specks on them even though I clean them every two of three months. Some of the spots I am able to remove with silver polish, but they return later. Others aren't even dimmed by the polish. What would you suggest?

3. I have a hoop-skirt and for wasp waist effect would like to have the old-fashioned type corset that has stays in it and laces up the back. Can you tell me where I might find one?

1. A light starch with bluing added (so that the white starch won't show up on the black lace) or a gum arabic solution will stiffen your lace gloves. Use 1 quart boiling water to 1 ounce powdered gum arabic (purchasable at drug stores). Stir over a low heat until the arabic is completely dissolved, then cool with 1 quart cold water. Cool to lukewarm before dipping gloves.
2. Buffing by a jeweler is about the only way such black spots (made by acid or salt eating into the surface) can be permanently removed from silverware.
3. Several of the local stores are now selling the type of corset you describe to go with certain of the new fall gowns.

We would like to finish our basement to be used as a play room, but during the summer it is useless because of condensation. Can you tell us what kind of expert we might go to and learn if such a plan is feasible? M. E. O.

Listed under "Home Improvements" in the yellow section of your telephone company are a number of companies that can give you assistance with your problem.

MARKET MEMO

By Lucia Brown

ALL THOSE nut-sweet vegetables typical of the fall season . . . broccoli, rutabagas, sweet potatoes, cauliflower, brussel sprouts, hubbard and acorn squash . . . are reaching the market in increasing quantities these days.

They're hearty foods . . . fully capable of stretching the meat supply . . . and they've never received a heartier welcome than in the current food crisis. Broccoli, brussel sprouts, and cauliflower are all members of the cabbage family . . . and therefore contain plenty of vitamin C, B-1, and G. Top broccoli with lots of cheese sauce, cook brussel sprouts with chopped bacon, or escallop cauliflower with cheese . . . and you have a main dish for your meal.

Something new that's hitting the Washington market this week is an extra-special canned orange juice. Watch for it in your store when you do your weekend marketing. They say its flavor is closer to fresh orange juice than any similar product to date. It's pasteurized in a minute-and-a-half . . . cooled in a minute-and-a-half . . . and thus misses the long exposure to heat that's hard on orange juice flavor.

For a More Pleasant Home

Laundering time may be saved for women who have washers if they wash the silken garments or stockings in a nearby basin or tub while the first batch of wash is whirling away in the machine.

A few large lumps of unslaked lime or charcoal spread on places in different parts of the cellar or basement will do a great deal toward keeping the air sweet and absorb dampness.

An orderly household is a splendid thing but do not have things on such a strict routine that all the fun of the home passes by the board in lieu of efficiency. Much of the joy of living comes with the unexpected and with nothing but routine and order in a home there is no spontaneous fun for the children or grown-ups, either.

Give careful thought to the color of the tapes when selecting venetian blinds for your home. The tapes and cords can give a note of color to a drab room that could not be accomplished otherwise. If the room is colorful a natural shade to match the blinds may be the wise selection.

Pastor, Wife And Triplets Fly to Detroit

Mark yawned, closed his eyes and fell asleep. Andrew and Stephen, also 8 months old, looked around, smiled and then settled down to playing with their fingers.

And thus was launched the first plane trip of the Washington-born Spofford triplets.

Mama and Papa Spofford—he is a 26-year-old minister and she a 22-year-old recent college coed—took the pending air jaunt to Detroit with no more bustle than did their strictly indifferent babies.

But all this calm came after the storm. For instance:

Timothy, who at 2 is a big brother to Mark, Andrew and Stephen, romped in the aisle of the big four-engined DC-4.

His 80-year-old grandmother, Mrs. Arthur S. Phelps, of 1735 New Hampshire ave. nw., bustled about.

His granddad, Arthur H. Fawcett, 48, of the New Hampshire st. address, stood nervously by, as if in search of something to do.

Attaches of Capital Airlines strode helpfully up and down the plane's corridor, asking questions, answering them, doing this and that to ease the burden of the Spofford couple with the many babies.

But the Rev. William B. Spofford, jr., formerly of New Jersey, grinned through it all and kept calm. And Mrs. Spofford, she determinedly remained unflied.

In fact, the only time Mrs. Spofford ever lost her composure, according to her father, "was the day she found out she would have triplets."

Strictly for photographic purposes, the young mother fed her three youngest offspring bottles of milk—part of the nine the couple prepared in advance for the trip. She helped Stephen blow his nose, adjusted Andrew's hat and whispered "shame" at Mark when he snoozed off.

When the plane got off—with some 20 other passengers aboard—Mr. Spofford was holding Mark, Mrs. Spofford sat with Stephen on her lap—a Capital Airline employe, Miss Mary Jane White, who went along on the trip "just for the fun," had Andrew—and brother Timothy sat like a big boy alone gazing out the window.

If not for the babies, her dad disclosed later, Mrs. Spofford would still be in college. She had just one year to go at Mount Holyoke when she went to Garfield Hospital instead. Mr. Spofford will now be rector of a church in Detroit.

Md. Health Aide Answers Charge Against Hospital

Baltimore, Sept. 29 (AP).—Meats cooked at the Mt. Wilson Tuberculosis Sanatorium may be fish-flavored because they are cooked in the same oil and pans as the fish, but that the food is spoiled is "onconceivable," the State Health Department reported.

Governor Lane asked for a report after Sylvia Sard, Baltimore, had charged spoiled and uncooked foods were served to patients; that toilet and bathing facilities were out of order; that the beds were "atrocious"; that there were no sterilizers for bed pans or medicine glasses; and that the diet kitchen stoves were faulty.

Dr. C. H. Halliday, deputy heatlh commissioner, reported after an inspection that "all patients interviewed by me seemed to be happy and were complimentary in their remarks relative to the institution as a whole." Efforts are being made to renovate mattresses and get funds for additional equipment and facilities, he added. The hospital is short five nurses, the report said.

MINDING YOUR BUSINESS

You Can't Spend Inventory Profits

STARTING NEXT WEEK, third-quarter corporation reports will go out to stockholders. The tidings will be good. During July, August and September, sales volume held up, prices didn't take a header, a recession was noticeably absent, and increases in costs were easily passed on to the ultimate consumer.

Yet stockholders will do well to give the earnings statements the scrutinous eye before rushing out to stores to spend expected extra dividends. Similarly, labor leaders are advised to set their accountants and analysts to work on the reports before demanding wage increases.

Livingston

Accounting is playing us tricks. Corporations are not making off with as big a share of the national-income pie as the reports suggest. Consider the first six months of this year. The figures show profits at an all-time annual rate of 17.4 billions. That's twice 1929. But of that amount, 5.4 billions was strictly a false profit. It came from the rise in the value of inventories.

And if you subtract it, as the Department of Commerce does when computing the national income, then corporation profits for the first half were at the annual rate of only 12 billions. True, that's not bubble gum. It's almost 50 per cent higher than 1929. But it's not in pace with the rise in the national income. Corporation profits are running at the rate of 6 per cent of the national income today, as against 8 per cent in 1940 and 10 per cent in 1929.

THE CORPORATION these days is like the housewife. She has to feed the brute and the other members of his family. She has her stock in trade in the kitchen—her flour, salt, sugar, pepper, ketchup, shortening, bacon, butter, eggs, canned goods, oatmeal, dry cereals and so on. They're her working capital. And they've gone up in price some 20 per cent in the last year. Therefore, does the housewife say, "I've made a profit on my inventory, I'm going to go on a shopping spree"? No, indeed, she has to replace that inventory. She knows her week-to-week replacement costs are up. She knows an inventory profit is an accountant's illusion. So she probably tells the master of the household that it's high time he tackled the boss for a raise.

There's another gimmick in postwar accounting. Corporations are not setting aside sufficient wear-and-tear reserves to replace used-up equipment. Charles M. White, president of Republic Steel Corp., has noted that it "costs 3½ times as much to build blast furnaces, coke ovens and other equipment as in 1913 to 1918 when most of the steel industry was built." As a result, when depreciation is charged on the basis of original cost, the company fails to realize the full value of expended plant. It's overstating earnings by the amount of underdepreciation.

This is a matter of social significance. If corporation directors raise dividends based on false earnings, they are, in effect, giving stockholders back their capital. They're reducing the operating value of the company. The dollars, as toted up on the balance sheet, may be there. But the productive capacity isn't. The stockholder owns a wasting asset.

Similarly, the labor leader will be the head of a diminishing union membership. If the company reduces its substance—its plant and its working capital—the day will arrive when there will be fewer jobs. What's more, the workers and the labor unions are bound to seek wage boosts based on these inflated profits, which really aren't there—at least for the long run.

THE HOUSEWIFE never sells her inventory. Nor does the corporation, in the true sense. The businessman may add to his inventory at times, and he may reduce it at other times. But over the years, the hard core of his business consists of his raw materials or his semifinished and finished goods. In an economic sense, profits or earnings are what you have left at the end of the year over and above what you started with. That doesn't mean dollars; it means toting up your assets—your physical plant, your physical inventory, and your cash on hand at the beginning and the end of the period. The difference represents what you took from society as payment for your labor.

Accounting doesn't look at it that way. The accountant deals with a stream of incoming and outgoing dollars. The difference in the course of a year represents profit. It doesn't matter whether the dollars have greater or lesser purchasing power. Thus, during the 1930-33 depression, when prices were going down, many corporations were improving their plant, increasing their inventories and came out of the depression stronger than ever. Their books showed just the opposite.

Corporations, of course, recognize the problem. Thus, Procter & Gamble has set up special inventory reserves and U. S. Steel has established special reserves for under-depreciation. However, only careful investment analysts know about it. The public doesn't.

THUS, THESE questions arise: Could not accountants and auditors go farther than they now do? Could they not present a balance sheet that shows increases or decreases in the physical value of a plant or inventory as well as the dollar value? Could they not also set up a supplementary income account to reflect such changes? The Department of Commerce does that with national income estimates. It shows them on a fixed dollar base as well as in current dollars. Such a procedure could permit stockholders to judge the real worth of their corporation. Also it would enable labor leaders, Congressmen, and other members of society to measure intelligently the real take-home of corporations. This is basic to a democratic way of life. Nothing is more important than a correct understanding of what the other fellow gets. Only in that way can you judge whether he's getting too much or too little and whether you, yourself, ought to get more.

New York Cotton

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—Cotton futures were strong in active dealings today, reported by brokerage trade and outside interests. Final prices were $1.60 to $2.25 a bale higher.

The upturn was influenced partly by the sharp advance in other commodity markets and the continued good demand for cotton textiles into the second half of next year, despite rising prices.

Expectations of a higher mid-September cotton parity and buying associated with Commodity Credit Corp. purchases of cotton for Japan also aided the market.

Revenue passengers last month totaled 29,900,807, off 3,889,315 or 11.5 per cent from August, 1946. Operating revenues of $2,224,091 dropped $3412.

Modest Gains In Stock List Led by Steels

New York, Sept. 29 (AP).—The stock market today broke its lengthy string of losing Mondays with a modest average advance led by steels and selected industrials.

Activity picked up at intervals after the opening but slowdowns were frequent. Gains running to a point or more maintained the majority at the close, although top marks were reduced in many cases and a shattering of pivotals shifted to the minus column. Transfers of 740,000 shares compared with 640,000 Friday.

Buying was attributed partly to the thought that the recent decline had put the list in technical shape for a fall rally. Some bidding also was based on the belief today's presidential conference would result in a special congressional session with big-scale dollar relief being voted for Europe as a stopgap measure. The dark foreign picture, including Russian complications, remained as a sobering influence.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP).—Grains scored the limits permitted in a single session on the Board of Trade and other exchanges throughout the country today.

Touching off the buying movement was a report by a committee of presidential advisers over the weekend that the United States should try to export 570 million bushels of all grains, including 500 million bushels of wheat and flour, in this crop year.

Conferences between President Truman and congressional leaders in Washington emphasizing the tight world-wide food situation added to the inflationary psychology.

Wheat closed 10 cents higher, December 2.85⅛; corn was up 8 cents, December 2.32⅛; oats ahead 6 cents, December 1.16¾, and soybeans up 8 cents, November 3.42. Lard also spurted, closing 1.20 to 1.60 100 pounds higher, October 24.00.

The report to President Truman, made by a group of industrial and agricultural advisers, conflicted with a recommendation made by the Cabinet Food Committee last week. The Cabinet Committee had said that exports should be held to around 475 million bushels, including 400 million bushels of wheat and flour.

There was no indication while the market was in session as to which of these recommendations would become the ultimate goal.

Grain experts figured that exports of 570 million bushels would leave a very small carryover of grain on July 1, 1948. Traders were impressed by the possibility that to obtain such large quantities of wheat it would be necessary for the Government to push up prices.

Salisbury, Md., Sept. 29 (AP).—A period of two and a half hours between takeoff and crash occupied the attention of investigators today as they inquired into an air accident that killed thre men.

Sergt. C. C. Serman of the State police reported that Federal aviation authorities were looking into the wreck, which occurred at Wetipquin, Md., Saturday night.

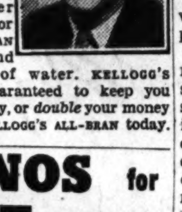

Found beside the four-seater craft were the bodies of William Michael Duncan, 23, Cumberland, and Preston Stanley Sterling, 19, Crisfield. Searchers located the body of Richard Nelson, 42, Crisfield oyster packer, several hundred fet from the wreckage.

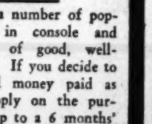

Police said the plane took off from Crisfield at 9 p. m. Saturday, but nothing was heard about it from that hour until it plunged into the woods.

Louisa Mayor Decides to Yield Office

Louisa, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—William A. Cooke agreed today to yield his disputed position as Mayor of Louisa and turn over the town records and accounts to his court-appointed successor, Edgar T. Reeves, jr., counsel for the contestant, disclosed.

Cooke wrote him that Judge Burnet Miller, jr.'s decision was wrong, in his belief, but that he would turn over the accounts and records to Joseph N. Porter tomorrow without prejudice to his own claim, Reeves said.

Mayor Cooke, who held on to his office after the town elections because none of the candidates for mayor and council had qualified in time, won a legal victory in court but lost his job as mayor. Judge Miller upheld his contention that the mayoralty and the council seats were vacant and then, appointed those who had received the most votes. Cooke was not a candidate for reelection.

Reeves said Cooke, whom he had threatened to "mandamus out of office" if he didn't turn over the records and accounts by the first thing this morning, wrote that he would make the move Tuesday and wanted the extra day in order to have a State auditor on hand when the records were turned over. The accounts of the office were recently audited by the State, Reeves said. Cook was away from town today.

Md. Delegate Wants to Tax Bookmakers

Baltimore, Sept. 29 (AP).—A plan to levy taxes on Maryland bookmakers and thereby bring in five million dollar a year revenue was advanced today by Delegate Pete Pollack (D., Baltimore, 4th), who has been an opponent of the State's sales tax.

Pollack said he would introduce a bill at the projected special session of the legislature—expected in late October—to fix a $5000 license fee for each bookmaker and tax all bets at 1 per cent. Since the measure would be of an "emergency" classification, it would need a three-fifths vote for passage.

The fourth district Democrat already had announced he would seek repal of the sales tax at the special session. He said today that if complete repeal could not be obtained, he would favor modification to start the sales levy at 50 cents, and use other taxation methods to make up any funds needed by the State.

Pollack said his estimate of five million dollars annually from the bookmakers' tax was based on an average one million dollars worth of off-track betting in Baltimore alone each day.

Another Judge Asked In Bank Fraud Case

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—Hugh N. Rakes and his wife, Lillian Connor Rakes, today joined three other defendants in asking that Federal Judge J. Waites Waring not preside on October 8 when seven defendants in the Fredericksburg bank case will move for new trials.

Like the others, who filed on Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. Rakes said Judge Waring might be called as an adverse witness in connection with the allegation that a juror was approached in the lengthy trial of nine defendants in connection with aiding and abetting in the alleged bank fraud.

Union Drops Barbers For Dropping Price

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—A number of barber shops in Norfolk have departed from the buck-a-head haircut line and at least two of them were promptly shorn of hteir union cards.

W. H. Twiddy said there was too much resistance to the $1 haircut price in the Estabrook section, so he shaved his price to 65 cents. Shortly thereafter, he said C. H. Moorefield, president of Local 771, Journeyman Barbers' Union, dropped into his shop, picked up Twdidy's union card and walked out again.

M. C. Furtune, who runs a shop at Norview, reported the same process and said he didn't like it.

"The price of haircuts is still $1," Moorefield said.

Tax on Bachelors Urged to Support Old Maids' Home

Lynchburg, Va., Sept. 29.—If they won't marry the girls, they can at least support them in the style to which they are accustomed.

That seemed to be the thought behind a recommendation made to Representative J. Lindsey Almond of the Sixth Virginia District for a Federal tax on bachelors to support a home for old maids.

The proposal came to the Virginia representative on stationery of the lumber firm of W. H. Burruss. However, the lumberman was loath to take any credit for the idea. He did enlarge on the plan a bit by suggesting that maybe the fund could be used to set up a joint home for both spinsters and bachelors.

Representative Almond, who has the recommendation under advisement, cited an obstacle that may prove insuperable, he said. The Speaker of the House would have to decide what committee should consider such a bill. Presumably, a special committee would have to be formed, composed equally of bachelors, spinsters and married members.

Farmer a Suicide In Jail Cell After Knifing of Stepson

Winchester, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—Hutchenson DeHaven, 64, a Frederick County farmer, was found dead in the county jail here today, hanging by a piece of baling wire from an overhead rod in the cell he was occupying with two other prisoners.

Dr. C. T. Troxell, coroner, investigated and issued a certificate of death by suicide. DeHaven was arrested Saturday, charged with felonious cutting after Memorial Hospital reported Samuel Brown had been admitted there with knife wounds in the face and head. Brown, a farmer, is DeHaven's stepson.

DeHaven was discovered dead by a prisoner just before daylight. Brown's condition was not serious.

Va. to Reconsider Ban on KKK Film

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—J. D. Beverly, chairman of the Movie Censorship Board of Virginia, said today the board had agreed to reconsider its ban of the movie "Burning Cross."

The picture will be screened here for the three-man board either tomorrow or Wednesday, Beverly said, and the board's decision will be announced 24 hours later. The censorship panel agreed to review the picture again at the request of Walter Colmes, producer and director of the movie.

Earlier this week, Jack Cartwright, representative of the Screen Guild Producers, Inc., distributors of the movie, said it was possible the case might be taken to court if the Virginia censors refused to allow the picture to be shown. The picture—an anti-Ku Klux Klan film, originally was banned because it might "incite to riot" and "create dissension."

10% Distribution For Bondholders Fixed

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—Judge Sterling Hutcheson of Federal District Court said today he will order the distribution of 10 per cent, representing some $1,800,000, to debenture bondholders of Central States Electric Corp.

The ruling game after the judge heard arguments on a petition of the Reeve Protective Committee asking the distribution.

Noting that the debenture holders would "have to be paid eventually," Judge Hutcheson said he would grant the petition in view of statements from trustees that sufficient funds were on hand with the greater amount of those funds received from dividends and interest.

Central States has been involved in reorganization proceedings since February 27 of this year.

Counsel for 7 per cent stockholders had argued that payment to debenture holders might tend to destroy the equity of the lesser holders.

Pulitzer Poet Appointed

Baltimore, Sept. 29 (AP).—Karl Shapiro, Pulitzer prize poet, has accepted appointment as visiting lecturer in the department of English writing, speech and drama at Johns Hopkins University, President Isaiah Bowman said today. Shapiro's latest work is, "Trial of a Poet."

1785 Pact Invoked in Oyster Row

Fredericksburg, Va., Sept. 29 (AP). Three points on which Maryland and Virginia are asked to cooperate in an effort to smooth out the oystering squabble until the job can be done by concurrent legislation, were set forth today by the Virginia-Maryland Fisheries Commission in a memorandum as follows:

1. That the compact between the States of Maryland and Virginia of 1785 pertaining to the Potomac River be honored so long as the compact be in full force and effect.
2. That all current laws enacted by teh legislatures for the two States under the compact, including those pertaining to taking of oysters, fish and crabs, be strictly adhered to until repealed or amended in accordance with the provisions of the compact.
3. That both States be equally responsible f or enforcement of these laws.

The commission, which will meet again in the next few weeks at Annapolis, Md., for further study of the Potomac fisheries problem, apparently intends to bypass the Virginia law that allows dredging of oysters in the river—a provision that led to the trouble between the States.

Maryland contends that the law is invalid, since no concurrent legislation was adopted by the Annapolis Legislature. Concurrent action was envisioned in the eighteenth century compact.

Cooperation and full adherence to the compact, the commission said, seemed the only present means of going at the problem, since it would probably be 1949 at least before any legislattion contemplated by the two States could be given th eforce of law.

There are 128 "lots of buildings," the street lighting system, including poles and wiring, plumbing, heating plants and some furniture. All buildings purchased must be removed within 30 days. They include barracks, mess halls, service clubs and an auditorium complete with seats.

Falling Gun Kills Driver

Richmond, Va., Sept. 29 (AP).—A weekend trip to Richmond for a football game came to an abrupt end last night with the death of 19-year-old Darwin D. Lester, Martinsville, who was shot accidentally as he and companions drove through the grounds of Westhampton College here.

Police said Lester, student at North Carolina State College, was killed when a pistol fell from the sun visor of his car and discharged a bullet into his head.

Lester was the son of G. T. Lester, Martinsville lumberman.

OVERLOOKING RIVER
Here are some beautiful lots, overlooking Potomac River from hills in Arlington. This is undoubtedly the last good subdivision for high-priced homes that will be offered on the Virginia side. The lots are not cheap, and range in size from ½ to 1½ acres. Streets and all other improvements are in. Easily accessible and gracious to own and live in. The first house on this subdivision is costing around $50,000, and other homes will be of a like character or slightly under that. All restrictions carefully observed and lots will be shown to responsible people by appointment only. If you expect to build next spring and can afford this type of neighborhood, call me this weekend.

Pan American Kid Descends On Sleepy Executive

"Russ" is one of Washington's better known executives. He'd just gotten out of bed the other morning when the phone rang.

"This is the Pan American Kid," said the voice on the other end.

"Who," asked Russ with great disbelief.

"The Pan American Kid," repeated the voice. "I'll be out to your house this afternoon."

"Okay," agreed Russ weakly, cudgeling his brain for some clue to the mystery.

When he sat down to breakfast, his brow was still furrowed in thought.

"That certainly was a strange call," he said half to himself. "The Pan American Kid said he was coming out here this afternoon—and I can't imagine who he could be."

Mrs. Russ eyed her husband strangely, and inquired:

"Dear, are you sure he said he was the Pan American Kid—and not 'the piano man from Kitt's'?"

COMMON COMPLAINT

I'd say the paper shortage
To newsprint isn't confined,
For I've a constant shortage
Of the folding, greenback kind.
—Jay Aitch.

CONFESSION

My junior G-man set is back in moth balls. Bettye Goodman of 2811 S. 8th st., Arlington, Va., admits that she's the contributor of the gag about the cat at the tennis match who quipped "my father is in that racket."

0-0

SUGAR DADDY

Ever since the arrival of his brand-new son, Irving M. Marantz of 5123 2d st. nw. has been dividing his spare time between:

1. Waiting for baby's bottles to sterilize, and

2. Catching humorous slips in the newspapers.

From our afternoon contemporary Irv passes along this one:

"During the courtship that followed he told her he was expecting an $80,000 inheritance, but was temporarily short of funds. Nevertheless, he sent her an orchard every other day."

How nice. Now all she needs is a million mason jars and she's ready to start canning.

GOT ANY 1827's?

District Liner Hubbard found an 1894 quarter and wondered about its value.

Gladys Harris of 5521 Chevy Chase pkwy. nw. advises that her coin book lists 1894 quarters at "from 25 to 30 cents." She adds:

"Too bad it wasn't an 1827 quarter. It would have been worth between $150 and $300."

What's this? Where's that piggy bank of Junior's?

WRONG AGAIN

We recently remarked that "Gromyko rhymes with veto." H. W. S. of 1212 Potomac st. nw. replies:

"It's a shame to spoil the crack, but Gromyko doesn't rhyme with veto. You can call them assonantal (yipe!) if you want to, but not rhyming.

"I'm afraid that some of your poetically inclined District Liners are currently engaged in the process of taking unbrage at your remark.

"I never take umbrage, myself. I prefer aspirin."

If words like "assonantal" persist or recur frequently in my mail, I'm going to need more than aspirin.

Harry Traub of 2743 N. Lorcom ln., Arlington, Va., turns the tables on the midget magazine with this one, from a July story on Bobby Feller:

"With his wife and infant son Stephen, he travels back and forth to the farm in Van Meter at least once a year."

Hindu Finds Out All About Jupiter

NEW YORK.—Dr. Bayard Dodge, president of the American University at Beirut, was at the Overseas Press Club last night, and told of a noted sheik of Iraq who brought his son to the university to have him enrolled in the course on agriculture. The young man was given a preliminary test, and the sheik was told: "Sorry, but he hasn't enough brains to complete the university's course on agriculture . . ." "Brains?" replied the sheik. "You should see the land he owns."

A native astronomer, educated by the Hindu wise men whose teachings are handed down in spoken words from generation to generation, visited the university at Beirut and discussed astronomy with one of Dr. Dodge's professors. "You know, of course, that Jupiter has no satellites," said the Hindu . . . "But Jupiter does have satellites," the professor assured him . . . "You're wrong" the Hindu persisted. The professor pointed to the telescope and suggested: "Have a look." . .

The Hindu peered through the telescope saw Jupiter and her satellites, then sighed: "One glance undoes the work of 30 years."

The first co-ed to enroll at Beirut was a lady who arrived heavily veiled, and with her husband . . . At a wedding in a large Near Eastern city, the Arab men, adhering to tradition, were grouped in one section and the Arab women in another. A visiting Christian wandered by mistake into the women's section and came upon them unveiled. The startled women, distressed at having an infidel see their uncovered faces, immediately took protective action, by pulling their dresses over their heads . . . .

One of King Ibn Saud's sons, who lived at a Waldorf suite during his stay in N. Y., liked it so much that he's having the suite reproduced at his palace . . . Another son of Ibn Saud, who visited N. Y. with some of his friends, did some drinking here. Because this violated the Moslem ban against alcohol, the friends were "severely reprimanded"—which means they were executed.

During the last few years Rusten Vambery of Hungary has been teaching at the New School for Social Research. Vambery's father was a noted Orientalist who was an adviser to King Edward VII. Mrs. Vambery augmented the family income in New York by doing knitting work for a Manhattan shop . . . Today Mrs. Vambery will deliver the last of her knitting and collect her final salary for this work—$9. She'll be too busy to knit for money any more, because today her husband will present his credentials as His Excellency, the new Hungarian Minister to Washington.

John Foster Dulles conferred with Secretary Marshall last night about bringing the Freedom Train to Lake Success and showing its priceless documents to all the U. N. delegates and officials.

Mrs. John Garfield, who has been in New York for a week, went to Newark to board the train on which her husband was arriving from California to pose with him for the news photos of "Mr. & Mrs. Garfield Arriving."

John Barkham, the literary critic-author, was in the Stork Club last night with George Frazier. "In writing about you," a newspaperman asked Barkham, "what's the best way of describing you?" Frazier, shedding his customary shyness about his own new book, suggested, "The proper description is 'John Barkman, friend of the author of 'The One With the Mustache Is Costello.'"
